Summary:	A group of diverse, down-on-their-luck people attempt to change their lives by participating in a potentially life-ruining reality dance show, featuring a modern reimagining of "Swan Lake".

The episode begins with a flashback to seven years ago. Gabby Lewis helps to choreograph a dance with her very-obviously-gay boyfriend, Justin. Unfortunately Gabby soon learns about his secret that evening when Gabby walks in on him kissing another guy. And if that wasn't enough, the boy Gabby had sex with before didn't use protection... so she's pregnant.

Fast forward to present day and we catch a glimpse of our main character Gabby, hurrying her son along to school before arriving at her office job. She's just been promoted to office manager too, but it's not exactly an enthralling career prospect.

Meanwhile, Mike is stuck in the past, with the stinging blow of his divorce still hitting hard. After being fired from spin class, he finds himself determined to try and make more of his life.

Finally we have Julia, who's struggling to keep her nose above the water in the wake of other influencers. Her sponsorships are resting precariously on a knife-edge and her husband isn't exactly supportive, especially given they haven't had sex in over six months.

All three of these characters stumble upon a new dance competition called The Big Leap. They're doing a rendition of Swan Lake but the entire contest is laid out like a proper talent show.

Gabby doesn't want to go alone though, determined to try and convince Justin to join her. They haven't spoken since that party seven years back, back but it takes Gabby dancing in the middle of a bowling alley to convince him to join her.

The only trouble is, there are thousands of others who have decided to get involved too. Packed inside the stuffy auditorium, their flamboyant host confirms that this isn't an elimination contest but there will be cuts. 20 people will be chosen to be part of this Big Leap production.

The auditions are absolutely hilarious, with Spiderman, awkwardly romantic twins and more competing together. In the midst of all this though are a number of others that get through — including a sex worker. When Justin and Gabby compete, Gabby slips right at the death of their routine which causes her to be dropped. Justin though, flies through to the next round.

Outside, drama ensues between Mike and his ex wife, which is hurriedly recorded by the hungry producers outside. While this intimate moment is recorded, Julia and her husband have friction in their relationship too. The latter is unhappy with Julia broadcasting their entire life online.

The next day, Gabby approaches the judges and manages to bag herself another chance. That comes in the form of teaching a disgraced football player how to dance. If she can do that, she'll be allowed back on the show.

Reggie and Gabby have great chemistry together, with the former helping to give Gabby praise and encouraging her to do a lift. Gabby though is worried about her weight but Reggie does a great job making her feel better. Unfortunately he's also a bit of a loose cannon, which is clear to see when a couple of guys trash-talk him outside, prompting Reggie to beat them up.

Still, it doesn't stop them from making it on stage and doing their audition together. The judges are shocked, especially when Reggie actually lifts her up. Rapturous applause breaks out as Gabby struggles to hold back tears. Behind the scenes, executive producer Nick decides to do everything he can to figure out who Gabby is. She's the star of the show and he's going to make it so.

Summary: With auditions beginning for the lead roles, tensions rise as the contestants vie for the same parts. Gabby confronts Nick about his purposeful manipulation of the show. Mike accidentally reveals a huge secret to Nick and the producers.

The episode begins in 2019 with alarm bells wailing. Nick is out at sea shooting a perilous game that looks set to end in disaster. The network want him to stop shooting but Nick is adamant that they can continue filming, chalking it up to added drama.

Well, fast forward to present day and Nick comes under fire when a massive lawsuit is launched against him. Still, that doesn't stop him from pressing ahead with this Swan Lake production.

All of our characters show up at the studio, with the cameras rolling as they prepare to shoot the first day's big reveal for the judges. With Nick directing traffic, interviews help to exude exposition about Swan Lake's story, confirming that this is your classic love triangle, involving a white and black swan. Nick though needs drama on top of this, which stems from the contestants he's chosen.

That drama comes in the form of the contestants and pent-up drama each feel with one another. Justin worries that he's not good enough while Mike is the focal point for Nick's steely focus, given he's going through a divorce. However, Nick manages to convince Mike to open up about how he cheated on his ex-wife, under the pretense that they're not filming. Only, they very clearly are.

Speaking of marriage, Julia's starts to fall apart. After an earlier quip in the morning about his addiction to porn, Nick sneaks upstairs with the camera crew and overhears Julia and Kevin hash it out, with the latter admitting that he doesn't love her and wants to leave and stay in a hotel.

This sex chatter spills across to the gang at Swan Lake, and in particular with the girls. Given Raven is a stripper and spends her life working in the sex trade, this inevitably brings up some tensions with Julia. That is, until she tells Raven that she's ruining marriages and storms out.

Gabby meanwhile, is invited out to dinner with Reggie in the near-future. Although she's over the moon, Gabby comes crashing down when she shows up at Reggie's trailer in the morning. Unfortunately she walks in on Britney giving him oral. Out of all the people to comfort her, Nick is the one who shows and encourages Gabby to focus on the dancing... and revenge.

Another person struggling with their dancing is Justin. However, Simon shows up to help engage in more elegant moves. There's definitely some chemistry between them too, although we'll have to wait and see how that develops over time.

All of this crescendos into the rehearsals, where everyone puts on a great show. After, all of our characters await what parts they've been given.

The part of The Queen goes to Julia. Reggie plays The Wizard while the Prince goes to Claude. The Black Swan role goes to Simon while the White Swan role is bestowed upon Britney. The rest of the roles are back-up dancers, except for Gabby.

In fact, Gabby is given the role of understudy. She's going to learn every single role and take over for anyone who can't perform. Why? Because everyone loves an underdog story and Nick is determined to put her through her paces.

As the episode comes to a close, Julia opens up the webcam site that Kevin has been frequenting... and realizes it's the one which Raven uses.

Summary:	Monica comes face-to-face with her past when the contestants head to Chicago to watch a performance of "Swan Lake," performed by her old ballet company. Meanwhile, Nick digs deeper into Justin's family issues and makes a bold move for the sake of the show. Then, tensions continue to grow between Gabby and Brittney, and Paula leans on Mike when she starts to feel vulnerable.

The episode begins with the final dress rehearsal of the Black Swan performance. We're in the past and Monica's dreams of becoming the White Swan are shattered when she hurts her leg and loses her big shot. This explains Monica's icy attitude.

Back in the present, Nick directs traffic behind the camera, giving Wayne his lines as he informs the gang that they're heading to Chicago to perform part of the ballet for the prestigious Chicago Ballet. They're also going to be competing for a lavish sports car too, just to up the stakes a bit.

Monica is outraged and heads up to confront Nick. Only, he makes sure the rest of them can hear when Monica berates and puts them down in Nick's office.

However, this only sparks the fire that's already brewing for many of these characters. They're all going through a degree of drama, with Justin encouraged to talk about his past, including how his Dad kicked him out when he found out the boy was gay. There's some deep emotional scars here, and enough for Nick to pry open with both hands.

Nick and the team approach Justin's dad, learning about his love for all things football. According to him, he's more annoyed about Justin turning off the big game to announce he's gay than anything else. Well, Nick encourages him to show up at the ballet... sweetening the deal by mentioning Reggie will be there too.

The ballet goes ahead and all the gang watch the Chicago team pull off a beautiful performance. Unfortunately this has the knock-on effect of making them all self-conscious and worried about their own dancing.

When the performance finishes, all the team head out, talking amongst themselves until Monica and Wayne arrive with grim news. It turns out Claude's VISA has expired and he's going to be kicked out the show with immediate effect. Only, with Claude gone then the understudy needs to step up — Gabby! However, Monica decides to give it to Justin instead.

When Gabby leaves, disappointed that she's been messed about like this, Reggie follows and decides to try and make her feel better. Together, they crash a dentist convention and start dancing, drinking at the open bar. They have a great time and eventually it ends with Reggie pulled back into his hotel room with Brittney and the rest of the girls.

Meanwhile, Julia ends up talking with Raven on the webcam site after Kevin refuses to pick up his phone. It turns out he's actually been paying for Raven's tuition too, which completely crushes Julia.

In the morning, the dress rehearsal for the big performance in front of the Chicago Ballet goes ahead. After a night of heavy drinking, Brittney is in no shape to perform, especially after she throws up in her bag. That means Gabby manages to make it in as the White Swan! Unfortunately everything goes awry just after Gabby takes to the stage. Justin's dad shows up, distracting Justin from his moves. Thankfully though, Gabby nails her role with perfection.

After, with the cameras rolling, Justin and his Dad hash it out, where everything goes to pot. It turns out Justin's Mum was actually in love with her best friend, Tracy. This explains why Justin has resentment against his Dad, believing that he abandoned her when she needed him most.

However, the truth is Justin has always felt like the odd one out in the shadows of his brothers being so into sports. He just wants to be accepted by his Dad, and given his interview on-camera after, it's clear that he's proud of Justin but doesn't have the words to say it.

That evening, the gang all get ready, singing and dancing along the corridors. There's a beautiful one-shot sequence here, eventually crescendoing into them all together in the hallway, ready for the big show. Bravo to the team for filming this, it really is beautifully constructed.

When the gang do finally make it back home, Gabby is the one who wins the car. However, Julia's money woes continue as she learns that Kevin has been spending more of her money — and he's currently in Costa Rica.

Summary: With the release of the first trailer for the show and a promo shoot in the works, the contestants all air their grievances over what was caught on tape. Wayne has a run-in with someone from his past who wants to use him to gain access to the show, and Nick is distracted by his visiting daughter. Meanwhile, Mike enlists Paula's help to make his ex-wife jealous and Gabby tries a dating app.

Flashback to Wayne at a gay nightclub making eyes at a go-go dancer, Neil, who he takes home with him.

He tells his agent that he'll produce a show since he wasn't accepted to work at a dance company. He comes up with the Big Leap and celebrates with another line of drugs.

He tells the cameras that he's been sober for three years.

Gabby is at the pediatrician's office and calls Sam's father to ask if he has a history of asthma. The receptionists watch the trailer for the show which has been released, and they are fangirling over Gabby.

Mike fixes Paige's oven, but Patrick comes in and thanks him. She inquires about Paula and Mike lies and says they're dating and they'll have dinner with them. Monica is still taking steroids and pain killers to dance enough to show off cherezo Nick's daughter, Henry is in town and will be moving there to stay with him for a while.

Gabby gets accepted on a celebrity dating app which makes Brittney upset.

Mike tells Paula about the date, and she agrees.

Justin: Who's Neil? Monica: The Devil Incarnate.

Simon is upset at what Justin said on the promo. So is Raven because Julia called her a homewrecker.

Wayne's ex-husband Neil shows up.

Zack: Nick, great news, TV Guide, a publication that nobody reads but everybody sees in at the grocery store, is considering us for their cover.

Gabby: Dating apps are wild. They're like these video games where you win self-esteem.

Wayne goes out to dinner with Neil and now says he wants 15% of ownership of the show because he gave Wayne the name for it.

Gabby has a date with a baseball player and Reggie is worried about it.

Paula gets in over her head at the dinner with her lying.

Wayne: I thought that you said drugs were the problem. Neil: Cocaine is not a drug just a little dessert that tastes like gasonline.

Gabby shows up to her date with Aaron and he has a series of groupies with him and wants to take a pic for the gram.

Paige gets bitter about Mike and cuts him down at dinner but Paula defends him.

Monica and Justin dance together and have fun, but when her knee gives out on her and she falls, she takes it out on him.

Simon: Ridulous swan coming through. Justin: Dude can we just alk about this? Simon: Sure let's talk, let's talk about how you need to check your femme phobia. Justin: Ok so I am a homophobe, I'm a closet case and a feem phone. YOU want to throw anything else at me? Simon: No that about covers it. Justin: Fine, yes I judged your tutu, but does that make me a bigot? Simon: I have been called ridiculous my entire life, but for that to come from another gay man and someone that I respect, that sucks, Justin? What did I do to you, what is your problem with me? Justin: My God, no, I suck, it's me, I'm sorry. I don't have any problem with you. I like you. It was the first day, and I'm working through this stuff. I shouldn't ahve said that stuff about you, and I didn't realize how loaded it was. Hey, please don't hate me. Simon: I don't hate you. That aw a good apoogy, and loo, I'm sorry that I called you a closet case that's not okay.

Simon and Justin talk and make up.

Henri: I just don't like it when you bag on mom. The divorce was hard on everybody. Not just you. Nick: I know. Hey hen, Hey look at me, I know it wasn't easy. I know that. It's just that if we're talking about our feelings, it's important that you love me better. Hen: You're really immature.

Mike realizes that he may not want to get back together with Paige and he and Paula share a moment before they kiss and head to her house to have sex.

Raven: What if him leaving is actually a gift. Julia: I'm not going to be therapized by a booty dancer who is trained to spin around on a pole with grease in God knows what. Raven: Bitch I am done with you bringing - Julia: don't you call me a bitch! Raven: For your information, I trained in ballet. Julia: You trained in ballet, Rave: I did, me, for a while. Classical dance was my first love. But I wasn't the best at it, and ultimately I gave it up because I needed teh money and stripping pays the bills.

Julia talkes to Raven at her job hoping to find out where her husband is and they make a breakthrough in their relationship.

Neil apologizes to Wayne and then seduces him.

Reggie is home with Gabby and talking. He tells her that he came out to save her from Aaron. Sam wakes up and they all watch TV together.

Julia shares with Raven why she stopped dancing, she lost both of her best friends, watched them die of AIDS in the 80s.

Nick and Henri take Monica to the hospital and then he has to attend to Wayne calling him and needing help getting out of the room and past Neil and drugs. Nick goes to pick him up and brings Henri with him.

Mike is on cloud nine and dancing in the streets the morning after his night with Paula. She finds his wallet and sees that he worked at the factory that she fired him from.

Herni: Toalk to me dad. What are you so afraid of? Nick: What am I so afraid of, I'm afraid that we'll drift apart nd that next you'll be in high school and then you graduate and then we'll onlly tlak on father's ay and that's all because you went to England for six months when you were 13. That's what "m so afraid of. You mean more to me than anything Hen. Henri: I'll be back for Swan Lake. I won't miss it for anything.

Nick talks to Henry about what she wants. and she tells him she wants to go to England.

Gabby's mother says she doesn't like Reggie, and Gabby tells her that Reggie is a good guy and she may even love him just as Reggie returns with doughnuts and overhears.

Monica and Wayne make up.

Monica: I knew it was stupid, but it felt so good to dance. They operated on me knee, Wayne, the doctors said that I may not be able to walk or dance the same way again.

Henri: See the pretty lady, she's hiding something. Nick: Good eye, kid. Henry: What are you going to do? Nick: that's simple, we tell her secret to the man she loves.

Summary: With the premiere of the show only a day away, Brittney and Simon get a surprise visit from their overbearing mother. Gabby and Brittney find common ground, while Justin and Simon grow closer. Meanwhile, the network tasks Nick with pulling together a live after-show and the men of "The Big Leap" help Reggie navigate his romantic life.

The episode opens with Simon and Brittney preparing for a performance with their mother hyping them up. They get second place, which isn't enough for their mother who berates them.

Brittney and Gabby dance together and pick a song they'll perform to for a package.

Justin and Simon rehearse together, and when the sexual tension between them becomes too much, they practice again and kiss.

Brittney and Simon's mother interrupts things and reminds the twins that they are a packaged deal.

Tonya wants Brittney to continue trying to "bag" Reggie because he's an NFL player, and she wants things to stop between Simon and Justin.

Zack asks Nick to make the aftershow live despite all of his crew members telling him no.

Reggie talks to Mike and his friends about the note who wrote Gabby and how he never heard them back.

Paula tries to help Julia get her kids there for premiere night.

Aly gets JLO to host. but she drops out.

Gabby invites Brittney over for pizza night at her house.

Tonya tries to bribe Nick for more screentime for the twins.

Monica and Wayne have to prep all the contestants for their first time in front of cameras live.

Simon is avoiding Justin and diminishing their kiss.

Brittney and Gabby realize they have things in common and bond when Brittney is at Gabby's house. She speaks about some of the bad memories she has because of her mother's poor decisions.

Joel tells Mike that Paige is pregnant, and he reminds him to get over things and just find happiness with Paula.

Brittney finds the letter that Reggie left for Gabby and leaves.

Brittney tells her mother about Reggie's letter and what she learned about Gabby and her teacher.

Nick gets knocked out and the live show is off to a bumpy start.

Simon reminds his mother not to do anything wrong.

Simon goes off script to talk about how good Justin is and Brittney gives Gabby the cold shoulder. Paula downplays any romance with Mike while he alludes to possibilities.

Brittney shares that Gabby got pregnant by her high school teacher. Everyone is appalled by her behavior.

A commotion starts when people start throwing things.

Zack is excited that the show is trending and everyone is talking about it.

Jessica gives Brittney the gift that Gabby had for her and it's the picture Sam colored with her. Simon sees the note and wonders if that's why Brittney did what she did. Brittney blames it on her mom and says it's them against the world, and Simon is disgusted and declines.

Gina tells Gabby how much she loves her and they share a moment.

Simon apologizes to Gabby and gives her the note from Reggie.

Simon goes to Justin's house to apologize for pushing him away. Justin forgives him and recognizes that he has stuff too. They kiss and head inside presumably to make love.

Mike goes to Paula to apologize and wants to pursue a relationship with her, but she insists that they're still friends. She may have gotten news from her doctor about her cancer and is pushing Mike away.

Gabby shows up at Reggie's door. She asks him if he meant the letter, and he says he does. They kiss.

Summary: After the shocking reveal on the premiere night after-show, Gabby works with Nick to try to get revenge and create some drama for the show. Reggie tries to get back in with his former coach, so that he can have another shot at playing in the NFL, and Monica visits a shaman. Meanwhile, Paula gets some concerning news about her health, causing her to distance herself from the others, and Simon and Justin try to navigate their relationship.

The episode opens with flashbacks of Reggie as a kid wanting to be a football player and him later buying his parents a new house/mansion.

Gabby and Reggie have super hot sex. He tells her afterward that he's meeting up with his old coach to see if he can play again.

Brittney attempts to apologize to Gabby in the parking lot, but Gabby isn't having it. She storms into Nick's office and says that she wants revenge. Nick is excited and all for it.

Reggie's former coach tells Reggie that they used his antics as a reason to get rid of him, but his playing had gone downhill for a while

Paula meets her doctor and they get an emergency biopsy as it appears as though her cancer may be back and she has to act fast.

Simon and Justin arrive at the studio at the same time and Justin says they have to be discreet. He ignores a phone call from his brother.

Gabby and Nick hatch their plan and Nick warns her that she's putting everything on the line and could lose it all, but Gabby doesn't care.

Brittney is shunned by the other dancers

Mike asks Paula why she changed her mind about them. Julia notices that something is off with Paula.

Monica goes to the guy Frank that Jessica tells her about and gets high off of mushrooms.

Nick's idea for the fake prize in the challenge competition he and Gabby come up with is a lifetime supply of shrimp.

Paula leaves to day drink and Julia invites herself.

Paula confides in Julia after making Julia dance on the bar. She doesn't want to get tested but wants to go shopping with Julia's kids.

Monica announces to everyone that she's sleeping with Nick.

The competition is underway and everyone dances. But the mermaid shocks by putting on a whole grand performance with shrimp. It's enough to outshine Gabby, thus she'll lose.

Gabby gives Miriam her car in exchange for the challenge ticket and challenges Brittney for the role. The loser has to go home.

Reggie finds out that his neck injury from a car accident means he can't play again. The doctor doesn't want to clear him.

Julia takes Paula to the hospital to get checked out. She leaves to get Mike so that he's there for Paula when she wakes up.

They do the dance battle with all the effects and things get heated.

Monica has an epiphany while watching them dance, but she chooses Gabby to win and Brittney to go home.

Earl Jr tells Justin that their father had an accident. Justin has to leave to take care of his family. Monica is upset.

Brittney may take his role.

Mike goes to Paula and tells her that he loves her and wants to be there for her. She tells him she loves him back, and he climbs in the hospital bed with her.

Summary:	With the show down a few essential cast members, Wayne decides to hold an old-fashioned lock down to bring everyone together. Justin, who is being forced to help his father in his time of need, faces much-needed reflection on their rocky relationship, and Reggie tries his best to navigate his new situation with a cocky rookie. Meanwhile, Paula figures out how to move forward with her health and Nick and Monica work on their relationship.

The episode opens with a young Justin breakdancing with a group and earning money. He uses his cut on his mom and when he gets home, he dances with her.

Justin's brother lied to their father about Justin needing to be there to work instead of acknowledging that they need help.

Reggie is leaving and they throw him a going away party, but the cameras will still follow him.

Simon thinks he's the only one keeping the production together, and Travell and Adon aren't impressed with Brittney and are annoyed Aja is the wizard now and left them.

Wayne is making the crew stay locked in together for a sleepover to help boost morale.

Linus, the boom, gives Julia a gluten-free snack and bonds with her.

Mike plans a trip with Paula when she's done with chemo. He's super optimistic about her beating cancer again.

Reggie has a tough time during practice and his competition is well-loved by everyone.

Nick and Monica have to sit through HR because of her announcement about them sleeping together.

Bernadette, the HR lady basically tells them she's rooting for them and that they should bask in their relationship.

Reggie goes out with the team.

Nick talks to Paula about her diagnosis and if she's scared or not. It seems like there is more to her prognosis than she's sharing.

Monica comes in to have sex with Nick and it prompts him to ask her out for dinner. She declines. She wants things to just be casual and he wants to call them off because he's tired of her making all of the rules.

Brittney locks Wayne up in the stairwell so they can all get a break from him.

They get Nick's credit card to get booze for their party. They go to the gas mart and dance and have fun. Travell and Paula realize they have something in common when Travell joined the show since he missed teaching kids dance because of COVID. Camron was an ICU nurse who wanted to live her life

Simon calls up Justin, but Justin has to get off the phone to help his father.

Linus and Julia dance outside and he asks her out again, but she declines.

Justin and his father talk about Justin's mother and bond.

Marissa, a girl at the bar Reggie used to know kisses him. He declines and tells her about Gabby and sends her home, but the cameras don't catch him leaving because of an obstructed view and thinks that he went with her.

Paula tells Nick that she's dying.

Julia asks Linus out.

Monica goes to see Earl and tells him how important Justin is to her and brings Mike friends to help Earl with the business while Justin dances.

He dances in celebration and thinks about his mom.

Summary: With the future of Paula's health staring them in the face, she and Mike decide to take a giant leap in their relationship. Nick deals with some lingering hesitation about being vulnerable on camera, and Justin gets the opportunity to meet with a Broadway director, which causes tension in his relationship with Simon. Meanwhile, Julia's husband, Kevin, makes a shocking return.

In 2015, Mike's father was passing away from an illness. While his family was in the room during the last rites for his father, he was in the kitchen organizing things. His sister went to get him, calling him out on always being in denial when people pass away and avoiding it, and they both miss their father's passing.

Paula and Mike talk about her dying while shopping. They go over her bucket list. He agrees to things he can help her with, and also says that he'll marry her too. She proposes to him in the middle of the store and he agrees. Mike remembers he's still legally married.

Mike and Paula tell Nick they're getting married. Nick has 24 hours to do the wedding and rush Mike's divorce.

Nick hears how much she's passionate about marrying Mike and promises it'll be the best day.

Monica's ex-girlfriend, Annie, a Broadway director stops by to visit and Monica wants Justin to audition for Annie's play.

Julia heads out to prepare for Paula's bachelor party and it's an unofficial date with Linus. They stop at a fro-yo shop where she sees that Kevin is working there and never told her he was back.

Nick becomes a Bridezilla mom trying to get the perfect wedding for Paula, and he wants Wayne to officiate, but he refuses.

Paula wants Nick to officiate which puts him into the show instead of behind it, something Nick isn't comfortable with.

Mike gets emotional when trying to choose rings. They get Paula a stripper for her bachelorette party. Julia breaks down crying because of how sad it is. Paula talks to everyone.

Mike is having a hard time, but his friends come to talk to him. He breaks down crying when they talk to them.

Nick tries to get the wedding approved. He makes a deal with someone to get the approval after getting denied.

Nick has to convince Paige to sign the divorce papers.

Nick officiates and the wedding ceremony is perfect.

They have a dance party for Mike and Paula at the reception.

Jessica insists on showing Gabby the footage of Reggie's kiss with another woman.

Kevin shows up at the reception in his yogurt shirt and Julia explodes on him.

Anna wants Justin to tour Europe in the show for six months just as Simon makes up with him.

Nick laments that he can't save Paula.

Gabby talks to Reggie about what happens and leaves with Sam.

Mike and Paula have a sweet night together.

Summary:	With only two days to go until the big finale, the cast preps for their final performance. Nick must make the hard decision of following his brain or his heart, and Julia is stuck in a tough position when Kevin tries to win her back. Meanwhile, Justin and Simon try to navigate a new challenge in their relationship and Brittney works on standing up to her mom.

A montage of Paula and Mike spending time together and leading up to Christmas. Paula gets progressively sicker.

Paula collapses and the EMTs come to get her. Mike screams that they were supposed to have more time.

It's two days until the finale of the series, a week after Paula collapsed, she died.

Gabby is back at her old job because she needs health insurance.

Kevin is still trying to prove himself while Julia and Linus are together.

Nick doesn't want to do anything to commemorate Paula because he thinks it's too sad.

Reggie is still pissed off at everyone for showing Gabby the footage.

Tensions and emotions are high at the end of Swan Lake and everyone questions why the show has to be the way that it is.

Monica gives Gabby the go ahead to choreograph something new.

Justin and Monica encourage her to get the credit she deserves for it.

They bring Mike back to the show and show him a video of Paula who said it was her last request for him. He agrees.

Zach tells Nick that someone has to get eliminated during the show even though it's two days left.

The Twins' mother is back. She proposes that Brittney join her on Whorelando, a mother/daughter dating show.

Nick is having a panic attack because he's still mourning Paula and doesn't know how to do it properly. Monica talks some sense into him.

Zach wants them to announce who is going home and Nick decides that it's him and he's boycotting. He asks if anyone wants to join him, and the others do.

People at the presser for Reggie after the game he lost ask him questions about Gabby and hype him up enough to go after her again.

Julia has to go to the school because her daughter Olivia painted a picture on the school building.

Nick talks to his daughter about his feelings.

Brittney assumes that she's been throwing up because of her nerves but it's because she's pregnant.

The lights go out and Nick has another serious panic attack.

Summary:	When a massive blackout threatens to stop the finale from airing, the whole cast has to band together to light up the stage. Reggie attempts a rapprochement with Gabby, while Nick works to convince the network that this show is something special. Meanwhile, the rest of the cast deals with nerves over their final performance and Brittney gets a shocking surprise.

Everyone talks to the cameras and recalls how the show went wrong after the blackout Allan started by plugging in a Christmas tree.

Nick finds out that Aja is an electrician and she and Mike both worked to get the electricity going again.

Brittney jumps at going to get flashlights so she can head to the drug store with her brother to get a pregnancy test. She tells Simon that she's pregnant.

Aja and Mike don't get the lights working and Nick spazzes out even though he claims he was the only one who stayed calm.

Raven is upset that her mother didn't show up because she doesn't approve of her.

They start the show anyway with the cell phone flashlights and flashlights and Nick knows that it's a disaster in waiting.

Reggie still hasn't shown up yet. Arrives at the last minute.

They start the show with the flashlights and it's actually quite cool. Everyone cheers for Justin and Gabby and boo Brittney.

Aja and Mike got the lights to work.

Kevin leaves some flowers for Julia and Linus notices them and gets caught holding them so she thinks they're from him.

Everyone is shading Reggie when Gabby tells him that she needs him to back off because he distracted her and she already fell while performing.

Nick is inspired by everything and asks Monica to join him for six weeks in a cottage in England when the show is over and she didn't answer him right away.

Simon lets Brittany know that she's pregnant and she doesn't know what to do yet.

Kevin shows up and there's confusion over the flowers but no one believes him and Linus won't correct anything.

Linus and Kevin are in a fight when Julia and Raven return from their dance

Reggie refuses to go out on the stage.

Brittany falls through a trap door, and injures herself.

Justin and Simon argued before going out on stage and claimed they would be having sex with other people which brought the passion to their dance onstage.

But when Justin walks off he falls through the same trap door as Brittany.

Nick overhears Monica talking to Wayne and dismissing going to the countryside with him. He doesn't hear the rest that Wayne calls her out on being in love with Nick, and she does want to go to the countryside.

They figure out that Justin and Brittney are missing, so Wayne tells Monica to suit up and take on the swan role.

House of Lush are celebratory of Monica being an honorary member with them.

Brittany and Justin talk and she admits that she made Simon break up with him.

Mike goes out to dance and doesn't think he can do it, but they show footage of Paula behind him and then all of Paula's students come help him dance.

Julia and Kevin officially agree they're divorcing. Julia talks about her new plans and plans to travel with her daughters to Tokyo, she invites Raven too

Nick takes back his offer and Monica is crushed.

Nick notices the pregnancy test on the receipt.

Gabby talks about how she finally loved herself. During the final performance, Justin was nowhere to be found so Reggie steps in to all the boos.

Reggie confesses to his love to Gabby with a vocal and opinionated audience around and Gabby agrees to coffee.

Justin finally arrives, and he uses the chance to confess his love to Simon. They kiss.

They ended the show with a dance party and Gabby and Reggie kissed.

Paula's lawyer left Mike a notice that she left him everything and he's a millionaire.

Nick lets Brittany know he knows about the pregnancy and he plans to give her a bigger role in season two depending on what she does. He also goes to Gabby and makes her a choreographer which also serves to spite Monica.

Wayne thinks that Nick has grown after the season, but Nick promises that there will be some big surprises in the new season.
