Summary: When tourists on a fishing charter in Key West, Florida, discover a human arm, suspended detective Andrew Yancy takes the case.

The episode begins with a Narrator/Captain Fitzpatrick's introduction of James Mayberry, an inexperienced fisherman with extremely deep pockets. Being that James pulls a severed arm, shooting the rod, he likely won't be forgetting his first time at sea any time too soon.

The Narrator then introduces viewers to Andrew Yancy, who has been purposely ignoring his ringing cell phone all morning and is described as the simplest of men. It isn't long before Yancy is joined by his mysteriously incessant caller, Rogelio. Their ensuing conversation reveals that although Yancy is currently suspended, Rogelio apparently has something in his car that Sheriff Sonny Summers wants him to escort to Miami. Even though Rogelio assures Yancy there is no faster way back to reinstatement than by getting on Summer's good side, Yancy continually refuses the offer. As the Narrator further introduces Rogelio as Yancy's former partner, he also tells viewers that over the years he has learned exactly how to get what he wants from Yancy. It's merely minutes later that this is proven true.

After briefly learning that the arm likely belongs to a white male in his mid-40s, Yancy learns that Summer is afraid the arm deter tourists. Although Yancy assures him that absolutely nothing could hurt Key West tourism, Summers remains adamant about pawning the discovery off on Miami. Apparently, he's already made plans for a press conference the following day to announce as much. Yancy agrees to take the arm if Summer reinstates him. Summer claims that it is Bonnie Witt and her testimony that is preventing his reinstatement.

Yancy delivers the arm to Doctor Rosa Campesino and immediately feels the need to inform her that the middle finger pose was random rigor mortis. Despite Yancy's charm, Rosa is clearly not an idiot and his day only worsens when he learns that he won't be pawning the arm off on Miami. A brief call with Rogelio leads him to a marsh where he considers ditching the arm as advised but decides otherwise.

As if to remedy the disaster that will ensue with him not ditching the arm, Yancy invites Bonne over for dinner where he tries to convince her to drop the charges. Although they make love in the shower, she shows no signs of dropping the charges. Things only get stranger when the mention of Doctor Clifford Witt shines a light on why she is pressing the charges in the first place. Their evening is abruptly ended when she discovers the arm in the icebox.

It is at this time that the Narrator switches the story to Neville Stafford in the Bahamas. Neville is immediately introduced as an even simpler man than Yancy and his one-room shack confirms the assessment. Just like Yancy, Neville has a partner as well, but his turns out to be a monkey named Driggs. Neville's dreams of the simple life are dashed by a single visit from Mr. Knowles who tells him that his half-sister has sold the property to some real estate mogul named, Christopher.

Yancy has a brief encounter with his new neighbor, Evan Shook before Rogelio shows up asking about the arm. Yancy initially claims that he disposed of it as ordered but it doesn't take Rogelio long to get the truth out of him. It turns out that not disposing of the arm was a smart decision due to Eve Stripling wanting to honor her husband with a funeral and the works. He not only drives several hours to deliver the arm but he questions her like a suspect.

Yancy later discusses his suspicions with Rosa who isn't in the best of moods at the time because she spent the entire morning autopsying a 15-year-old girl shot by her mother's boyfriend. Her mood isn't improved when she learns that his true intentions are to get background on Nicky Stripling. It isn't long after telling him about Nicky's involvement in insurance scams that she realizes he's actually managed to cheer her up. Despite this, she turns down his offer of lunch, claiming that she is already involved with someone. Matters only get worse when he returns to Key West to discover that he's been fired for snooping around.

Merely hours after being fired for poking around the Stripling case, Yancy decides to attend the funeral. He not only notices two Feds in attendance, but he also has an interesting conversation with Caitlin and Simon. Although Caitlin is quick to admit that she didn't have much of a relationship with her father, she is just as fast to accuse Eve of masterminding his death.

Completely out of ideas, Neville spends the remainder of his money and the night buying drinks for several friends, including Willy. Much to his surprise, their drunken debates lead to a possible solution — a visit to the island's most feared Voodoo practitioner, The Dragon Queen. He will later learn that he needs a piece of clothing worn by the developer which prompts a break-in. He narrowly escapes thanks to an assist from Driggs.

At the same time, Yancy appears to be plotting a scheme of his own by having a local beekeeper, Miguel, plant a beehive in the chimney of what appears to be a vacant house. He follows that up with a visit to Captain Fitzpatrick to question him about sharks. This eventually ends up with them at the bar where Yancy meets Fitzpatrick's first mate who actually pulled the arm from the water, Charles Phinney. Yancy's interest only grows when he learns that Phinney recently quit, claiming that he came into a load of cash. After joining Phinney at his table and insulting him in front of Madeline, he storms off into the approaching storm where he is eventually shot by someone on a motorbike.

Neville and Driggs visit the Dragon Queen and YaYa. She appears to appreciate his straight-to-business approach as well as the offering of liquor. Before warning him that the developer might die, she hints at him returning for a different type of business. He doesn't offer much of a response to that but as for the developer, he says whatever is God's Will is God's Will.

The episode ends with Yancy and Madeline watching as the paramedics uselessly attempt to pump life back into Phinney while Neville races to watch Christopher's plane land. It appears to do so without incident.

Summary: Caitlin meets with Yancy to discuss her suspicions about her step-mother Eve. Yancy learns of Eve's secret boyfriend.

The episode begins with Andrew Yancy learning from his lawyer, Montenegro/Monte, that Doctor Clifford Witt has dropped all charges. He is so excited with the news that he doesn't even inquire about any of the details. His streak of luck appears to continue when on his way out, he notices Evan Shook being overrun by angry bees. It only takes a brief call from Caitlin, with assurances that Eve Stripling murdered her father to change things.

In the meantime, Eve has her sights set on getting Neville Stafford off her property and recruits Christopher. While Christopher orders Egg to hasten Neville's departure, Rosa Campesino continues looking into the missing watch. These efforts are soon sidetracked by a call from Mel Campesino, confirming their later plans.

Rogelio quickly tires of Yancy's nagging as they pull into the Key West Station. Yancy appears to be on an all-new level of annoying now that he thinks he's getting his badge back. It's only minutes later that Sheriff Sonny Summers helps him realize his oversight. As it turns out Yancy is getting his badge back, but he's being assigned to restaurant inspection detail. Neville and Driggs's luck doesn't appear to be much better when they return home to find that their house razed. Even worse, he's given ten minutes to collect his belongings and get gone.

Bonnie Witt meets Yancy at the station to claim that she's being forced to leave town but refuses to tell him why. This soon becomes unimportant to him because he realizes they are being followed. After getting dropped off, the vehicle nearly runs him over. Elsewhere, Neville returns to the Dragon Queen's to air his grievances but loses his nerve. When she interrupts his departure, he does tell her that her magic isn't working. He assures him it will in time.

Although Rosa meets Mel and several of her friends at a local bar, she can't keep her mind off the missing watch from the Stripling case. Yancy flexes his new authority by shutting down Brennan. While doing this, he sees Madeline but doesn't get a chance to speak with her because she is gone before he can even go attempt to go after her.

Things continue to get worse for Neville when he joins Willy and Ollie to discover that Christopher has literally transformed their favorite bar overnight. Willy and Ollie don't appear to find the new place as off-putting as Neville, but Charles's brief argument with Egg suggests he isn't happy with the changes either.

By the time Yancy sits down for dinner that evening, Rosa has managed to uncover the make and model of the missing watch. Much to her surprise, Yancy not only refuses to get involved but he blames her partly for his current predicament before hanging up on her. Her subsequent call with her mother doesn't go much better but this time it is Rosa who does the hanging up.

Much to his credit, Yancy attempts to forget about the case but has little success. After discovering that Rogelio is even less interested, he ends up at Peninsula Rentals where he doesn't have the most productive meeting with Brittney. After receiving a call from Caitlin about being late for their meeting, he leaves empty-handed. He continues to separate him from the case but Caitlin appears determined to convince him that Eve is responsible for her father's death. It doesn't take him long to realize that she does make a compelling case but doesn't take the debate.

Egg pays Charles a home visit after learning that he's stolen what he thought he was owed from the bar's register. At the same time, Eve receives Caitlin's threatening message about turning her in to the insurance company for murdering her father. Christopher offers to go with her and even mentions having K.J. Claspers fly them, but she is gone before he even gets out of the shower.

Yancy continues to try to stay away from the case but can't get the meeting with Caitlin out of his mind. This eventually leads him to Eve's house in Miami where Rosa has also just shown up to question Eve about the watch. Much to her surprise, it is Yancy who greets her at the door. They are only spared a few minutes before the Gardeners show up to help themselves to refreshments. Yancy and Rosa seek concealment in the shower and after a good bit of joking; they discover blood and bone shards in the drain. At about the same time, the Gardener discovers them but Caitlin proves to be quick on her feet by pretending to have just purchased the home.

Feeling out of options, Neville flies to Key West to get his money from his Sister, Samara. It doesn't take long to realize they don't have the best relationship but agrees to give him the money. Caitlin is equally surprised when Eve shows up at Simon's church with the request to speak. Despite Eve's tactful approach, Caitlin remains distrustful until she discovers that Eve didn't pawn her father's wedding ring, she is actually wearing it as a charm on her necklace. Eve further alters her image by telling Caitlin that she was named a beneficiary in Nicholas's will. As those meetings took place, Yancy and Rosa were busy collecting the bone shards and making plans to get them tested the following morning.

Yancy returns home where he is confronted by Oklahoma State Bureau Agent, Johnna Russell. As it turns out, Russell is there looking for Clover Chase/Bonnie Witt, who just happens to be a former English teacher wanted for sexually assaulting a student. Bonnie apparently jumped bailed and eluded police for nine years. She would likely have remained undetected if it wasn't for Yancy's YouTube video with Charles Witt becoming such a hit. He doesn't get much time to digest this due to the death wails of a nearby baby deer trapped in Shook's construction work. Russell not only helps him free the deer but gives him a ride to the vet as well. Despite the late hour, Yancy practically leaves the man with no option but to treat the deer.

The episode ends with Ya-Ya and the Dragon Queen performing a ritual on the beach. As they speak and chant, it becomes clear that Neville, Yancy, and Rosa's lives are about to implode.

Summary: Yancy and Rosa continue their search for more information about Nick. Caitlin confronts Eve, leading to a shocking revelation.

The episode begins with Andrew Yancy and Rosa Campesino deciding to question Madeline after confirming that the discovered bone shards are a match with Nick Stripling. Before they can do that, however, Yancy must inspect Samara's restaurant. This is where he meets Driggs and Neville Stafford and ends up cutting them a break.

Madeline immediately attempts to run again upon immediately seeing Yancy but he is prepared this time. Madeline explains her fleeing as past drugs charges.

In addition to admitting that, she also tells them that Charles Phinney was paid to stage the arm incident. She even has the cooler the arm came in, which just happens to be emblazoned with Nick Stripling's company logo, Midwest Mobile Medical.

After Samara gives Neville his take from the sale of his home, Neville returns to Andros with intentions of clearing his mind with a day of fishing. That is ruined by Christopher, who has not only cut his John boat free but shoots at him. At the same time, the Dragon Queen receives more disrespect from Andrea Wendell as she attempts to help her mother, Hope with the crossing over of family patriarch, James Wendell. She and Ya-Ya later discuss the younger generation and their blatant disrespect.

Yancy goes as far as to don a tie before he and Rosa pay a visit to Nick's medical supply company. Their trip is sidelined with a very brief phone call from Bonnie Witt, but it doesn't take long before they get back on track. It is at the medical company that they meet Donald Davis, who immediately assumes Yancy to be a fed, given the tie. Although Yancy and Rosa spend several minutes inflating Donald's ego, it ends up working against them once he decides to take his job more seriously. After discovering several prescriptions written by Israel/Izzy O'Peele, Yancy and Rosa are forced to make a quick exit through the rear entrance. They do escape but Yancy sustains a vicious dog bite on his right butt.

Neville attempts to air his grievances with the Dragon Queen are sidelined thanks to James's funeral. This leads to him visiting Dawnie and Lulu to seek lodging for the evening. Despite Yancy's injury and the urgency to question Israel, he makes Rosa make a special stop at Detective Johnny Mendez's house, where he unearths his mailbox and throws it in the front yard. The Narrator/Captain Fitzpatrick informs viewers that Mendez is the reason Yancy isn't a cop anymore but doesn't expand.

Later that evening, while Rosa and Yancy learn about Izzy and Nick's ghost-patient scam, Neville confronts the Dragon Queen about the lack of results from her curse. Izzy refuses to say anymore once he learns of Phinney's death. Yancy leaves him with his contact information. Neville's meeting doesn't go much better thanks to the Dragon Queen blaming the curse's failure on his lack of belief. He gives her an extra $500.00 to speed things along. Although she and Ya-Ya take the money, they tell him he will need to sacrifice something that he loves to prove his faith. Without thinking twice, he gives them Driggs.

Izzy is clearly scared after learning about Phinney's death, which leads to him calling Eve Stripling. Much to his surprise, she does make him feel better but claims to not be able to do much for him unless he comes to Miami. The conversation ends with him promising to seriously consider the trip.

Elsewhere over ice cream, Yancy shares Christopher's Tour brochure that he took from Izzy's refrigerator. With the knowledge of Christopher's last name, Grunion, they make plans for a later background check. Yancy attempts to fill the remaining time with what Rosa refers to as 'small talk,' but she loses interest quickly.

In need of a place to spend the night, Neville visits his uncle Charles, which nearly leads to him getting shot again. They very briefly discuss their shared problems with Egg and Christopher before Charles makes him promise to sleep on things before making a decision. Neville agrees.

Yancy continues to be a thorn in Evan Shook's side when he likely destroys any hopes Evan had of selling his home to Barb and Buzz. He does this by cleverly playing up the viciousness of the neighborhood dogs, using his own wound.

True to his word, Neville spent the entire night thinking about his problems with Christopher. He even spends several hours the following morning thinking about it while fishing. Yancy is practically doing the same thing when he receives a call from Madeline, with fears that she's being tailed. He gives her a brief lesson on how to pick up a tail which surprisingly enough appears to make her feel better. It's only seconds later when he receives a text from Izzy that he wants to talk.

Rosa doesn't know it, but her meeting with Officer Murphy reveals that she now has a tail of her own, Detective Mendez. After briefly mentioning her lack of success with finding any information on Christopher, she inquires about Yancy. Murphy describes him as a human anchor but otherwise, a decent guy.

Yancy meets Sheriff Sonny Summers and Regelio/Ro at Stoney's Crab Shack to pick up his department-issued vehicle. This is where he not only learns that the Stripling case has now been officially deemed an accident thanks to Caitlin, but Ro has been poking around the case as well. Yancy's next visit is with Caitlin where he accuses her of declaring the death an accident so she and Eve could split the insurance money. She denies the claim and her expression suggests that she's genuinely hurt by his harsh remarks.

Yancy arrives just seconds after Izzy is shot in the head. After a very brief discussion with Izzy's neighbor that reveals nothing helpful, Yancy calls Rosa. Surprisingly enough, Rosa is right in the middle of a debate with Mel Campesino about him. Their conversation reveals that Rosa has not only been thinking about dating Yancy but Heather the Weather Girl hasn't shown up for work.

Yancy ends up at the morgue after failing to get Rosa on the phone. It appears that in his haste to get away from Izzy's apartment, he's ripped open his stitches. He and Rosa discuss the case while she reinforces the stitches. It's not long after he fails to reach Madeline on the phone that he and Rosa end up racing to the t-shirt shop where she works.

After giving it a lot of thought, Neville breaks into Christopher's office. As soon as he finds a USB stick hidden in the far reaches of a desk drawer, Egg shows up. Neville tells Egg that Christopher is ruining the island but he doesn't appear to care as long as he's getting paid for his work. Despite that, it only takes Neville pulling out Charles's revolver to get him to back down. Neville slugs him in the face on his way out.

Becoming more and more concerned for Madeline, Yancy calls and asks Ro to swing by her work. It turns out he's right in the middle of doing dishes after having dinner with Montenegro/Monte.

Caitlin pulls a weapon of her own when she unexpectedly visits Eve to accuse her of killing Nick. Rosa appears to become more attracted to Yancy after seeing how much he fears for her safety. Madeline ends up being perfectly fine and Ro arrives shortly after he and Rosa do.

The episode ends with Eve refusing to admit to Nick's death because he is still alive. This is when it is revealed that Nick is actually Christopher and he's missing an arm.

Summary: A flashback reveals Eve and Nick's origins, how Yancy got suspended, and Nick and Izzy's nefarious business dealings.

The episode begins with Caitlin learning that her father, Christopher/Nick Stripling, is still alive. After the brief reunion, the story goes back in time to reveal how Nick and Eve Stripling's worlds collided. It turns out that Eve was a struggling actress while Caitlin was a budding model. At just 17 and being a con man himself, Nick was cautious about Caitlin's career path, which eventually leads to him escorting her to a modeling agency club party one evening. This is where he meets Eve, which doesn't go his way at first but after he recognizes her from an auto insurance commercial she recently done, he has her eating out of his hand and vice versa. Although Nick and Eve will eventually go on to get married, she and Caitlin never really appear to bond.

Right around the time that Nick and Israel O'Peele made their joint venture into the Super Rollie Scam; Andrew Yancy was still a suit-wearing detective with his nose to the grindstone. Nick wants to bring Eve in on the scam and to do so they arrange a whole elaborate scenario where Eve pretends to uncover their scam on her own and threatens to turn them in. Right at the right of the moment, they reveal the truth to a much-relieved Izzy.

Johnny Mendez was still a beat cop at this time but it was his scam with the Crime Busters Tip Line that put Yancy on his trail. It is later revealed that Mendez had a whole network of associates who would report old crimes to the tip line and collect on the rewards. This discovery begins Yancy's campaign to bring down Mendez. Not from lack of trying but Yancy's campaign would only turn out to be half successful due to the department's fear of embarrassment. Mendez would get passed up as detective for several years while Yancy surprisingly gets shipped off to the Keys.

Yancy would eventually adapt to the Keys lifestyle and his relocation gets him even closer to his father, Jim Yancy, who is constantly preaching at him about letting things go and opening up to nature. On one particular fish outing, Jim tells him how it was an encounter with a blue manatee that got him to adopt that sort of mantra. The blue manatee story is apparently one that Yancy has heard several times. During this time, Yancy would also meet and build relationships with Rogelio Burton/Ro and Bonnie Witt.

To celebrate the success of their scam, Nick and Izzy plan a joint family vacation to Andros. It was on this trip that Eve realized her dream of opening a resort on the beach. She would soon make this Nick's dream as well, which is where their problems began. After dramatically increasing their scooter sales, the Department of Justice would come snooping around their business. It didn't take them long to realize something wasn't right.

Although Izzy and Nick had plenty of time and resources to go on the run, Eve wasn't having any part of it. Nick certainly wasn't willing to go down for his crime, so this eventually led to him faking his death. Yancy's relationship problems are no better at the moment because this is right around the time that he discovers Bonnie's husband, Doctor Clifford Witt is a pill-pushing domestic abuser. Nick's extremely brief and estranged call with Caitlin would reveal that she was just beginning to conquer her drug addiction thanks to Simon. Izzy's addiction was just taking off and his current situation certainly wasn't helping matters.

While Izzy plots the staged discovery of Nick's arm with Charles Phinney, Nick has an unpleasant encounter with YaYa and the Dragon Queen. Phinny would eventually leverage Nick for more money. If not for Eve, he would have likely paid and forgotten about it but she convinces him to handle the matter differently. Izzy will later suffer the same faith.

Immediately after killing Izzy, Nick will go into a bit of a depressed state. Upon returning to Eve in the parking garage, he will question their actions for the first time. This leads to a bit of an argument that Heather McNally just happens to overhear. Eve's killing of Heather puts the story back in the present.

Nick spends time with Caitlin while Ro receives a call from Detective Mendez confirming that he can now close the Phinney case. From the situation that Mendez describes, it doesn't just appear that Nick killed Izzy but he's also framed him. At the same time, Yancy and Rosa Campesino conspire about how they can keep Izzy's case from getting written off as a suicide. Much to his surprise, this discussion quickly goes from an autopsy to a romantic encounter.

Nick and Eve's afternoon on the beach with Caitlin doesn't go nearly as well when they begin conspiring about how to deal with people who might get in their way. Despite Yancy being at the top of both their lists, things immediately become confrontational when Eve mentions Caitlin. There's a bit of arguing but Eve eventually convinces him that she was just throwing around ideas.

As Rosas learns about Heather's death and Mel Campesino replacing her as the station's weather girl, Mendez gets a visit from Izzy's neighbor. Mendez has already written the case off as a suicide and maintains that assessment until the neighbor recognizes Yancy's photo on the wall.

Although he's just been named a prime suspect in a murder case, Yancy is in an even worse place when the episode ends. While leaving a message to Rosa that Christopher and Nick could be one and the same, he's attacked from behind by Nick.

Summary:	Yancy makes a crucial realization as he goes into hiding. The Dragon Queen asks Egg about Neville.

The episode begins with Christopher/Nick Stripling dragging Andrew Yancy's unconscious body to the dock where he sets Yancy's demise to appear as a drunken accident while night fishing. The following morning, Nick and Eve Stripling are practically packed and ready to leave Florida forever, there's just one problem — Nick's phone is AWOL.

By the time Nick begins to suspect he lost his phone at the crime scene, it's revealed that he's made another huge oversight. Yancy is still alive. This is revealed in a very brief scene when Evan Shook shows the house to two prospective buyers, Scott Davis) and Dan. Out of fear of being surprised again, Yancy chose to spend the evening at the abandoned home. After Yancy uses the opportunity to derail the sale, he will find Nick's cell phone, half buried in the sand.

Despite the security measures on Nick's phone, Yancy practically declares the case solved when he turns to Rosa Campesino to tend to his injuries, once again. Yancy just happens to step away to use the restroom as Detective Mendez shows up looking for Yancy.

Elsewhere, Egg is on a similar search for Neville Stafford, which leads to a brief confrontation with the Dragon Queen and YaYa where he will encourage them to share his location if and when he shows up. The Dragon Queen will casually point out that it is Neville who is paying her and not him.

With Mendez right on their heels, Rosa attempts to sneak Yancy out of the morgue disguised as a corpse. Before they end up in the elevator alone with Mendez, Yancy will also receive a call from Ro/Rogelio, alerting him that Mendez has put out an APB on him. Initially, Mendez doesn't show any interest in Rosas's body bag but perhaps overplaying her hand, he becomes interested. Yancy will dart into a full seated position just as Mendez is opening the bag. Mendez ends up knocked out.

While Yancy and Rosa make plans to hide out at her parent's house, Egg continues his search for Neville. His next visit is with Dawnie and although she claims to not have seen him, Neville is inside viewing the contents of the stolen USB drive. Once he discovers that he's hit the mother lode, it merely becomes a matter of whom he can trust with the discovery. Much to his surprise and displeasure, Dawnie reminds him that he already knows someone with the juice to take the discovery further, Tanny. After some careful apologizing and appealing to her love for the island, Neville convinces Tanny to help him.

It appears that life on the run is about to get extremely difficult for Bonnie Witt as Agent Johnna Russell leverages Doctor Clifford Witt to help smoke her out with threats of charging him as an accessory. When Bonnie realizes she has no finances and nowhere else to go, she has no other option but to return to the one place where she suspects that she will always be welcome, Yancy's house. Suspecting that Yancy's absence is tied to an outing with Rosa, she doesn't think twice about the rock that she smashes through his sliding glass door to gain access.

As it turns out, Yancy appears to be right at home with the Campesinos. He enjoys being the butt of their jokes just as much as they enjoy his attendance. Despite the celebratory mood from Mel Campesino's promotion to Weather Girl, things become more serious when Yancy requests Jorge Campesino's help to bypass the security on Nick's phone. Inez Campesino will later grill Rosa about sleeping with Yancy and claim that he is trouble.

A bit more about Gracie/The Dragon Queen's past is revealed during an outing at the beach with an old friend, Asia. Gracie will also later hint about a possible interest in Egg. Being a native islander, Asia is more than familiar with Egg and wastes little time pointing out how wealthy his employer, Christopher/Nick is. At about the same time Nick just happens to catch the news piece on Yancy's remarkable survival.

Dawnie will not only escort Neville to his meeting with Tanny, but she will also aid in his escape after Tanny double-crosses him with Egg. This is also right around the time that Inez lets Yancy know he's not only worn out his welcome but he is bad for Rosa. Rose will only learn about this several hours later while Sheriff Sonny Summers threatens Ro in an attempt to locate Yancy. Rosa appears to know where Yancy has gone when Jorge mentions the fingerprint bypass on Nick's phone.

Eve and Nick's goodbye visit with Caitlin goes bad from the moment Eve accuses her of sharing Nick's secret with Simon. Rather than denying the claim, Caitlin assures them that Simon can keep a secret. That appears good enough for Nick but only enrages Eve further. They will practically end up getting kicked out after Nick sides with Eve on a separate issue later.

Yancy and Rosa will end up back on the run after an unexpected encounter with the Grounds-keeper. Although the risk proves to have been worth the risk, Rosa appears more interested in learning while he's left without saying anything to her. He tries to justify his actions by claiming her mother's suspicions about him were right, but she stops him with a kiss.

While using Nick's phone to learn about Eve and Nick's flight out of Miami, the arrival of Cody takes Bonnie's situation from bad to worse. Yancy and Eve will not make it to the airport in time to prevent Nick's flight, but their arrival will lead to Eve learning that Nick lied to her about killing him.

Summary:	In need of help, Yancy turns to Rogelio. Bonnie goes on the run. The Dragon Queen confronts Nick and Eve.

The episode starts with Rosa and Yancy leaving the runway in Rosa's car. Although Rosa and Yancy seem disappointed about not being able to catch Nick and Eve, Yancy's theory of Nick being alive has been confirmed. The new couple just has to figure a way out now to catch the frauds and reveal their deception to the cops.

Yancy calls Rogelio and tells him about Nick being alive. Rogelio on the other hand doesn't second the idea of Yancy calling him as an arrest warrant is out in Yancy's name, after the cops think that he killed Israel and Heather. Yancy still convinces Rogelio to meet him. Meanwhile, Rosa drops Yancy a block away from his own home. Yancy reaches his house and finds Bonnie with Cody.

Later, Cody and Bonnie leave the house and go to Yancy's father's old cabin.

When Yancy goes to meet Rogelio, he finds out that his partner has called the cops on him. They come and arrest Yancy and also recover Nick's phone and his severed finger from Yancy's pocket. Meanwhile, Mendez puts Yancy in jail and although Yancy tries to strike a deal with him so that he could get him out of jail, Mendez doesn't agree.

After Neville escapes from Egg and his men in the previous episode, he comes back to the Dragon Queen for help once more. However, to his shock and utter disappointment, he finds the Dragon Queen making love with Egg. As Neville looks at them through the video, Egg spots him, takes out his gun, and fires at Neville. Neville gets shot in the arm but manages to escape once more. He hops onto Nick and Eve's private jet and hides in it.

Bonnie goes with Cody to Yancy's father's old cabin. Here she meets Yancy's father, Jim. Later, Cody and Bonnie go swimming in the crystal clear waters and she meets a manatee underwater. Bonnie thinks that the manatee is nature's way of telling her that she should reunite with Cody, although they have a huge age difference.

However, later in the episode, Bonnie understands how she has been wrong the entire time. She reads Cody's novel about their illegitimate relationship and realizes that he is obsessed with her, however, his love is immature. She contemplates that Cody cannot be blamed for this as she slept with him when he was underage and gave him hope about the two dating. Before she can introspect more, she finds out that the FBI has tracked her down to the cabin. Bonnie takes Jim's airboat and absconds.

Meanwhile, Rosa who needs to find the private jet, goes to the airport. The jet will help him and Yancy find Nick and Eve and prove Yancy's theory of the fraud death insurance scheme to the cops. Rosa looks for any kind of evidence that might help however, she is interrupted by some drug peddlers. Rosa hides under a table and waits until everyone leaves to continue looking for evidence.

After Rogelio helps Mendez and Sonny arrest Yancy, he returns home. However, deep down he knows that Yancy is innocent. Soon, Rogelio gets a flashback in which he sees Yancy talking to Benito and explaining to him about the guiding light and baby turtles on Benito's birthday. Rogelio knows that Yancy considers him as his guiding light.

He also knows that Yancy has always treated him as his sidekick, his partner, and his best friend. Hence, he promises Yancy that although he is arrested for now, Rogelio will try in every way to find the truth and help Yancy out of jail.

Next up, Rogelio goes to Israel's neighbor who had previously testified to Mendez against Yancy. He goes in the hope of looking for more information and finds out that the old lady had also seen a man with one hand outside Israel's house before she saw Yancy. Rogelio also learns that Mendez asked her to lie about the same and therefore she changed the statement and only talked about seeing Yancy to the cops.

Later, when Yancy sits with the feds and his lawyer, Rogelio tells everyone that when Israel died, there was someone else present at the crime scene, even before Yancy could arrive. He also makes the feds aware of Mendez's deception. Mendez meanwhile tries to tell everyone that he has more evidence to keep Yancy in jail and then walks out of the room and does not return.

Meanwhile, Rosa who was looking for evidence, finds Nick and Eve's jet. When she opens the door, she finds Neville, who is bleeding and in pain after Egg shot him previously.

The Dragon Queen who had previously helped a client die, tells Egg to set a meeting with Nick and Eve, stating she has something important to discuss. Later in the episode, she meets Nick and Eve. She tries to sell the property to Nick however, Nick doesn't want to pay enough, which makes her furious.

She leaves the couple's villa and tells them about how she can sense fear and guilt in their hearts, revealing to them that she knows Nick and Eve have done something wrong and she is aware of the same.

In the final seconds of the episode, The Dragon Queen gets abducted while she is walking in the forest. Although she screams, no one comes to her aid. However, we are not shown who is the abductor.

Summary:	Rogelio and Yancy find themselves in an explosive situation. Eve negotiates with the Dragon Queen.

The episode begins with Gracie/The Dragon Queen reflecting on her life when she realizes the end might be near. This scene shows that Gracie grew up, rebelling against her predetermined role as Dragon Queen. This was until she fell in love with a man visiting Andros, who broke her heart when he left. It was after the heartbreak that she began her transformation into the Dragon Queen, under the guidance of Ya-Ya. Ya-Ya will also mention in the scene that Gracie's mother was the victim of a similar fate.

When the car finally comes to a stop, the Dragon Queen will realize she's been kidnapped by Christopher/Nick and Eve Stripling. The kidnapping is quickly revealed to be nothing more than a showing of intimidation.

After learning that Detective Mendz's priceless Persian cat is down in the dumps, Andrew Yancy and Ro/Rogelio Burton spend the morning staking out the vet. During this time, Ro will apologize for leading Yancy into a trap. Their attention will soon be turned to Mendez who shows up and is practically arrested without incident. Ro will immediately report the arrest to Sheriff Sonny Summers while Yancy briefly speaks with Doctor Rosa Campesino to learn that Neville Stafford's gunshot was nothing more than a flesh wound.

It doesn't take long before things take an unexpected turn after Mendez discovers Natalia's missing unicorn hair clip. A brief struggle will ensue and Ro will sustain a leg wound but during the following shootout, Donald will make a surprise appearance. It is quickly revealed that he's been tailing Yancy even since he got him fired. There is a bit of back-and-forth about who Donald should help, but the situation ultimately ends with both of them getting shot. Mendez's wound is fatal.

Feeling defeated, Cody turns to Jim Yancy for answers to his Bonnie Witt situation, but all he appears to be willing to offer is that his boat didn't have much gas so Bonnie couldn't have gotten far. Another brief scene will show that this is not only true but Bonnie is having an equally hard time with running away. She even considers death by an alligator. At the same time, the Dragon Queen decides to sell her stolen property to Eve. Although nothing happens at the moment, Asia will see Eve inviting the Dragon Queen back to her place to collect a special gift to celebrate the signing. That gift will later be revealed as an electric scooter for Ya-Ya.

While Ro recovers in the hospital, Neville will share the mountain of evidence he has against Christopher, including a recent photo of him with the missing arm. Later that day, Yancy will have another unpleasant encounter with Evan Shook before handing over Neville's evidence to Sheriff Summers. He then celebrates the potential of getting his badge back with a visit to Rosa's house.

The Dragon Queen's visit to Asia's shop quickly turns bad when Asia questions seeing her with Eve. There will be a few heated exchanges and Asia will accuse her of stealing Andrea Wendell's family property before she storms off. At nearly the same time, Yancy will revisit the Crab Shack with the intention of reclosing it. During his brief debate with the owner, Yancy will learn that Madeline and Pestov are now an item that Charles Phinney is out of the way. Rosa's return to work doesn't go so well and leads to her visiting Mel Campesino, who actually gives her the much-needed advice of taking care of herself.

Yancy helps Bonnie in a similar way when he returns home to find her sulking over the Cody situation. At the same time, Asia attempts to convince Ya-Ya that the Dragon Queen stole the Wendell family's land. Ya-Ya gives the impression of believing that the Dragon Queen could do no wrong, but after she storms off in a hissy, she finds the evidence that convinces her.

Before turning herself in, Bonnie takes a trip down memory lane with a visit to her storage shed. She will soon realize that she has only hastened her demise thanks to the security cameras that Johnna Russell had set up. Despite officially becoming a detective again, things aren't going much better for Yancy thanks to Director Rhodes. She practically tells him that the Feds won't be extraditing the Striplings.

Ya-Ya tries to convince the Dragon Queen to return the stolen property during a visit to her mother's gravesite. This only makes the Dragon Queen angry and she becomes even more so as Ya-Ya promises to help her. The Dragon Queen will ultimately end up storming off, giving the impression that she has no intention of returning the land. She will later take things to a physical level when she returns home and begins smashing her magical artifacts. Egg will soon interrupt and they will begin making out.

Yancy and Rosa are in the middle of comparing their horrible days when Jim shows up with Cody. After very brief introductions, the episode will end with a shot of several armed men outside Yancy's house.

Summary:	With Caitlin and Rosa's help, Yancy cooks up a new plan to get Nick and Eve back to Miami.

The episode opens with a hysterical volley of gunfire as Andrew Yancy's house is shredded by bullets. He'll quickly send Jim Yancy and Cody out the front while he and Doctor Rosa Campesino remain inside. It's only seconds later when they are joined by a lone gunman that Yancy immediately takes advantage of. A struggle will ensue, and several more men and Rosa will get involved, but things eventually conclude when Pestov realizes he's at Yancy's house. When the confusion is cleared, Evan Shook will be identified as the responsible hit. Yancy takes one of the gunmen's automatics and sends his own volley of gunfire into Evan's house.

As surprised as Bonnie Witt is to learn that neither the State of Oklahoma nor Cody's parents are interested in pursuing charges against her, she's even more stunned to learn that Johnna Russell took it up on herself to go after her. After being released without so as much a slap on the wrist, Russell is forced to drive Bonnie back to Florida.

Jim attempts to leave Yancy with some advice while also telling him that he'll be going home tomorrow. There will be a bit of brief joking and teasing but Jim will ultimately offer the advice of — don't waste something good for something that you think you need.

Now that the adrenaline from her brief encounter with Egg has settled, the Dragon Queen/Gracie can't help but feel depressed again. So much so that when Egg attempts to leave, she practically asks him to stay. Several minutes later, they'll be meeting with Christopher/Nick and Eve Stripling on their new yacht. When the two ladies are left alone, it'll be revealed that they are waiting on another guest before their trip out to the sea. Little do they know, Neville Stafford is nearby providing Yancy with a play-by-play. As he does so, he Neville can't help but feel that Yancy no longer cares about the case. A later trip to Miami and an impromptu meeting with Director Rhodes will reveal that not to be the case.

While Rhodes practically tells Yancy she can't go after the Striplings as long as they are on foreign land, the Stripling's other guest is revealed to be Mr. Knowles. It only takes an afternoon full of champagne and a thousand dollars to convince him to push a rush on the soon-to-be-resort's paperwork. Before Gracie and Egg leave, Eve mentions Asia's reluctance to sell and outspoken responses to being asked to do so. Gracie assures her that won't be the case at all.

Much later that night, Yancy and Rosa's discussion about bringing down the Striplings nearly leads to a visit to the ice parlor, but upon stepping outside, Evan's house explodes. Bonnie emerges from the wreckage and introduces herself to Rosa. It appears that she wants to be arrested and she gets her wish. Yancy will later admit that he's never seen someone look so happy to get arrested. Something about this inspires a trip to Andros.

Gracie confronts Egg after discovering that Asia's shop has been vandalized. His openly admitting to doing it and lack of remorse send her into a blind rage. At nearly the same time, an unexpected call from Caitlin makes Eve equally upset. The conversation is later revealed to be staged by Yancy and Rosa, but Caitlin will claim to be calling on behalf of the parents of one of Simon's parishioners, interested in making a land investment in Andros.

Yancy and Rosa arrive in Andros the next day around the same time that Gracie reaches out to Ya-Ya. Gracie is clearly seeking comfort more than advice from the talk but gets neither. While at lunch, Rosa receives a confirmation text from Christopher with the location for their meeting tomorrow. Surprisingly enough, Rosa's fear about not being ready for the meeting leads to a bit of an improv skit with a patron at the restaurant. It'll take all night, several plates of conch fritters, and some alcoholic beverages before Yancy realizes they've been getting to know Christopher's pilot, K.J. Claspers.

The next morning, Neville and Lulu rise early for a fishing trip while Yancy tries to sleep in but is unable to do so thanks to Rosa's anxiousness over the meeting. Being that all their cash is tied up in their investment scheme, Christopher and Eve are equally anxious. Christopher is up early as well preparing for the meeting when he notices his missing watch.

As it turns out, Gracie stole the watch during their meeting and is now inspecting it over breakfast. Yancy not only happens to be there, but he recognizes the watch. After brief introductions, Gracie will surprisingly admit to stealing the watch from what she claims to be a very bad man. Rather than surprise, Yancy's response is that he plans on making that bad man and his wife pay for their sins. Yancy will eventually excuse himself to get another coffee and Gracie will practically vanish, leaving him to turn his attention to returning Rosa's earlier text.

By the time Rosa receives Yancy's text she's viewed the property and is in the process of convincing Christopher and Eve to come to Miami to get the cash down payment. It turns out it doesn't take much convincing and several minutes later she and Yancy are celebrating the victory with Neville and Dawnie over dinner.

Summary:	Yancy learns that his plan has gone awry, leaving Rosa in danger. Eve and the Dragon Queen have a reckoning.

The episode begins with Andrew Yancy and Doctor Rosa Campesino saying goodbye to Neville Stafford and Dawnie after an evening of drinks and good food. After finding Ya-Ya hiding at Mrs. Martin's house, Gracie/The Dragon Queen will say a similar goodbye, with much different intentions. Ya-Ya refuses to join her while ominously warning Gracie that the island will never let her leave. Gracie appears bound and determined.

Yancy and Rosa spend the morning on the beach discussing their prospective futures when she receives word that Eve and Christopher/Nick Stripling want her to accompany them on a flight to Miami today to get the money in order to get ahead of the oncoming storm. At the same time, Bonnie Witt tests the relationship that he's begun developing with a much younger guard, Tomas Martinez. At the moment, he's not completely wrapped around her finger but it's only a matter of time because she uses him to escape sometime later.

Ya-Ya finds a possible new protégé, in Lulu during a visit at Nachline Swaine's gravesite. At nearly the same time, Gracie's encounter with an Airport Security Guard proves Ya-Ya's earlier premonition true.

Rosa has just arrived at the Stripling's house as Neville and Yancy put the finishing touches on boarding up Dawnie's house. Rosa attempts to speed up the process by continually reminding Eve of the impending storm, but Eve is insistent on a toast. Right after Rosa sends Yancy a text confirmation text that everything is going as planned; she learns that Eve is stalling because she's seen the photo at the barn with her, Yancy, and K.J. Claspers. Rosa attempts to leave but Egg is there to prevent that.

Assuming that they have plenty of time to kill, Yancy and Neville make a stop at the bar before their fishing trip. It doesn't take Yancy long to spot Gracie and invite himself to join her. Just as quickly their conversation goes from joking to serious when Gracie tells Neville that he won't be getting his money back. Neville throws her for a loop when he claims there is no need because the curse worked. Yancy will be the next to be taken by surprise when the conversation leads to him learning that Eve knows the truth about Rosa. Yancy leaves the bar on Neville's bicycle in panic. As he races towards the Stripling's house, a phone call to Rosa reveals that Egg has moved her offsite to what appears to be a small work trailer. Egg also calls Christopher to alert him that Yancy is on his way.

Not long after arriving at the Striplings, Yancy finds himself being held at gunpoint by Christopher. Despite the one arm, he wields the shotgun adeptly and even manages to cock it with ease. The noise however leads to major problems because it alerts Eve, who wants no part in cleaning pieces of Yancy out of the bedroom. Yancy will use the opportunity to grab Tilly. This buys Yancy enough time to allow Neville to get into position and stab Christopher from behind with a fishing rod.

While Yancy and Neville escape to Dawnie's house, Gracie has a strange encounter with a drunk female at the bar who is later suggested to be an apparition of her mother. Shortly after returning to Dawnie's house, Rosa shows up with a wild story about how she escaped, which in no small part can be attributed to the gun that Yancy snuck into her purse before she met with Eve. After a very brief strategy session, it becomes clear that they need to get off the island and Yancy apparently already has a plan in store and asks for a ride.

Just a few minutes later at Andre's Fritters Yancy's plan is revealed as KJ Claspers. Although he is in no position to negotiate, KJ agrees to fly them off the island if they take another photo with him. It isn't until Eve manages to remove the fishing rod from Christopher's back that she realizes how bad the wound is and that she needs help. This sends her in search of Gracie, but instead, she finds Ya-Ya who has just found the rebuilt altar.

The episode ends with Eve finding Gracie retransformed into the Dragon Queen.
