

COPPER Episode Guide

Episodes 001-023

Last episode aired Sunday September 22, 2013

© 2013 www.tv.com

© 2013
www.bbcamerica.co.uk

© 2013 www.tvrage.com

© 2013 blogs.wsj.com

© 2013 tv.yahoo.com

The summaries and recaps of all the Copper episodes were downloaded from <http://www.tv.com> and <http://www.bbcamerica.co.uk> and <http://www.tvrage.com> and <http://blogs.wsj.com> and <http://tv.yahoo.com> and processed through a perl program to transform them in a  $\LaTeX$  file, for pretty printing. So, do not blame me for errors in the text ☺

This booklet was  $\LaTeX$ ed on June 28, 2017 by footstep11 with `create_eps_guide v0.59`

Contents

Season 1	1
1 Surviving Death . . . . .	3
2 Husbands and Fathers . . . . .	5
3 In the Hands of an Angry God . . . . .	9
4 The Empty Locket . . . . .	13
5 La Tempête . . . . .	17
6 Arsenic and Old Cake . . . . .	19
7 The Hudson River School . . . . .	21
8 Better Times Are Coming . . . . .	23
9 A Day to Give Thanks . . . . .	25
10 A Vast and Fiendish Plot . . . . .	27
Season 2	29
1 Home, Sweet Home . . . . .	31
2 Aileen Aroon . . . . .	33
3 The Children of the Battlefield . . . . .	35
4 I Defy Thee to Forget . . . . .	37
5 A Morning Song . . . . .	39
6 To One Shortly to Die . . . . .	41
7 The Hope Too Bright to Last . . . . .	43
8 Ashes Denote That Fire Was . . . . .	45
9 Think Gently of the Erring . . . . .	47
10 The Fine Ould Irish Gentleman . . . . .	49
11 Good Heart and Willing Hand . . . . .	51
12 Beautiful Dreamer . . . . .	53
13 The Place I Called My Home . . . . .	55
Actor Appearances	57

Season One

Surviving Death

Season 1

Episode Number: 1

Season Episode: 1

Originally aired:	Sunday August 19, 2012
Writer:	Tom Fontana, Will Rokos
Director:	Jeff Woolnough
Show Stars:	Kevin Ryan (Detective Francis Maguire), Tom Weston-Jones (Detective Kevin Corcoran), Anastasia Griffith (Elizabeth Haverford), Dylan Taylor (Andrew O'Brien), Kyle Schmid (Robert Morehouse), Franka Potente (Eva Heissen), Ato Essandoh (Dr. Matthew Freeman), Tessa Thompson (Sara Freeman), Ron White (I) (Captain Ciaran Joseph Sullivan), Kiara Glasco (Annie Reilly), David Keeley (Sergeant Padraic Byrnes), Tanya Fischer (Molly Stuart), Rick Roberts (Winfred Haverford), Inga Cadranel (Contessa Popadou), Adrian G. Griffiths (Bill Longin)
Guest Stars:	Max Turnbull (Sailor), Jay Turvey (Blind Man), Craig Warnock (Haverford's Coachman), Timm Zemanek (Penrod Winner), Geoffrey Antoine (Julius), Doug McLeod (II) (Haverford's Butler), Ryan Tilley (Irish Tenor), Adrian Griffin (Morehouse's Butler), Matthew Deslippe (John Reilly), Johnny Larocque (Drunk Coal Peddler), Lachlan Murdoch (Adam / Telegraph Operator), Joe Ring (Upscale Businessman), Beatriz Yuste (Sophie Longin)
Summary:	September 17, 1864. New York City is still recovering from the Draft Riots of 1863. In Five Points, the worst slum in the country, Detective Kevin Corcoran of the New York City Metropolitan Police Department's Sixth Precinct finds himself investigating the murder of a young girl that hits uncomfortably close to home. As the investigation heats up, detectives Corcoran, Francis Maguire, Andrew O'Brien, and old comrade, Doctor Matthew Freeman, must navigate the slums of Five Points and the mansions of Uptown to search for the child's killer.

The scene opens in New York City in 1864. A man watches as he waits inside a shack for someone. A girl hears a revolver and wakes up. He gives her an egg. The stranger asks the girl's name. She says that her name is Annie. She is on the run. A man watches and Annie asks if the stranger would like her to pleasure him. He tells her no and reminds the girl that she is only a child. Suddenly there is a gunshot and the man leaves the protection of the shack. He walks around and comes upon the bank robbers. He is joined by two other Coppers, as they are called. The man kills one of them and tells the others to drop their weapons because they are the police. However, they don't and are killed. Corcoran tells O'Brian and Maguire to get as much as they can before the Sergeant gets there.

Sergeant Burns comes up and Corcoran gives him a nice new pocket watch. Burns dismisses Maguire and calls Corcoran, Boyle, a rude slur. The Captain comes and Burns says that Detective Corcoran stopped them. The Captain congratulates him and tells him to put the money in the wagon. Annie watches and can't believe that Corcoran is a Copper. Later at a bar, it is full of men singing. Corcoran and Maguire go in. Corcoran comes in to visit Eva. He kisses her. In another room, Maguire is 'busy' with a prostitute named Molly and afterward, Molly talks about Corcoran and Eva. She asks if she reminds Corcoran of his wife Ellen. She asks if she will come back to him and Maguire says that Corcoran is his friend and not to talk about his wife the way she is. Maguire apologizes for his behavior and tells her not to talk about Corcoran's wife.

Back in Corcoran's room, Eva gives money for Corcoran's Captain. O'Brien goes into the room and tells them that they have a dead body. Corcoran and O'Brien go to find a dead body in the street. It is Annie. Corcoran takes Annie to Matthew and Sara's house. Matthew is the coroner and a black man, which is bad at these times. Corcoran wants to know how she died. He says that it will cost and says that it will be ready tomorrow. Corcoran gives him $10 to rush it. Sarah comes out and they excuse themselves. Maguire says that they should go to the bar again, but Corcoran wants to go to the docks. The next day, Corcoran and Maguire go to the poor and tell them to alert them if they find a locket. One of the men says that it is the same old story. Julius, the servant, tells Corcoran that he is instructed to meet with Robert Morehouse. He meets him and Winfred, an acquaintance of Morehouse, is there. Morehouse brings up how Corcoran got himself a badge for saving his life. Winfred tells Corcoran that he knows him from boxing and would love to have him as a referee. Morehouse says that the ship that Corcoran always is asking for is docking any day soon.

Later at Matthew's place, Mathew says that the girl raped after she was killed. Corcoran says that she offered to pleasure him the other day. Matthew says that someone cleaned her up and hit her in the head with a hard object. He tells Corcoran that it is moving day and that he can't find out what killed Annie. He thanks Matthew and takes Annie's body. He walks down the street to see Annie in front of his eyes. He looks at the dead body and it is an identical match. He chases her down and shows her the body of the girl. She screams and runs away. The guy who was trying to get with Annie asks him what he is doing. Corcoran says that he is a police officer. Later that evening, Morehouse goes to a whorehouse lead by Madam Contesa. Bill greets him at the door. He goes inside and is welcomed. Morehouse takes off his prosthetic leg.

The next day, O'Brian and Maguire are digging a grave for the girl and bury her. Corcoran says that they need to find Annie and he stops by the grave of his daughter. Corcoran finds Annie and she screams. He tells her that he is not there to hurt her. He takes her to Eva and Molly and she tells them that the girl was her sister, Kate. She says that she escaped from the Contesa and Corcoran asks who the man was. She cries and Eva tells him to leave it alone for now. Morehouse and Winfred talk politics and Winfred's wife, Elizabeth knows what she is talking about. They joke and laugh. Eva tells Corcoran that she will be back in a week and he tells her that she is the only girl he wants. At Matthew's and Sara's house, Matthew says that he has to do something before they leave. He has to do something for Corcoran.

Later that night, Bill tells him that he has no need to come in. Corcoran says that he wants to question the death of a little girl. Bill tells him that she probably had it coming. Corcoran drags Bill's body to an underground area while Matthew tries to find out what the girl was struck with. Corcoran strips Bill of his clothes and beats him for information. He tells him that he didn't kill a girl. Matthew goes to Corcoran later and tells him that Kate was killed with a walking stick. He finds out that Bill is not his guy and apologizes to him. Bill says that they are going to hang him for it anyway. Corcoran goes up to the can maker and he doesn't want to give names. However, when Corcoran puts a gun to his head, he says that it is Winfred's cane. Corcoran gets the cane and Elizabeth sees him take it. Corcoran takes the information to the Captain and he tells him that he and Burns will take over the investigation from now. Burn makes a snide comment and uses the slur, Boyle again. Corcoran walks out thinking that justice has been served.

However, the next day, he gets into Morehouse's place and the Captain says that Bill admitted to killing Kate. Corcoran laughs. Morehouse says that Winfred wanted Corcoran released, but his father saved him. Winfred asks of Annie and Corcoran lies and says that she is in the covenant with the nuns. Corcoran goes to Annie and tells Molly that he needs to be alerted of any interest into Annie. Corcoran goes to visit Bill and he says that it is alright that he is going to hang because he has Liver problems and only has a year to live. Corcoran says that he doesn't like that the wrong man is hanging. He tells Corcoran that he is fine with this. Corcoran gets home to find Elizabeth there. She tells him to promise that Kate's murder will be avenged.

Husbands and Fathers

Season 1

Episode Number: 2

Season Episode: 2

Originally aired: Sunday August 26, 2012
Writer: Will Rokos, Tom Fontana
Director: Jeff Woolnough
Show Stars: Kevin Ryan (Detective Francis Maguire), Tom Weston-Jones (Detective Kevin Corcoran), Anastasia Griffith (Elizabeth Haverford), Dylan Taylor (Andrew O'Brien), Kyle Schmid (Robert Morehouse), Franka Potente (Eva Heissen), Ato Essandoh (Dr. Matthew Freeman), Tessa Thompson (Sara Freeman), Ron White (I) (Captain Ciaran Joseph Sullivan), Kiara Glasco (Annie Reilly), David Keeley (Sergeant Padraic Byrnes), Tanya Fischer (Molly Stuart), Rick Roberts (Winfred Haverford), Inga Cadranel (Contessa Popadou), Adrian G. Griffiths (Bill Longin)
Guest Stars: Matthew Deslippe (John Reilly), Lachlan Murdoch (Adam / telegraph operator), Joe Ring (Upscale Businessman)
Summary: September 21, 1864. Corcoran receives a lead on a figure from his past who may have information about the loss of his family. What he learns does little to ease his mind and only raises more questions. Meanwhile, Annie Reilly's pursuers become brutally violent in their search for the child, forcing Corcoran and his team to come up with a plan for her safety. In the mansions of Uptown New York, Robert Morehouse strives to please his father, Norbert, who wishes to purchase the entire Five Points.

The scene opens with Corcoran and Maguire asking the townspeople about the locket that Corcoran is looking for. He asks them about Tangos McCarthy. Corcoran exits the place and finds Julian, the Morehouse servant waiting for him. He says that Robert is looking for him. Meanwhile Robert and Winnie Haverford are talking about the Irish and how the emancipated slaves are going to flock there. Robert brings up his father being a tyrant. Corcoran gets there to find Winnie Haverford meeting with Robert there.

However, it turns out that Winnie invited him. Winnie asks about Annie and Corcoran doesn't say anything. Winnie tells Corcoran that they are not done, but he says that they are. He leaves and goes to Annie, who is in the hotel with Molly and Maguire. He tells Annie that they will guard her until they could find another place to hide her. He leaves and Maguire tries to get fresh with Molly. She tells him that she will 'reward' him later and says that they have to keep Annie safe first.

Corcoran goes to the Nunnery and Sister Agnes Clare tells him that he needs to pray for help. He ignores that and leaves. At the Morehouse home, Robert tells Winnie that they will do something. Norton, Robert's father comes in and finds out that Robert cut his profit by thirds. He tells Winnie that he wants to buy Five Points and leaves. Robert tells him that Norton feels that they are going to have a benefit to buy Five Points and put who they want to live there. Robert says that they need someone else to buy the properties with their money. In another town, Mathew Freeman calls out to his wife Sarah and tells her that she needs to be able to go outside. She says that she saw a white man and got scared. He sees that she has a gun and tells her that she can protect him with her pistol. She hugs him. At the church, the reverend thanks the Haverfords for rebuilding the church for the many black children. Winnie tells the Reverend that he feels good helping. Elizabeth doesn't see it that way.

Later, Molly goes up to Corcoran and tells him that Tangos is in town. That night, Corcoran sees someone breaking into Tangos' home. His wife yells at him and Corcoran is there to beat him up. They fight and his wife yells for Corcoran to kill him. Corcoran asks about his wife and he says that he didn't do anything with it. He says that Helen, Corcoran's wife, left with a man. He says that he would have killed his wife too if he had killed Maggie, Corcoran's daughter. The next day, Maguire asks Corcoran if he believes Tangos. He says that he does and that he made sense. Norton meets with Winnie and asks about the progress of the purchase of the church. He tells Norton that he is close and will buy it for $100,000. Robert comes in drunk and asks Winnie how the search for Annie is going. Winnie tells him that he would give him a beating if he wasn't Norton's son. At the bar, a man comes up to Molly asking for Corcoran. She has him pay her for information, but tells him that she doesn't know where he went to. She asks if he wants a kiss and he tells her that he doesn't want one.

Robert and Elizabeth talk in the hall and she asks about Corcoran's past. Robert tells her that he lost his wife and daughter. He is still searching for his wife. Robert suggests that Elizabeth buy the church under the nose of his father and her husband. She likes the idea. Corcoran is reading a letter when three men come into his room. They ask where Annie is and he doesn't tell. They beat him up and break his leg. Corcoran manages to stab the leader in the thigh. He grabs the gun and tells them to get out. The next morning, O'Brian and Maguire get to Corcoran's and he calls for Freeman. Maguire goes to his home and breaks in. Sarah hides behind the curtain and is ready to shoot when Freeman comes in. He tells him that Corcoran needs him. He gets there and helps him with his leg.

The man who asked Molly where Corcoran was comes up and introduces himself as John Riley, Annie's father. He comes in and Corcoran doesn't give him correct information on where Annie by telling him that he doesn't know where she is. He tells O'Brian that he could take him to his grave. Maguire points out that Riley is a liar from the drink he took of the alcohol that he has never had before. Elizabeth goes to the Reverend and says that she wants to surprise her husband. He agrees. Corcoran asks Annie about Riley and she tells him that Riley is her husband and says that when she was 10-years-old, Riley says that he can marry her. She says that the Contessa said that the men would be nice. She cries and tells him that she doesn't want to go back to Riley. He says that he promises that he won't. Corcoran says that they need to move Annie. She says that she will help him and tells him that he needs to kill Winnie. She reaches on his private parts and he says that he doesn't want her to do that, but doesn't tell her to stop.

Later, O'Brian tells Riley that he is her husband and that he forced her to marry him. They tell him to get out of town. At the Contessa, Molly tells her that Corcoran told her to send her there. The Contessa pays Molly $100 for Annie. At the Morehouse home, Norton tells Winnie that he failed him. He tells him to leave. Robert asks him if he is having a bad night. Robert goes into his father's office and tells him that he was the one who bought the church for only $90,000. He offers him a cigar. Freeman gives Corcoran some medicine for his broken leg. At the Contessa, she gets Annie ready to 'service' a man. Maguire tells the police sergeant that there is a death of a rich woman. Winnie gets to the Contessa's and enters the room where Annie is. He starts to undress when suddenly, Corcoran tackles him. He tells Annie to kill Winnie. She does. Annie gets the Contessa and Corcoran stabs her too. He tells Annie that this will all be in the past. He jumps in the back of a cart where Freeman is there. He takes Corcoran home.

The Sergeant and Maguire are going to the home when they hear Annie crying. They find Winnie and the Contessa dead. Freeman gives Corcoran more medicine and leaves. Corcoran hallucinates Maggie is in front of him. The Sergeant comes to Corcoran's home with the doctor and says that the Captain believes that someone had to do something with the death of Winnie and the Contessa. However, they rule out Corcoran when the doctor says that he wouldn't be walking. They leave and Maguire and O'Brian dance. They laugh. Elizabeth is in mourning and Robert tells Corcoran that Winnie is dead. He says that Elizabeth is going to adopt Annie. Maguire says that he needs a 'proper' place in society and gestures to his privates. They leave Robert and Corcoran alone and Robert says that he knows that Corcoran killed Winnie, but he won't tell.

However, he warns him that Norton thinks that Corcoran is too smart. He tells him that Freeman, Corcoran and he need to be careful. Corcoran hallucinates that his daughter is there by his side.

In the Hands of an Angry God

Season 1
Episode Number: 3
Season Episode: 3

Originally aired: Sunday September 02, 2012
Writer: Will Rokos, Tom Fontana, Frank Pugliese
Director: Clark Johnson
Show Stars: Kevin Ryan (Detective Francis Maguire), Tom Weston-Jones (Detective Kevin Corcoran), Anastasia Griffith (Elizabeth Haverford), Dylan Taylor (Andrew O'Brien), Kyle Schmid (Robert Morehouse), Franka Potente (Eva Heissen), Ato Essandoh (Dr. Matthew Freeman), Tessa Thompson (Sara Freeman), Ron White (I) (Captain Ciaran Joseph Sullivan), Kiara Glasco (Annie Reilly), David Keeley (Sergeant Padraic Byrnes), Tanya Fischer (Molly Stuart)
Guest Stars: Eli Ham (George), Matthew MacFadzean (Jerry Crotty), Lachlan Murdoch (Adam / telegraph operator), Andrew Priestman ('Irish' Jake McGinnis), Samantha Weinstein (Kayleigh O'Connor)
Summary: September 26, 1864. Racial tensions in Five Points come to a head as the body of an Irishman is discovered lynched and hanged. While all evidence points toward a black pastor as the murderer, Corcoran has doubts. As the people of New York cry for a hanging, Corcoran is forced to question every piece of evidence with the help of Doctor Matthew Freeman. The Morehouse family attempts to capitalize on the situation by eyeing new parcels of land in the Points that may become available if the city panics. Meanwhile, the search for Corcoran's missing wife unexpectedly lands in the hands of Eva Heissen – though Corcoran is entirely unaware..

The scene opens with Elizabeth thanking Corcoran for helping her husband and is sad that Winfred is dead. Later, Robert says that they have to get Corcoran back into the ring. Elizabeth shows Corcoran a painting and he is clearly embarrassed. Elizabeth says that Winfred wouldn't allow her to hang it because it looked like her. Elizabeth asks why he didn't kiss her hand. He says that he didn't know that he was allowed to. She asks if he wants to kiss it and he says that he does. She leaves and Robert has Corcoran join them for drinks. Matthew meets with Reverend Garland and tells him that the children will be fine. Two men, Dermot and Jerry, shout from outside calling him a racial slur. Garland tells them that he wanted to rent a horse from them and they refused. He is told that they won't rent to a colored man. They tell Garland that they burnt down the last orphanage and will do the same to this one. Matthew comes out with a shotgun and fires it into the air. He tells them not to harm the children.

Corcoran goes to see Eve and she asks what Elizabeth wanted. He says that it is nothing and says that she wanted him to kiss her hand. She asks him if he did and he says that he didn't. She then proceeds to orally pleasure him. At that moment, the Sergeant gets escorted to Dermot O'Conner's body. The next day, Corcoran says that Dermot was dead even before the noose was around his neck. Jerry comes up with Maguire and says that Garland is the culprit. The Captain tells Maguire to take Jerry to jail. Corcoran goes up to Garland and tells him that he is under arrest. At Matthew's home, he is smiling and says that time has come to have a child. She says that she has Matthew to bring her happiness.

Corcoran comes up and tells him that he needs to know how Dermot died and says that Garland is arrested for the murder. A boy runs to Elizabeth's home and tells her that Garland was arrested. Matthew examines Dermot's body and says that he was killed by a needle. Corcoran says that Dermot was part of the mob that burned down the church and that Garland could have done it for revenge. Matthew tells him to be careful and blames Corcoran for being racist and he calls him on it.

Molly goes to Schwarz's jewelry and sees the locket that Corcoran has been looking for. Dermot's daughter yells in the streets and causes the crowd to agree with her. The Captain says that they need to do something. The Sergeant says that they should just hang Garland now. At the whorehouse, Eve sees the locket around Molly's neck and tells her to give it to her. Molly says she bought it for $7 from Schwarz. Eve rips it off her neck and tells her not to tell Corcoran about it. Corcoran, Maguire and O'Brian search Garland's home and find a bloody rag. They go to visit him and Matthew is there. He tells him that he is trying to tell Garland not to take the blame. Corcoran shows the rag. They take it to Matthews and he shows Corcoran that the blood is Ox blood like Garland said it was.

Later, Maguire gets in to a emotional Molly and she tells him to hold her. Corcoran asks the masses about the locket and O'Brian says that he has a message with perfume. It is from Elizabeth. He goes to visit her and sees the painting that she showed him. It is a naked woman. Corcoran says that she needs to ease up on the rose water and she apologizes. She brings up that Garland needs to have fair treatment and he says that he will. She says that he is not what he seems and Corcoran is about to kiss her hand when Annie interrupts them claiming not being able to sleep because she keeps hearing men's voices. Maguire meets with Robert and Robert tells him that Maguire is going to buy the stables with his money for a commission. He agrees. Maguire asks the butler how could it happen and he welcomes him. The next day, Jerry is interrogated and Corcoran questions him. He says that Dermot's daughter could have killed him, but Jerry says that she wouldn't do it. He gets the information he needs.

Corcoran goes to Dermot's daughter and she tells him that Jerry and she were in bed with one another. Corcoran knows that she is lying. Schwartz tells Eve that the locket was originally pawned by Madam Grendle, the abortionist. Elizabeth meets with the elite and is told that she needs to stop supporting Garland. She excuses herself and tells the women to do the same. At the funeral home, Corcoran, Maguire and O'Brian are told that a black man tore Dermot's clothes off. Matthew inspects a man named Jasper and Bessie asks if Garland will hang for this. She says that one Negro is better than the other. Matthew leaves and realizes that Bessie's place is really close to the stables. Matthew goes up to Corcoran and tells him about Bessie and how he feels that she has something to do with Dermot's murder. They go up to Jasper and find the needle that was used in the murder. Jasper tells Corcoran that Bessie will be mad like before. He says that Bessie was mad at Dermot for not paying for the tailoring that she did and says that Bessie ran and is not coming back.

They go to Garland and he tells them what Bessie did. He says that he told him that he was innocent and Corcoran says that they have to get Garland an alibi. At the whorehouse, Eve and Corcoran get 'busy' and Eve asks him what he would do if he found the locket. Corcoran says that he would find Ellen. He says that he wants to know why if she says that she doesn't want to be found. Corcoran goes up to Robert and tells him that he needs an alibi for Garland. Robert tells him that Garland was with him at the time of the murder. Corcoran pretends to have forgotten this and thanks him. The Captain, Sergeant, Maguire and Corcoran meet with Dermot's daughter and tell her that her father hung himself. Maguire says that he is buying the stables from her and Jerry can live somewhere else. She agrees. Corcoran is shocked with Maguire's offer. Jerry is released from jail and Garland walks into the church with Matthew.

Corcoran later goes to Elizabeth who claims to be reading Dicken's latest novel. She says that she is most grateful for all that he has done. She kisses his cheek. Matthew takes Jasper to his home and tells Sarah that he is going to be living with them. She accepts the new guest and feed him some soup. Eve goes to see Madame Grendle and finds her dead. Corcoran and Maguire go to the scene and Eva says that one of her girls needed her service. Corcoran goes home and finds Annie there. She tells him that she is attracted to him and he tells her that she doesn't need to offer herself to men anymore. She says that she understands. He takes her to the coachman and tells him never to bring her to him again. Annie apologizes.

The Empty Locket

Season 1
Episode Number: 4
Season Episode: 4

Originally aired: Sunday September 09, 2012
Writer: Will Rokos, Tom Fontana, Kyle Bradstreet
Director: Clark Johnson
Show Stars: Kevin Ryan (Detective Francis Maguire), Tom Weston-Jones (Detective Kevin Corcoran), Anastasia Griffith (Elizabeth Haverford), Dylan Taylor (Andrew O'Brien), Kyle Schmid (Robert Morehouse), Franka Potente (Eva Heissen), Ato Essandoh (Dr. Matthew Freeman), Tessa Thompson (Sara Freeman), Ron White (I) (Captain Ciaran Joseph Sullivan), Kiara Glasco (Annie Reilly), Tanya Fischer (Molly Stuart)
Guest Stars: Joanne Boland (Mary Lockwood), Peter Bryant (Marcus Freeman), Geordie Johnson (Norbert Morehouse), Shawn Lawrence (Bishop Benjamin Onderdonk), Ryan Allen (Jasper Longfield), Maggie Blake (Josephina), Murray Farrow (James Thompson), Daniel Kash (Jakob Schwarz), Eli Ham (George), Amanda Lisman (Niamh), Lachlan Murdoch (Telegraph Operator), Ryan Tilley (Irish Tenor), Craig Warnock (Edwards)
Summary: October 2, 1864. Corcoran uncovers a new piece of evidence that provides clues about his daughter's mysterious death and the disappearance of his wife. As he investigates the trail behind this new discovery, he finds a tragic personal link to a current murder investigation of one of Five Points' most infamous women. Meanwhile, Doctor Matthew Freeman faces personal challenges of his own as his ex-boxer uncle, Marcus Freeman, uses his friends to execute his planned return to the ring.

The scene opens with O'Brien talking about how Maguire is going to ask Molly to marry him and says that Molly is not the married type. Suddenly a prosthetic leg flies through the whorehouse window. It is Robert who is in an argument. Molly goes up to Eva and tells her that she needs to give the locket to Corcoran. Eva tells her that she knows that Molly lied to her about Madam Grendle. She tells her to not tell Corcoran that she ever had it. She tells her that she won't. Corcoran is drinking when Molly comes in and Corcoran says that they can't do this again. He sees that she has the locket. She tells him that she got it from Schwarz. She tells him that he can relax now that he has the locket and proceeds to undress. The next day, Corcoran tells Maguire that Molly gave him the locket and says that he wants to know what Schwartz knows.

Matthew has his Uncle Marcus come visit him. Marcus says that Sarah is beautiful and Matthew says that Marcus was undefeated in Boxing. Marcus says that he is going back to Africa, the Promised Land. He says that he is going to Liberia to create a name for him. Annie is trying to behave like a lady with Elizabeth's help, but says that she wants to go back to Eva's. She says that is the last place she will go. Corcoran talks to the townspeople and asks about Madame Grendle's death. A woman says that she went to see her and asks for money. She tells them that Grendle had a ledger. Every man is in that book. O'Brian says that Mary Lockwood, Grendle's sister is in town. At Matthew's, Marcus says that Jasper can be a Boxer, but Sarah says that he needs to leave Jasper be. Corcoran and Maguire go see Mary and she tells them that she doesn't have any ledger and says she works too much at the Mission and had no time. She asks why it is such an important case. Corcoran says that he is interested in more than the murder.

At the church, the Bishop tells the Morehouses that he heard from Winnie that Robert and Norton are planning to buy up all the land in Five Points. He says that he will keep quiet if they agree to level Five Points Dims. Robert gets irritated and says that is extortion. Norbert tells him that he will fix the problem. Robert can't believe that Norton is going to give up on this and Norbert says that the Bishop is the problem, not the plan. At Elizabeth's, Annie is eavesdropping and wonders who she is meeting. Corcoran looks through Grendle's things and finds pieces of parchment in the fireplace. Annie runs up to Corcoran and tells him about scary men at Elizabeth's. He goes with her to the house and Elizabeth says that the man was the man who is building Winfred's tombstone. She tells him that Annie shouldn't be in Five Points. Corcoran sees a chess board and Elizabeth offers to help. Corcoran goes to Matthew's and Marcus talks about his boxing career. Matthew examines the note and reveals that the Bishop wrote a note to Grendle.

Corcoran takes the note to the Captain and tells him that the Bishop let the note burn. The Captain tells Corcoran to leave the case alone, but Corcoran says that it is murder and they can't allow it to end. He tells him to go home and move on. However, he tells him that he can't. Robert and Corcoran meet the next day and Corcoran says that the Bishop sent letters and money to Grendle. He says that someone from the church is hiding something. Norbert comes in and asks Corcoran about his case. Corcoran says that the Bishop has had rumors and says that he needs to start with him. Robert tells Corcoran to be careful and asks whose name Corcoran is looking for. Corcoran goes to the nun at the church and asks about the Bishop. She tells him that she can't help him. However, he convinces her to tell the truth when he brings up the fact that she is working for Protestants. She says that a maid is involved.

Matthew checks out a kid and Marcus tells him that he is cruel. Marcus tells Matthew that he is going to be a King in Africa and asks him to swear on his father's grave that he will allow him to meet with Robert Morehouse. Maguire waits in the alley for Molly. He questions her about the locket and she tells him that she should have given it to him. She tells him that she won't hold the truth from him again and proceeds to pleasure him. At that moment, Mary Lockwood goes off wondering around the town. Corcoran and O'Brian go visit the Bishop and Corcoran hits him with his can. He asks about his relationship with Madame Grendle. He denies it as Corcoran beats him. O'Brien pulls Corcoran off of him when he doesn't reveal anything about the ledger. They leave him there beaten. Corcoran tells him that everyone is going to know who he really is. Annie is over at Eva's and tells her that Corcoran is smitten with Elizabeth. Annie says that Corcoran doesn't care about the hair color of a woman and says that Molly's hair is a different color. Eva is interested in that news.

Corcoran interrupts the editor for the Tribune while he is having his way with Molly and tells him that he has a story for him. Marcus meets with Robert and they talk about the boxing legend Marcus was. Marcus says that he has Jasper who can fight and says that he will train him. Robert says that he likes the idea and says that Jasper could lose the fight and line the pockets of Marcus. Corcoran meets with two suspects and tells them that he will start swinging if they don't talk. Maguire follows Mary and eventually gets caught. He tells her that they are looking for the murderer of her sister. She bids him good day and walks into a store owner. She pulls out the ledger that Corcoran is looking for and extorts money from clients of her sister. At a bar, Corcoran and O'Brien drink when the now Senior Editor for the tribune walks in and offers to buy a round for them. Corcoran doesn't like to celebrate because he still doesn't have the ledger.

Corcoran goes see the Captain and Norbert and Robert Morehouse come in and congratulate Corcoran. Maguire asks Molly to marry him and gives her his mother's bracelet. He tells her that she will pawn it to get her a proper ring. Maguire goes up to Corcoran and tells him that he is supposed to consider all the possibilities and that someone could have stolen the locket from his house. However, Corcoran doesn't know where to start. However, Maguire does and they go to Schwartz. He tells him Ellen gave Madame Grendle the locket to buy food for Corcoran and her daughter.

In Eva's room, Eva learns that Molly has no intention on marrying Maguire. She walks over and tells Molly that she knows about her pleasuring Corcoran. She slices her throat. Eva tells George that Molly cut her own throat. Maguire walks back with Corcoran and Corcoran throws the locket into the lake. O'Brien comes over and delivers the news to Maguire of Molly's 'suicide' and he breaks down.

La Tempête

Season 1
Episode Number: 5
Season Episode: 5

Originally aired: Sunday September 16, 2012
Writer: Will Rokos, Tom Fontana, Brant Englestein
Director: Jeff Woolnough
Show Stars: Tom Weston-Jones (Detective Kevin Corcoran), Kyle Schmid (Robert Morehouse), Anastasia Griffith (Elizabeth Haverford), Ato Essandoh (Dr. Matthew Freeman), Tessa Thompson (Sara Freeman), Kevin Ryan (Detective Francis Maguire), David Keeley (Sergeant Padraic Byrnes), Dylan Taylor (Andrew O'Brien), Kiara Glasco (Annie Reilly), Ron White (I) (Captain Ciaran Joseph Sullivan), Franka Potente (Eva Heissen)
Guest Stars: Sean Bell (Smiling Hugh O'Connell), Peter Bryant (Marcus Freeman), Lara Jean Chorostecki (Sybil O'Brien), Geordie Johnson (Norbert Morehouse), Ryan Allen (Jasper Longfield), Joanne Boland (Mary Lockwood), Jonathan Koensgen (Seamus Walsh), Andrew Priestman ("Irish" Jake McGinnis), Sam Rosenthal (Erastus Granger), Patrick Stevenson (Corwyn Roderick)
Summary: October 11, 1864. Maguire and O'Brien discover a gang's plan to rob the patrons at an upscale fundraiser. It's up to Corcoran to insure the guests' safety without interfering with Norbert Morehouse and Elizabeth Haverford. O'Brien and Corcoran are taken aback when Maguire lets them know about a life-changing decision he's made. Marcus trains Jasper for an exhibition fight against "Irish" Jake McGinnis, but it's apparent to Matthew that Marcus is only concerned with how it benefits himself.

The scene opens with a fight between two men. Corcoran acts as referee as Marcus and Jasper watch on. Marcus tells him that they are going to show Jasper that he is more than what he thinks he is. Matthew shakes his head. After the fight, Robert says that their man won. A man named Roderick comes up and tells Corcoran that he heard that Corcoran killed his brother. Corcoran tells him that Roderick's brother was robbing a bank. The gang tries to beat up Corcoran, but he escapes. At the Morehouse's place, Elizabeth reads the invitations to the Gala. Norbert doesn't like that it is going to be in his home until Elizabeth tells him that his name is first on the invitations. Robert is impressed with Elizabeth. She leaves smiling.

Maguire and O'Brien are playing cards with Shamus, O'Brien's brother-in-law. He loses his hand and asks O'Brien for a loan. He gives in. Annie puts make-up on her doll's face and hears someone at the door. It is a Confederate Soldier and he is invited into Elizabeth's home. O'Brien and Maguire search Shamus' room and find an invitation to the Morehouse Gala. They find a map of the inside of the Morehouse home. They wake him up and Corcoran asks him if he is with the Roger Gang. They hold a kettle of hot water above him and Shamus tells them that he was asked if he knows the inside of the Morehouse home. Corcoran says that he has to warn Elizabeth. Maguire and Mary are walking and talking about what they should do. It is clear that they have history. Mary tells him that they should run away together and he kisses her.

Corcoran goes to Elizabeth and she tells him that she is going through with the Gala and that she is sure that everything will be alright. At Matthew and Sarah's place, Marcus starts training Jasper and Sarah is not happy about it. Elizabeth goes over to the Captain and says that she needs security. The Captain tries to tell her that his men are not available when she doesn't offer any money. She says that he has an invitation and he changes his tune. She says that Corcoran needs to be in charge of security. Corcoran and Maguire talk and they realize that the Roger Gang will be a lot. They go through the Morehouse home and Corcoran says that they will have enough to stop the Gang. Maguire reveals that he is engaged to Mary Lockwood and Corcoran asks about Molly. Maguire says that they all don't dwell on the past and says that Corcoran shouldn't judge. Corcoran says that they have to make the right choice and says that Maguire doesn't know love. Maguire stands up and tells him to move on from Ellen.

The Sergeant tells Corcoran that he will be joining him. At Matthew and Sarah's, Jasper is getting better when Marcus tells Sarah to come outside. He looks at Sarah and says that she looks like his wife. Sarah stands up and tells Marcus that he reeks of alcohol. He tries to kiss her and she smacks him. She runs and locks herself in the other room. Jasper comes in and starts to fight with Marcus. Later that night at the Gala, the Sergeant is standing out front when the Captain arrives. He tells the Captain that he wanted to keep a sharp eye out. Corcoran is inside watching the money box and making sure that it is always in his sight. Elizabeth comes up and welcomes Corcoran. Annie comes up and asks which is prettier on the inside and outside. Corcoran tells her to play with the other little girls and she tells him that there are only grown men. Maguire waits upstairs standing watch.

Downstairs, Eva tells Corcoran that no one will talk to her despite her being a business owner. She says that she bought her way in. She tells him that she can't wait to pull his clothes off. Robert is approached by Annie and asked to dance. He obliges and then stops when she tests to see if his 'thing' is standing at attention. She tells him that he was with her at the Brothel, but was too drunk to care. He tells her not to lie and Annie asks who he trusts more. Annie tells Robert that she doesn't need a childhood. Annie tells him that Elizabeth was with a Confederate Soldier. The party continues and the Captain says that he is turning in. A young man comes up and says that there is a lot of money and Corcoran sees his boots. Robert vouches for him. Elizabeth tells Robert needs to dance. Eva goes up to the bank manager for a loan and uses her 'charms' to persuade him. They go off to an empty room. Robert tells Elizabeth what Annie was saying and she tells Robert that she was meeting with a man to run a drive to help the Union. Robert says that she is playing both sides and she says that they just want the madness to stop.

A carriage approaches and the police stop it. However, it is just potatoes. They allow the cart to move on its way. Back inside, Eva tells Corcoran to come to bed once he is done. Elizabeth approaches and she pretends to be friendly. Elizabeth asks Corcoran to dance. Corcoran tries to dance with his hurt leg and tells her that he has been smelling her smell of fresh flowers all night. Annie watches them dance. After the Gala, O'Brien, Maguire, Corcoran and the Sergeant ride off to deposit the money. Matthew gets home to find Marcus in the corner. He has been beaten up. He blames Jasper and says that he went crazy. Matthew asks if Marcus touched Sarah. He says that he did and Matthew tells him to go find Jasper. Matthew convinces Sarah to open the door for him and he hugs her. Corcoran and the rest of the squad take fire and run around to avoid the Roger Gang. However, they are surrounded and the box is taken from a rival gang. He tells them that he is safe as long as they don't fight him.

The Gang gets the box to Roderick and asks where the money is. He says that was lied to and stabs Roderick. Shamus is back home and O'Brien tells her all about what Shamus was doing. Later that evening, Robert is walking when Corcoran walks up to him. He asks where the money is and Robert gestures to his prosthetic leg. They deposit the money and meet for drinks.

Robert tells Corcoran that Irish McGinnis is all set for fighting Jasper. He says that Marcus already said that Jasper is going to take a dive. Corcoran tells him to be careful. Corcoran asks Robert what will happen if he dies before knowing who killed his girl and what happened to his wife. Robert says that he will be dead and won't care at all.

Arsenic and Old Cake

Season 1

Episode Number: 6

Season Episode: 6

Originally aired: Sunday September 23, 2012
Writer: Will Rokos, Tom Fontana, Kevin Dieboldt
Director: Jeff Woolnough
Show Stars: Kevin Ryan (Detective Francis Maguire), Tom Weston-Jones (Detective Kevin Corcoran), Anastasia Griffith (Elizabeth Haverford), Dylan Taylor (Andrew O'Brien), Kyle Schmid (Robert Morehouse), Franka Potente (Eva Heissen), Ato Essandoh (Dr. Matthew Freeman), Kiara Glasco (Annie Reilly), David Keeley (Sergeant Padraic Byrnes)
Guest Stars: Ryan Allen (Jasper Longfield), Joanne Boland (Mary Lockwood), Alexander Broughton (Patrolman), Peter Bryant (Marcus Freeman), Doug McLeod (II) (Haverford's Butler), Matthew Deslippe (John Reilly), Edward Heeley (Doctor Phineas Grimes), Jason Jazrawy (Monsignor Sean McNamara), Courtney Lamanna (Ada Moretti), Laurie Murdoch (Dr. Gillis Devery), Tyler Murree (Hans Elek), Andrew Priestman ("Irish" Jake McGinnis), Elizabeth Saunders (Ethel Devery), Michael Therriault (Eugene Lunsford), Taylor Trowbridge (Katherine O'Casey), Peter Van Wart (Deroot Nellis)
Summary: October 16, 1864. A double murder keeps Corcoran and O'Brien busy which, as they sift through the evidence, looks like a case of revenge. With tensions high, the citizens of Five Points assemble to watch the exhibition fight between Jasper and "Irish" Jake. There's a lot riding on the fight and Robert Morehouse will be forced to make a serious decision. As Annie continues on her path to try Elizabeth's patience, there may be only one choice to reform the wayward child.

The scene opens with O'Brien at the dentist's office. Dr. Devry tells him to take a breath of the Ether. He calls in Ethel and she sees that he has been dipping into the Ether again. She asks him which tooth to pull and she does so. However, it is the wrong tooth. Devry smacks Ethel. At Eva's Corcoran wakes up and meets with Maguire. He asks him about Mary and he says that they are good. Maguire tells Corcoran that they have a dead dentist. It turns out to be Devry. The Sergeant is there on scene first and robs the dead De-very. A woman found the body and tells the Sergeant that she was there for a filling. He realizes that she has no clothing under her rags and she tells him that she didn't have any money to pay for it. He says that he can help her, but is interrupted by another officer. He tells her to get out of there.

The officer tells the Sergeant that Ethel, Devry's wife, took the kids away and the Sergeant suspects that Ethel killed Devry. He takes some fruitcake and wine. He tells the officer to get Ethel and take her to the station. The Sergeant finds the Ether in the cupboard and then suddenly vomits. He has been poisoned from the fruitcake. He falls over and dies. At Elizabeth Hatherford's home, she meets with a priest to teach Annie. Later, Marcus and Robert Morehouse wait for the fight between Jasper and the Irish man. Matthew goes into Jasper's tent and tells Jasper that he is not to win this fight. Marcus overhears this and tells him that Jasper wasn't supposed to know that yet. Marcus is told that he is not welcome and Matthew tells him that the people will kill Jasper if he wins this fight.

At the Coroner's Office, O'Brien and Corcoran wait for the results. He says that it was arsenic. Corcoran doesn't seem to have any remorse over the Sergeant's death. At Elizabeth's home, the priest comes out of the room and tells her that Annie cannot be taught. Annie comes out and quotes the scripture of Lot's daughters and how they slept with their father. Elizabeth asks what Annie's problem is. She wants to help her. However, Annie takes it as an insult and pushes her. She tells her that her husband seemed to like her just fine. At the fight, Matthew tells Robert that Marcus lied and that he has no intention of throwing the fight. Robert says that he will make it work for him. Marcus comes up and pretends that everything is fine. Corcoran meets with Katherine O'Casey and she tells him about how Devry cheated on his wife. He thanks her for the information. A man watches and then quickly closes the door. Corcoran sees the spilled Ether where the Sergeant threw up.

Annie is over at Eva's place and she tells Annie that she has been given a great opportunity with Elizabeth, but Annie wants to learn only things that Eva can teach her. Corcoran continues searching around Devry's home and finds rat poison in the food case. O'Brien and Maguire welcome Ethel. She runs for it and fights off O'Brien. They catch her and take her into the station. Corcoran visits Matthew and asks what compound is in the fruitcake compared to the rat poison. He asks for $5 and Corcoran asks for a free consultation. At the fight, Marcus asks for the payment that they agreed on and Robert says that there will be plenty of time later for that. Eva visits Corcoran and tells him that Annie is miserable at Elizabeth's. Corcoran says that Annie is not going to get the right training from whores. She tells her that he will make this up to him. Corcoran goes in to interrogate Ethel. She tells him that she didn't kill Devry and that the rat poisoning must have been a mistake. She says that she can't lose her boys.

Back at the fight, Jasper continues to win the fight and Marcus sees the look in Jasper's eyes. O'Brien says that he can hear Corcoran thinking over that Ethel is not their killer. Corcoran and O'Brien go to the Bakery and the Baker says that he has never seen Ethel. Maguire goes to meet Mary and finds a man leaving her house buttoning his shirt. He goes inside and questions Mary. She tells him that he was a delivery boy. Mary says that she thought that Maguire loved her and why can't he trust her. He says that he trusts her. Corcoran goes to the building where Devry's home is and has the tenants make their mark. They go to the landlord, Mr. Lungsford and he signs his name. Corcoran recognizes the handwriting and it is a match. He quickly slams the door and O'Brien kicks it in. At the station, Lungsford says that he gave Devry the cake but didn't know that it was poisoned. He says that the butcher, Ellick, gave it to him after he yelled at him.

Corcoran and O'Brien visit Ellick and he tells them that he didn't know that the fruitcake was poisoned. He says that he was given the fruitcake. He says that he has been fornicating with Ethel for months. It turns out that Devry gave him the cake. Back at the fight, Jasper continues to beat up the Irish man and Marcus is clearly scared as to what is going to happen if he wins. Annie is taken back to Elizabeth's and she thanks Eva for bringing her back. Elizabeth tells Annie that she is done and says that she has called Annie's father, Mr. Riley. However, she says that he is not her father. Annie cries and tells her that she will behave, but he takes her away. Back at the fight, Jasper is winning and Robert calls over someone. The referee knocks Jasper out when Jasper is about to win. Robert has Jake McGinnis win the fight. Maguire gets to the bar and O'Brien and Corcoran tell him that Devry poisoned himself. They laugh about it.

Later that night, Matthew sets Jasper's jaw and says that he can rest now. Robert gives him a ticket so that the mob doesn't kill Jasper. He tells him that he is going to be able to depart to Halifax in the morning. He gives Matthew the money that belonged to Marcus. Matthew gives it to Jasper. Corcoran goes over to Elizabeth's and she tells Corcoran that she gave up Annie to her family in California. Corcoran gets up to leave and Elizabeth tells him that she didn't mean to cause him pain and tells him that Annie isn't his daughter. He realizes that she is right and says that he didn't tell her goodbye though. Elizabeth kisses Corcoran and he and her start to get 'busy'.

The Hudson River School

Season 1

Episode Number: 7

Season Episode: 7

Originally aired: Sunday September 30, 2012
Writer: Will Rokos, Tom Fontana, Frank Pugliese
Director: Larysa Kondracki
Show Stars: Tom Weston-Jones (Detective Kevin Corcoran), Kyle Schmid (Robert Morehouse), Anastasia Griffith (Elizabeth Haverford), Ato Essandoh (Dr. Matthew Freeman), Tessa Thompson (Sara Freeman), Kevin Ryan (Detective Francis Maguire), Dylan Taylor (Andrew O'Brien), Kiara Glasco (Annie Reilly), Ron White (I) (Captain Ciaran Joseph Sullivan), Franka Potente (Eva Heissen)
Guest Stars: Joanne Boland (Mary Lockwood), Geordie Johnson (Norbert Morehouse), Will Seattle Bowes (Phinbar Byrnes), Lara Jean Chorostecki (Sybil O'Brien), Matthew Deslippe (John Reilly), Christopher Dyson (Haverford's Coachman), Barry Flatman (Mayor Charles Godfrey Gunther), Elicia Mackenzie (Attractive Socialite), Ian Matthews (James McMaster), Lachlan Murdoch (Telegraph Operator), Aaron Poole (Robert Cobb Kennedy), Deandre Evan Stanislaus (Asa Moore), Dylan Trowbridge (Jeremiah McLean), Philip Williams (Mister Sim), Ashley Wright (Alderman Wright)
Summary: October 18, 1864. Corcoran reassesses the decisions he's made about Annie while high-society people from outside the city present Morehouse with a one of a kind opportunity. As he evaluates this new investment proposal, he must facilitate some personal conflicts. Detective O'Brien's wife presses him about the rumor that New York City is in danger.

The scene opens with Elizabeth humming. Corcoran is in her bed. He asks about Annie again and she tells him that she is back with her family. He tells her about Riley and how he forced Annie to be his wife. She realizes that she did a bad thing. Robert Morehouse finds out that the war is coming and says that there are Confederate spies in Cincinnati. Corcoran goes to town and a man in the crowd tells the gathered that there are spies. Sybil, O'Brien's wife, is clearly scared. Elizabeth tries to go see Annie, but Riley wants nothing to do with it and tells her to leave his property.

At the Morehouse home, Norbert holds a meeting and a man named Kennedy says that New York has made itself a target. Robert takes an interest in him, but not for the right reasons. Maguire goes to see Mary and sees that she was hit. She tells him to leave her be. He asks a boy who hit Mary. He says that Jeremiah McLean hit her. He goes to a shop and asks for McLean, but he is gone. A new officer, nephew of the dead Sergeant, arrives at the precinct. His name is Byrnes and O'Brien is training him. Corcoran tells him to be careful and O'Brien says that he smells of Rose Water and he realizes that Corcoran was with Elizabeth last night. Matthew asks Sarah if the mail came and he says that she looks ill. She vomits.

Riley gets to a barn where Annie is chained up. She tells him that she has learned a few things that will make him happy with her. He unchains her and she grabs a sickle and kills Riley. She goes to Five Points and wakes Corcoran. She says that she killed Riley and says that she is going to hang. He reassures her that she is not. Annie says that Elizabeth gave her to Riley. Matthew tells Sarah that she is pregnant. They are happy. Later that night, Maguire goes to see McLean and he says that Mary has Grendle's ledger and she is blackmailing everyone who paid for abortions. Maguire goes to the house of Mary's, but she isn't there. Elizabeth goes to see Robert and she tells him that she needs to have him talk to Corcoran and tells Robert she lied to him about where Annie went and Robert tells her that she has to tell Corcoran right away.

The next day, Elizabeth tries to go to Corcoran's, but he is gone. Sybil storms into the police station and tells O'Brian that she heard of a telegram that said that there are spies among them. He tells her that he can't do that and she tells him that he needs to do some detective work. Eva is in charge of Cosette's old brothel and Kennedy is with Robert there and he is clearly drunk. Robert says that he blames Lincoln for his leg missing. Kennedy's associate watches and he says that it is fine. Later, Corcoran is at Riley's and he throws his body to the pigs. Matthew says goodbye to Sarah and she tells him to go to work. A message boy comes and gives Sarah a note. She is affected by it and brings the boy inside. O'Brian goes to the Captain and asks him if there is anything that is true of the telegram. He says that he needs not to worry about that and to be quite.

Sarah shows the letter to Matthew when he returns and it is pictures of blacks being beaten. She says that it is a warning for them to go back. However, she doesn't know where to go back to. He reassures her that it will be alright. Robert gives Kennedy some Opium and says that he knows that there isn't a brothel where he says. Kennedy's French accent goes away and he shows his true intentions. He says that there are associates that will burn New York. He shows Robert that they have liquid when exposed to air, ignites. They call it Greek Fire. He is clearly scared of such a thing. Corcoran goes to Elizabeth's and asks which is more expensive and he cuts it. He tells her that he will cut her if she ever lies to her again. She tells him that she understands.

Corcoran goes to Eva and says that Elizabeth gave Annie back to Riley and therefore, not a friend. Eva says that society women don't concern themselves with things like that. She says that she would have slit Elizabeth's throat. They kiss and Corcoran says that he doesn't want Annie home alone. Eva says that Maguire is there drunk and that he needs to be taken home. Corcoran gets in to find Maguire naked with a bottle in his hand. He says that something's not right with the way Molly died. Corcoran asks about Mary and Maguire says that she is dead to him. He says that she ran off to England. Robert takes the Greek Fire to Matthew and he is told that is some dangerous business.

Later in the evening, Corcoran gives Annie a bath and she thanks for the dress afterward. He kisses her head goodnight. Eva comes over and they get busy. Annie watches from the stairwell. Elizabeth goes to see Robert and tells him that Annie has Corcoran possessed. Robert tells her that they have a lot in common while Corcoran and her do not. He has her try some Opium and it calms her down. They look at one another and she kisses him. He kisses back. At the same moment, Maguire waits outside a building and watches a light turn out.

Better Times Are Coming

Season 1
Episode Number: 8
Season Episode: 8

Originally aired: Sunday October 7, 2012
Writer: Will Rokos, Tom Fontana, Sara Cooper
Director: Larysa Kondracki
Show Stars: Tom Weston-Jones (Detective Kevin Corcoran), Kyle Schmid (Robert Morehouse), Anastasia Griffith (Elizabeth Haverford), Ato Essandoh (Dr. Matthew Freeman), Tessa Thompson (Sara Freeman), Kevin Ryan (Detective Francis Maguire), Dylan Taylor (Andrew O'Brien), Kiara Glasco (Annie Reilly), Franka Potente (Eva Heissen)
Guest Stars: Angela Besharah (Nelly McLean), Joanne Boland (Mary Lockwood), Will Bowes (Phinbar Byrnes), Donna Goodhand (Matron), Kevan Kase (Republican Man), Ian Matthews (James McMaster), Lachlan Murdoch (Adam / telegraph operator), Aaron Poole (Robert Cobb Kennedy), Dylan Trowbridge (Jeremiah McLean)
Summary: November 8, 1864. It's Election Day and New York City has another murder. But when Detective Maguire takes the law into his own hands, he forces Corcoran into a difficult decision. In Carmansville, Doctor Freeman strives to take care of Sara and uphold his medical practice at the same time. Robert Morehouse's latest business partners are more alarming than he expected and a series of decisions he must make could have a sweeping impact for his family and others.

The scene opens with a man standing outside a building announcing the elections are about to begin and for them to vote for Lincoln. A fight breaks out. O'Brien takes Byrnes out to a field and tells him to chase a sheep. He trips over a mound of dirt. However it is something else. Robert Morehouse and Elizabeth see each other in the streets and she tells him that she has an appointment for tea. He says that they can go back to his place, but she says that she has to keep her promise and Robert says that he will confront Corcoran about intimidating her. He invites her to dinner.

Corcoran sees Matthew why he is there at the station and Matthew says that Robert showed him Greek Fire and that Robert is into something and that he could be smuggling in something. He tells him that Sarah is pregnant and Corcoran says congratulations. He tells him to go home and enjoy the day, but O'Brien and Byrnes come in and tell them that they found a body. It is Mary Lockwood. Maguire says that Jeremiah McLean killed Mary. Corcoran says that Maguire needs to go home and realizes that Byrnes is to go with him. Annie talks to Eva and says that Corcoran bought her a dress and hints that she is sleeping with Corcoran to Eva. Corcoran and Byrnes visit Sim, the owner of the hardware shop where McLean co-owns. He says that he hasn't seen McLean and doesn't care. Sim says that Maguire was there a half an hour ago.

Maguire goes to the Coroner and says that he needs the bullet from Mary's body. He tells him to go find a salon. Maguire sticks his gun in the doctor's mouth and says that he will be back tomorrow for it. Later, Kennedy comes over to Robert's and tells him that he needs the money for their associates. He tells him to come back later for it. The voting continues and O'Brien gives free drinks to rig the votes. Eva tells Corcoran that Annie has some strange ideas in her head. Robert gets to his office and Corcoran is there. He asks about the business venture involving Greek Fire. Robert brings up how Corcoran intimidating Elizabeth and says that Elizabeth cares for Annie just like he does and says that he can't threaten an innocent woman. He tells he understands and then asks about the Greek Fire. Robert tells him that he is involved with people and tells him that he will wait to know more and will give it a consideration to tell him.

Byrnes and Corcoran go to the place where Mary's body was and then go to the doctor. He gives him the bullet that Maguire threatened him about. McLean's wife gets back and Maguire is about to take her gunpoint, but sees an officer. He retreats. Corcoran goes to Sim and asks about McLean's gun. Corcoran goes to up to Maguire and says that he has been lying to him. Maguire says that he is taking too long. Corcoran restrains him and Maguire says that he needs to see the man who killed Mary. Corcoran allows it. They see McLean and Maguire catches him first and kills him. Corcoran asks why he did that and he says that he ran. Maguire says that they solved the case. Corcoran tells O'Brien that something doesn't sit right with him and says that he will have to talk to McLean's wife about this. She tells Corcoran that McLean has been up in Buffalo for a while. She tells Corcoran that Mary had a ledger and that she was blackmailing him.

Sybil asks O'Brien about the telegram and O'Brien says that it is nothing. However, she is not convinced. Norbert talks with Elizabeth and they get the news that Lincoln won the election. Elizabeth thanks Norbert for his hospitality and says that despite making Slavery abolished, the people won't think so. Robert tells Elizabeth that he talked to Corcoran for her. Kennedy comes over and Robert tells Elizabeth that he won't take long. Kennedy tells Robert that New York will burn. They travel to the associates who have the Greek Fire and they load up wagon.

Eva tells Corcoran to come dancing, but Corcoran says that Maguire lied to him about McLean running off with Mary. Eva says that Molly was afraid of Maguire because he was abusive. She also tells him that Annie confided in her that Corcoran sleeps with her and tells him that he should give Annie to the nuns. Back with the wagon, Robert takes off the horse's horseshoe partially and walks back to the wagon as if nothing was done. He gives the money to the men and Kennedy and Robert ride off. Sarah is cooking and Matthew wonders where she learned a song. She laughs. Corcoran goes to Matthew and asks him to give his opinion. He takes him to the body of McLean and asks if the same bullet that killed Mary killed McLean. Matthew takes out the bullet in McLean and finds it broken. However, it is a match nonetheless. Corcoran watches Maguire's place and leaves Byrnes to be a lookout.

On the road, the wagon carrying the Greek Fire has to stop. Robert stabs the wagon and points it out to Kennedy. They run off and the wagon explodes. The next day in the New York, the city is desolate. Annie tells Corcoran that she added Rose Water to Corcoran's clothes. He tells her to get out of his wife's clothes and says that she is to go to school. Byrnes goes up to Corcoran and tells him that Maguire went to Earle House, the home for Batty women. Corcoran asks the front desk where Maguire went to and she is not willing to give information. He fights off the guard and asks the woman why Maguire was there. She says that he was there to see his wife, Mrs. Maguire. She shows Corcoran to her, but Corcoran recognizes her. It is his Ellen! He asks her if she recognizes him. She doesn't say anything and he shows her the musical pocket watch. He tells her to remember him and she turns her head away. Corcoran puts his head on her lap and cries.

A Day to Give Thanks

Season 1
Episode Number: 9
Season Episode: 9

Originally aired: Sunday October 14, 2012
Writer: Kyle Bradstreet, Kevin Deiboldt, Tom Fontana, Will Rokos
Director: Ken Girotti
Show Stars: Tom Weston-Jones (Detective Kevin Corcoran), Kyle Schmid (Robert Morehouse), Anastasia Griffith (Elizabeth Haverford), Ato Essandoh (Dr. Matthew Freeman), Tessa Thompson (Sara Freeman), Kevin Ryan (Detective Francis Maguire), Alex Paxton-Beesley (Ellen Corcoran), Dylan Taylor (Andrew O'Brien), Kiara Glasco (Annie Reilly), Ron White (I) (Captain Ciaran Joseph Sullivan), Franka Potente (Eva Heissen)
Guest Stars: Evan Buliung (Edwin Booth), James Gilbert (John Wilkes Booth), Andrew Jackson (Junius Brutus Booth Jr.), Lachlan Murdoch (Adam / telegraph operator), Aaron Poole (Robert Cobb Kennedy)
Summary: November 24, 1864. It's Thanksgiving Day but Corcoran finds himself in an ungracious state. The fallout of recent murders and a shocking discovery leaves the detective shaken to the core. Robert Morehouse's latest business entanglement takes a dire turn as his associates attempt to bring his father into the deal. Sensing what this could mean for Norbert, Morehouse must act quickly to keep his father out of the scheme.

It's the second Thanksgiving since Lincoln established the holiday. Even without football and a parade, everyone from Carmanville to Five Points is excited for the holiday. Everyone except Corcoran, that is.

Ellen is back and Frank is missing. The mental institution had Ellen pretty heavily drugged, according to Dr. Freeman, so she's going through some intense withdrawal symptoms. Corcoran needs to look for Frank, so he asks Eva and Annie to watch over her. Even Eva can't believe she agrees to help.

Corcoran spends most of the episode becoming angrier and angrier as he hunts down his partner. In one particularly telling scene, he tells the police captain that he is just a figure head and all are coppers are loyal to Corcoran. Five Points is his.

Ellen wakes up and mistakes Annie for her dead daughter Maggie. Eva sets the confused woman straight and puts her back to bed.

Corcoran finally finds Frank hiding out in a church. Corky is close to the edge and holds Frank at gunpoint, demanding to know what happened to Ellen. Frank tells Corcoran to go ahead and kill him. He admits to an affair with Ellen, but tells Corcoran it was his own fault for going off to war when his family needed him at home.

Something doesn't sit right with Corky, and he goes home to find the weak but sober Ellen. He demands to know what really happened to her.

In a stirring monologue, Ellen recounts what she can remember through the haze of her nervous breakdown. She and Frank were sleeping together and she became pregnant. She went to Madam Grindle and had an abortion, paying with the locket Corcoran had given her. She heard a baby cry during the procedure.

Realizing her abortion was more of a murder, Ellen was haunted by the baby's cry. She was in bed with Frank when little Maggie walked in. She screamed for her father, Corcoran, and Ellen went to grab her. In her rattled mind, though, she confused Maggie's cries with the dead baby's cries. She pushed Maggie away.

The little girl smacked her head on the door frame and died.

With this confession, Ellen sinks to the floor, crying. Corcoran also falls to the ground, unsure what to do now that his quest is over.

In other stories, the confederate terrorist who Morehouse successfully foiled last week is back. He blackmails Morehouse's father into joining the cause.

Elizabeth, she of the beautiful dresses, wears a fantastic white-fur trimmed gown as she meets three actors. They are the dashing Booth brothers: Junius Brutus, Edwin and John Wilkes (!!).

Also, Sarah cooks a full Thanksgiving dinner.

A Vast and Fiendish Plot

Season 1

Episode Number: 10

Season Episode: 10

Originally aired: Sunday October 21, 2012
Writer: Will Rokos, Tom Fontana
Director: Ken Girotti
Show Stars: Tom Weston-Jones (Detective Kevin Corcoran), Kyle Schmid (Robert Morehouse), Anastasia Griffith (Elizabeth Haverford), Ato Essandoh (Dr. Matthew Freeman), Tessa Thompson (Sara Freeman), Kevin Ryan (Detective Francis Maguire), Dylan Taylor (Andrew O'Brien), Kiara Glasco (Annie Reilly), Ron White (I) (Captain Ciaran Joseph Sullivan), Franka Potente (Eva Heissen)
Guest Stars: Will Bowes (Phinbar Byrnes), Evan Buliung (Edwin Booth), James Collins (Big Bald Man), James Gilbert (John Wilkes Booth), Andrew Jackson (Junius Brutus Booth Jr.), Geordie Johnson (Norbert Morehouse), Lachlan Murdoch (Adam / telegraph operator), Kent Nolan (Clem Cato), Alex Paxton-Beesley (Ellen Corcoran), Mike Petersen (Chemist), Aaron Poole (Robert Cobb Kennedy)
Summary: November 25, 1864. Corcoran throws in with Robert Morehouse, Eva and the Sixth Precinct coppers as he prepares for his biggest fight since the Draft Riots. Doctor Freeman must make a tough decision after Sara places their family at risk. When Robert learns what his father is really involved in as pertains to his new business associates, he turns to Corcoran, the only person he can completely trust. The worlds of uptown and downtown New York City will collide with volatile consequences for New York City and the course of the Civil War.

We open right where we left off: There is a knock at the door just after Ellen tells Corcoran she killed their daughter. On the stoop is Robert Morehouse with warning that Mr. Kennedy is continuing his plot to burn down New York City. Morehouse wants Corcoran to meet him at the dock where the Greek fire is being imported.

Corcoran, rattled by Ellen's confession, agrees to help, but needs to find someone to watch his ill wife. He goes to Eva, who's all, 'Seriously?! Again?!' But she can tell Corky is rattled.

Annie again makes an inappropriate comment about Corcoran to Eva. This is the final straw and Eva finally sets Annie straight. Yes, bad things happened in her past, but if she doesn't shape up, she won't have a chance at a better future. Thank you, Eva!

Morehouse and Corcoran's plan works and they catch the terrorists in the act. Morehouse thinks the case is closed but Corcoran thinks it was too easy.

Corky is right: Kennedy has figured out how to make his own Greek fire and the plot is on. Corcoran, Morehouse and the coppers band together to go to all the hotels and put out the fires.

Frank heroically charges in to stop one arsonist and is shot. Corcoran is on his way out of the building when he sees Frank lying on the ground. He pauses for a very long time in the flaming doorway, debating if he should help the man who impregnated his wife.

As the men go around putting out the fires, Morehouse is late taking Elizabeth, she of the beautiful dresses, to the theater. Angry, she goes alone. The performance of 'Julius Cesar,' featuring John Wilkes Booth, is interrupted with news of a fire at the hotel next door. Luckily, it was extinguished. The show will go on.

Elizabeth leaves the theater upset. At home, she's visited by Mr. Kennedy. He offers to run off to Canada with her since their plot failed. She tells him no and locks him out. He was only supposed to burn places where people wouldn't be injured. It looks like there is more to Elizabeth than beautiful dresses.

The injured Frank, who Corky carried out of the burning building after all, admits to his partners he killed the abortionist, too. Thus, all the open murders from this season are solved: Most of them were committed by Frank.

Corcoran says they have all done bad things and it is worse to live with it than to just die. Frank is taken into surgery and is expected to live.

Morehouse senior's involvement in the fire plot is revealed. Morehouse visits his father in jail and tells him he was able to get him acquitted. All he has to do is carpetbag on down to Atlanta and start a new life. Morehouse senior is horrified, but Robert tells his father he's sure he'll do fine, although he never wants to see him again.

Corcoran has a heart to heart with Eva. Now that his wife is back, they can't continue their relationship. She seems to take this news a lot better than the news that Molly slept with Corky. They share a bittersweet goodbye.

Corcoran walks through his house, checking in on the sleeping Ellen and Annie. He goes downstairs and shoots up morphine. Once again he is visited by the ghost of his daughter. She smiles at him, then walks out the door.

Corcoran is alone, surrounded by friends and family.

Season Two

Home, Sweet Home

Season 2

Episode Number: 11

Season Episode: 1

Originally aired:	Sunday June 23, 2013
Writer:	Kevin Deiboldt, Tom Fontana, Thomas Kelly, Will Rokos
Director:	Larysa Kondracki
Show Stars:	Tom Weston-Jones (Detective Kevin Corcoran), Kyle Schmid (Robert Morehouse), Anastasia Griffith (Elizabeth Haverford), Ato Essandoh (Dr. Matthew Freeman), Tessa Thompson (Sara Freeman), Kevin Ryan (Detective Francis Maguire), Kiara Glasco (Annie Reilly), Alex Paxton-Beesley (Ellen Corcoran), Dylan Taylor (Andrew O'Brien), Ron White (I) (Captain Ciaran Joseph Sullivan), Franka Potente (Eva Heissen)
Guest Stars:	Donal Logue (Brendan Donovan), Kendra Anderson (II) (Kentigerna McGrath), Brad Austin (Richie), Will Bowes (Phinbar Byrnes), Michael Coady (Asst. District Attorney), Noah Danby (Buris Buzzie Burke), Chris Gibbs (Constituent), Adrian Griffin (Morehouse's Butler), Ron Lea (Judge), Steven McCarthy (Brogan McGrath), Peter Millard (Doctor Strom), Lachlan Murdoch (Telegraph Operator), Janine Theriault (French Designer), Jim Watson (III) (Conor Glynn)
Summary:	February 5, 1865. A career criminal has the Sixth Ward on edge as young men keep dying and disappearing. Tammany Hall exerts its political pressure on the police force as General Brendan Donovan returns as ward leader. Matthew's mentor makes him a very attractive offer but it's not something that will set well with Sarah. Elizabeth and Robert make wedding plans and await the execution of Confederate spy Kennedy. Maguire waits his fate in the tombs.

The premiere begins with Corky letting off some steam with a nice vigorous jog in an empty field. A sweet, innocent deer runs right up to him, looking all cute and cuddly. It's all quite lovely until some random old haggard woman shoots it dead with her rifle and begins butchering it right there in front of him. What a way to make the reality of his life come rushing back into view. Can't poor Corky have anything nice?

The first order of business is to save the brothel-owning Eva from the new criminal of the week, Buzzie Burke. He doesn't do a very good job of that, however. Corky interrupts Buzzie as he carves his initials into Eva's back, only to be beaten to the ground like a limp rag doll. That is one of the refreshing things about this show, however: The hero is not very good at saving the day, although he tries really hard.

The Sixth Ward has a new boss: General Brendan Donovan. He gets started by roughing up a few of his own men in order to get his point across; they are the police, and they need to start acting like it! No more debauchery and shoddy work – at least not in public.

Corky, the only man who seems to truly believe deeply in his work, appears to be happy with the change. There's also a bonus in it for him or any other copper who can catch Buzzie Burke.

Corky's search for Buzzie Burke doesn't start well: He and his men accidentally capture and beat up poor old Bug-Eyed Boyle before realizing they've got the wrong man. Gotta love those nicknames.

But Corky didn't have to search far. Buzzie's got Corky's wife fish hooked on his finger right on Corky's own couch. He labels Corky as "pretty" right before forcing him to hand over his gun and drop to his knees. As mentioned before, Corky is not very good at saving the day, as his own orphan ward saves the couple by smashing a pan over Buzzie's head before he can blow off Corky's pretty face.

Francis kills Buzzie Burke soon after his arrival to the same prison cell. Then a judge sets Francis free after evidence of his murders goes missing. Corky is there to witness the play unfold and has trouble believing his eyes. Now he's got to contend with his greatest nemesis free on the streets, once again.

The coppers also have a new case at hand, involving two missing teenage boys. The search has just begun but will continue in the next episode.

Meanwhile Ms. Haverford is marrying Robert Morehouse. Robert is a good guy for the most part, but he's a one-legged drunk who is completely blinded by Haverford's wiles. Although she is some sort of British double agent – siding with the South to defeat the North and throw New York into chaos – Morehouse just goes along with his goofy grin, none the wiser.

Aileen Aroon

Season 2

Episode Number: 12

Season Episode: 2

Originally aired:	Sunday June 30, 2013
Writer:	Kyle Bradstreet
Director:	Larysa Kondracki
Show Stars:	Tom Weston-Jones (Detective Kevin Corcoran), Kyle Schmid (Robert Morehouse), Anastasia Griffith (Elizabeth Haverford), Ato Essandoh (Dr. Matthew Freeman), Tessa Thompson (Sara Freeman), Kevin Ryan (Detective Francis Maguire), Kiara Glasco (Annie Reilly), Alex Paxton-Beesley (Ellen Corcoran), Dylan Taylor (Andrew O'Brien), Franka Potente (Eva Heissen), Ron White (I) (Captain Ciaran Joseph Sullivan)
Recurring Role:	Donal Logue (Brendan Donovan), Will Bowes (Phinbar Byrnes)
Guest Stars:	Eamonn Walker (Frederick Douglass), Aaron Poole (Robert Cobb Kennedy), Kendra Anderson (II) (Kentigerna McGrath), Brad Austin (Richie), Scott Edgecombe (John Hurley), Jonathan Higgins (Mark Coddington), Jonathan Koensgen (Seamus Walsh), Steven McCarthy (Brogan McGrath), Eric Peterson (Rev. William Remington), Albert Schultz (George Becks), Rossif Sutherland (Tim Doman), Janine Thériault (French Designer), Ryan Tilley (Irish Tenor), Clinton Walker (Sickly White Man)
Summary:	As Corcoran searches for answers when more boys disappear, Donovan is more interested in keeping the murders out of the press. Sara prepares to dine with Frederick Douglass at the Morehouse mansion. Matthew makes a drastic decision that will affect Sara. Maguire must realign his allegiances and fend for himself.

Five Points appears to have a serial killer targeting teenage boys. Detective "Corky" Corcoran enlists the help of his good friend Dr. Matthew Freeman to learn that the two dead kids they've stacked up so far have been drugged. There are five more missing, and it's up to the coppers to find them.

"Copper" has never had much in the way of comedic relief, but this episode is a happy exception. Corky found that the killer has most likely been preying on boys in Eva's new bar, which she's taken over from Buzzie Burke – who had carved his initials into her back – after he was killed in prison.

In order to catch the killer, Corky and his men attempt to dress up one of their patrolmen as the type of kid the killer seems to be interested in. An actor attempts to train the officer in the art of acting for the purpose of going undercover, but he fails miserably – and hilariously. After his "deplorable" performance (as the exasperated actor puts it), Corky uses him anyway because, well, he's the only copper who looks the part.

The plan actually works, even though it's an indirect path: The undercover Irish boy decoy sets his lure to capture a potential suspect, but the suspect immediately moves on to another boy who looks more promising. Corky and O'Brien, Corky's detective partner, spot the man dropping drugs into the kid's drink during a distracting random bar fight, and the coppers run up to pull him outside right away.

They pull the drugs out of his pocket and prepare to arrest him when the bar fight spills onto the street, and Corky gets knocked to the ground. Although their suspect gets away, Corky seems to be confident that they can catch him now that they know who he is and are able to obtain his name.

When a news reporter threatens to run the story of the missing and murdered boys, Donovan blackmails him. The reporter has his own juicy secrets to hide, so Donovan gives him a choice: good or bad news. In other words, the news can be good if the reporter sits on the story a bit longer, once the coppers catch the killer without the interference of a news report that will send him running for the hills – although Corky may have already failed on that front. The news will definitely be bad, however, if it's all about the reporter's personal life.

Now that Maguire, Corky's ex-friend and ex-copper, has been released from prison after evidence of his murders has gone mysteriously missing, he decides to turn to a life of crime. His first step is to sign on with a group of criminals called The Druids. The first order of business in his new job is to coerce a shop owner into paying double his normal amount for a stack of counterfeit bills. When the man argues, Maguire sticks a lit cigarette up the man's nose. Yikes!

Sara Freeman has had a hard time shaking the lynching of her two brothers in the city and prefers living out on the outskirts. When Matthew's mentor decides to move out of Five Points for health issues, however, Matthew agrees to take over the practice to fulfill his vow to heal people. Sara is terrified at the prospect and the challenges Matthew will face as a black doctor with a lot of business in the city.

Historical figure Frederick Douglass comes to Sara's rescue, inspiring her to become a strong woman. A conversation with Douglass leads Sara to announce to her husband that she is no longer afraid of the city and will be supporting him in his new practice.

The episode finishes with flashes between two husband and wife relationships: the Freemans, who have just solidified their love and respect for each other; and the Corcorans, who may never get past the tragedy of losing their daughter. The Freemans, therefore, have some wild lovemaking to do, while Ellen Corcoran initiates an awkward encounter with her husband that results in him turning to a needle full of morphine in his arm.

The Children of the Battlefield

Season 2

Episode Number: 13

Season Episode: 3

Originally aired: Sunday July 7, 2013
Writer: Kevin Deiboldt
Director: Ken Girotti
Show Stars: Tom Weston-Jones (Detective Kevin Corcoran), Kyle Schmid (Robert Morehouse), Anastasia Griffith (Elizabeth Haverford), Ato Essandoh (Dr. Matthew Freeman), Tessa Thompson (Sara Freeman), Kevin Ryan (Detective Francis Maguire), Kiara Glasco (Annie Reilly), Alex Paxton-Beesley (Ellen Corcoran), Dylan Taylor (Andrew O'Brien), Franka Potente (Eva Heissen), Ron White (I) (Captain Ciaran Joseph Sullivan)
Recurring Role: Donal Logue (Brendan Donovan), Aaron Poole (Robert Cobb Kennedy), Will Bowes (Phinbar Byrnes), Adrian Griffin (Morehouse's Butler)
Guest Stars: Andrew Howard (Mr. O'Rourke), Jim Byrnes (I) (Sgt. Major Atticus Reid), Jonathan Koensgen (Seamus Walsh), Danny Macdonald (Union Clerk), Steven McCarthy (Brogan McGrath), Landon Morris (Michael McGrath), Eric Peterson (Rev. William Remington), Rossif Sutherland (Tim Doman)
Summary: Corcoran is close to nabbing those guilty for kidnapping and murder of the young men in Five Points but he must choose his allegiances. Maguire quickly rises within the ranks of New York City's criminal elite. Robert and Elizabeth are wed.

When Dorman initially gives a snarky reply rather than a helpful one, Corky decides that the best way to find the information they need is by giving Dorman a "suite" at the local jail. The "suite" is only for their highest-end scumbags; it has a nice place to be restrained in bed with a squat toilet in the floor above, placed conveniently above the perp's face. It's actually a great idea for the worst criminals of society, but the realistic visuals are enough to make you sick. Be forewarned.

Dorman finally comes clean: He has been recruiting for the Union Army, but he swears it was his partner who killed two boys when things got out of hand. The other boys are still being held somewhere and have not yet shipped off to war.

Corky follows clues until he finds the location where the boys are being held. He begins freeing them when a familiar face pops up: McGrath, some of the boys' own father! Corky was right to distrust him the first time, since he had never told Corky a single true statement. Too bad he wasn't the one to stay in the "suite." Instead, he gives McGrath the same choice he gave his own sons: lose his life on the spot or out on the battlefield. Of course, he chooses the latter.

Sara Freeman puts on a brave face after she moves back to her old home with her husband. Unfortunately, she's got a perfect view of the lamppost where her two brothers were hanged for simply having a dark skin color.

Rather than fall apart and beg to move back to the outskirts, she runs outside with an ax and attempts to bring down the dreadful symbol of horror by herself. When she is unable, her husband Matthew joins in. Several other men who suffered the same disgusting bigotry join in, until the thing lay on the ground with its dim light flickering. The broken and toppled lamppost is now a new symbol of strength.

It's wedding day for Mr. Morehouse, but his best man is off chasing bad guys. He decides to have the man standing nearest to him fill in for dear old Corky so he can get on with what he believes to be the best day of his life.

Of course, Elizabeth has just been putting on a show, having been partly responsible for the plan to burn New York to the ground and give the South the win in the war. Her conscience finally intercedes when she decides to become a drugged-out lump of guilt. She confesses her sins to her new husband, hoping for forgiveness. She seems to have forgotten that Morehouse exiled his own father for his involvement in the plot.

Corky finds his friend later at Eva's good old-fashioned bar and whorehouse, where Morehouse is lying drunk in bed with a prostitute. He's a bit confused by the sight, wondering what could have happened on the way from the wedding to the bedroom, where Morehouse and Haverford had been spending most of their time before marriage. He doesn't get any answers but knows that it must be bad. So Corky decides to keep Morehouse company by bunking with him for the evening so he doesn't have to experience the shame of sleeping with a prostitute on his wedding night.

The former prostitute child Annie is probably the only person who thoroughly enjoyed the wedding, having stolen expensive jewelry from an unoccupied room of the mansion. She's not so happy later, however, when she overhears Corky flirting with his wife while preparing dinner. Annie has been truly damaged by her life before Corky took her in. She wants to replace both his dead daughter and his wife. Mrs. Corcoran should always keep one eye on Annie to avoid any "accidents."

Francis no longer wants the worthless job of sticking lit cigarettes up people's noses to collect money they owe to his new boss. He wants something more fulfilling, such as murder and mayhem. His boss gives him just such an assignment in order to prove his worth: kill a copper. He does just that, effortlessly plunging a knife into someone whose death he would have avenged had he still been a copper himself. Now, it is Gen. Donovan who vows to avenge the death by gathering every copper in his jurisdiction to find the man who killed one of his own.

I Defy Thee to Forget

Season 2
Episode Number: 14
Season Episode: 4

Originally aired: Sunday July 14, 2013
Writer: Tom Fontana, Thomas Kelly
Director: Ken Girotti
Show Stars: Tom Weston-Jones (Detective Kevin Corcoran), Kyle Schmid (Robert Morehouse), Anastasia Griffith (Elizabeth Haverford), Ato Essandoh (Dr. Matthew Freeman), Tessa Thompson (Sara Freeman), Kevin Ryan (Francis Maguire), Kiara Glasco (Annie Reilly), Alex Paxton-Beesley (Ellen Corcoran), Dylan Taylor (Andrew O'Brien), Franka Potente (Eva Heissen), Ron White (I) (Captain Ciaran Joseph Sullivan)
Recurring Role: Donal Logue (Brendan Donovan), Aaron Poole (Robert Cobb Kennedy), Adrian Griffin (Morehouse's Butler)
Guest Stars: Andrew Howard (Mr. O'Rourke), Lee Tergesen (Mr. Keating), Brad Austin (Richie), Matt Burkhart (Milo O'Hearn), Vivien Endicott-Douglas (Fiona Murphy), Jonathan Koensgen (Seamus Walsh), Andrew Musselman (Billy Murphy), Jim Watson (III) (Conor Glynn), Supinder Wraich (Lola)
Summary: Annie causes a division in the Corcoran household which disrupts the search for the dead officer's killer. Madame Eva finds support from Donovan. Elizabeth helps with the Freeman's search for Sara's mother. Maguire runs into some old friends.

Corky is sidetracked by three other things in his life. The first is Robert Morehouse. O'Brien humorously finds Corky in bed with his naked best friend's hand stretched across his torso. And he's late to work on the worst day to be late. Oops!

Next, Corky pulls himself away from searching for the cop killer, when he spots Annie running from home and decides to have a talk with his wife about it. Ellen is furious after having found the newly married Elizabeth Morehouse's diamond necklace, which Annie stole at the wedding.

Corky walks in right after the fight – which contained hitting and kicking on Annie's part and the threat of murder by stabbing on Ellen's part. Corky immediately takes Annie's side, informing Ellen that she just doesn't understand how to deal with the child. When Ellen calls her a tramp, he smacks her across the face.

Corky isn't so nice to Annie either. Her first instinct is to lie about what happened, and Corky has had enough with her. She went too far this time, and he's not sure if he can, or even wants to, fix the problem. After Annie lays on some serious begging, Corky asks a patrolman at the station to keep an eye on her after telling her that they'll be returning the necklace together once he finishes at work.

He then tempts her by leaving the necklace in the room. Sure enough, she skips out with the necklace, and Corky is pulled away from one of the most important jobs he's ever had – finding a cop killer – to go talk to Mrs. Morehouse about whether she has seen Annie. That only serves to upset Elizabeth, since it was Corky who held a knife to her throat after her own dealings with Annie. Sure, Elizabeth deserved it at the time, but now he's just digging himself deeper in the weeds.

After ensuring that Corky's obsession with Annie stems from righteousness rather than a sickening taste for young girls, it's Donovan who must set Corky on the right path. He explains that Corky's focus on righting one wrong that may not be fixable may only serve to make matters worse. That has definitely been the case, and so Corky vows to work for the greater good, as Donovan requests, even if it may involve some tough personal decisions.

As Corky deals with personal issues, O'Brien gets the job done. As he beats up Billy Murphy – who was assumed to be Phinbar's murderer because he is a known cop-hater – Billy's daughter cries out for him to stop. The daughter spills the beans about a new gang that prints counterfeit money out of some "dive" and had threatened to kill her and her father if they said anything.

Donovan suggests the coppers close down all the dives in town in order to weed them out. But it is one of the counterfeiter's own jealous men who goes straight to the coppers to tell them that it was Maguire who plunged the knife into Phinbar. Maguire and his new crime boss had humiliated the man earlier because of his light-hearted, joking attitude concerning the cop murder.

O'Brien has a hard time believing his ears until he finds Maguire carrying counterfeiting plates. O'Brien asks him point blank whether he committed the murder but leaves his answer a mystery until Corky gets back in the game, having just made his promise to work for the greater good. It is indeed Maguire who takes his deserved punishment for the murder.

A Morning Song

Season 2
Episode Number: 15
Season Episode: 5

Originally aired: Sunday July 21, 2013
Writer: Frank Pugliese, Kyle Bradstreet, Will Rokos
Director: Larysa Kondracki
Show Stars: Tom Weston-Jones (Detective Kevin Corcoran), Kyle Schmid (Robert Morehouse), Anastasia Griffith (Elizabeth Haverford), Ato Essandoh (Dr. Matthew Freeman), Tessa Thompson (Sara Freeman), Kevin Ryan (Francis Maguire), Kiara Glasco (Annie Reilly), Alex Paxton-Beesley (Ellen Corcoran), Dylan Taylor (Andrew O'Brien), Franka Potente (Eva Heissen), Ron White (I) (Captain Ciaran Joseph Sullivan)
Recurring Role: Donal Logue (Brendan Donovan), Aaron Poole (Robert Cobb Kennedy), Jonathan Koensgen (Seamus Walsh)
Guest Stars: Lee Tergesen (Philomen Keating), Andrew Howard (James O'Rourke), James Cade (Tough Copper), Michael Giel (Bearded Druid), John Kalbhenn (Shirt Druid), Danijel Mandic (Street Copper 2), Brian Mifsud (Young Husband), Matt Selby (Street Copper 1), Jay Turvey (Felix), Jim Watson (III) (Conor Gylmn), Supinder Wraich (Lola), Gareth Moyes (Tall Druid)
Summary: Coppers and civilians are at the mercy of the brilliant criminal mastermind Philomen Keating after he storms the Five Points police station. Corcoran, O'Brien and Dr. Freeman race to restore the peace but Maguire sees a chance to get back at Corcoran.

Corky left his wife in order to leave his old troublesome life behind. He has promised Gen. Donovan that he will be working for the greater good from now on, rather than focusing on single situations that only seem to make matters worse, such as Annie. Annie has run off anyway, so it doesn't matter.

He talks up the prostitute from last night as he gives himself a clean shave, preparing for work and his new way of life. Too bad the counterfeiter Philomen Keating has something else in mind.

Corky has no idea what's in store for him as the counterfeiters known as The Druids storm the Sixth Ward precinct looking for the money-printing plates the coppers found on Francis.

The Druid, who ratted out Francis (unbeknownst to them), distracts the coppers at a very early hour, when they are understaffed, by streaking through the precinct naked. He throws around some fake bills until Keating enters with more of his men and begins terrorizing everyone in sight. Keating spectacularly shoots and kills an innocent victim in the head to make his point, then shoots Capt. Sullivan non-lethally when they are unable to locate the plates.

All the coppers and innocent people at the precinct have been taken hostage. The rat has been sniffed out and hangs upside down, still naked, in the cell where Francis was being kept. Francis is helping to create mayhem. To make matters worse, Annie was waiting for Corky overnight at the precinct and is hiding under a desk.

Corky and his men wait outside as bullets rain down each time they show their faces. He fishes for a few answers and is finally able to convince Keating to allow a doctor inside to help

Sullivan. Corky sends in his good friend Dr. Freeman, but Keating gives him only 15 minutes to do his work and get out before Freeman gets a bullet to his brain.

Time is almost up when Freeman realizes that Sullivan won't survive without surgery. With four minutes left, Freeman asks for one of the hostages to help him carry out Sullivan, but Keating has other ideas. He takes a vote to see who is willing to give their own life for Sullivan's and not one hand goes up.

Instead, Keating calls in someone from outside to help carry Sullivan. Corky enters the building and helps Freeman get Sullivan out of the building with seconds left on the clock – all while getting a lay of the land and finding out where Annie is hiding.

Reinforcements arrive, and Corky knows where all the bad guys are. He's got a plan involving food and bombs. They throw in a package of meat with a bomb inside, wiping out a couple of Druids before storming in and taking down a couple more. Only two left, including Keating.

But Keating finds something very valuable to Corky. Keating hears Annie's cries, when she fears for Corky's life, and drags her out with a very large gun to her head. Corky immediately orders all guns to be dropped and hands himself over to be killed by Keating in exchange for Annie's life.

Corky is the one open wound in Francis's dark heart. He wronged Corky in so many ways, least of which was sleeping with his wife. Keeping her and the cause of Corky's child's death a secret – then killing innocent people in order to keep that secret while pretending to be Corky's friend – was also a big part of it.

Francis tells Keating that he wants to kill Corky himself. He then proceeds to kill Keating and the only other Druid instead. At least he did the right thing in the end but calling that "even" in exchange for Corky having saved his life before – especially since doing so would have been his job when he was a copper – is laughable.

Francis already stabbed his fellow coppers in the back, and now he comes up with some excuse for how his whole time as a Druid was an undercover ploy. He lies about someone else having stabbed and killed Phinbar, and that he was a good guy all along. Yeah, right. Corky doesn't buy it, but Gen. Donovan forces them to partner up and shake on it anyway. Nothing like working with your nemesis for the greater good.

To One Shortly to Die

Season 2
Episode Number: 16
Season Episode: 6

Originally aired: Sunday July 28, 2013
Writer: Kevin Deiboldt, Kate Erickson, Tom Fontana
Director: Clark Johnson
Show Stars: Tom Weston-Jones (Detective Kevin Corcoran), Kyle Schmid (Robert Morehouse), Anastasia Griffith (Elizabeth Haverford), Ato Essandoh (Dr. Matthew Freeman), Tessa Thompson (Sara Freeman), Kevin Ryan (Francis Maguire), Alex Paxton-Beesley (Ellen Corcoran), Dylan Taylor (Andrew O'Brien), Franka Potente (Eva Heissen), Ron White (I) (Captain Ciaran Joseph Sullivan)
Recurring Role: Donal Logue (Brendan Donovan), Geordie Johnson (Norbert Morehouse), Aaron Poole (Robert Cobb Kennedy)
Guest Stars: Alfre Woodard (Hattie Lemaster), Lara Jean Chorostecki (Sybil O'Brien), Molly Atkinson (Mab Dwyer), John Bourgeois (Major John Augustus Bolles), Abigail Falle (Blonde Girl), Taborah Johnson (Bar Singer), Jeff Lillico (Benjamin Bartlett), Kent Staines (Uptown Lawyer), Jonathan Whittaker (General William Hopkins Morris)
Summary: Detectives Corcoran and Maguire are forced to work together on a murder case. Morehouse makes a tough choice about Kennedy's trial. Elizabeth returns from Virginia with Sara's mother. Eva and Ellen find out they have some common secrets.

There is a new death to investigate, and Corky is forced to work with his nemesis, Francis Maguire. Gen. Donovan thinks this should be a great pairing, since the two are "like-minded opposites," working toward the same goal. He also wants them to be discreet in their investigation. He must not know Maguire very well, though he should.

Francis is his usual gruff self throughout the investigation, kicking in doors, and roughing up suspects. Gen. Donovan isn't too happy to learn that his detectives basically ignored every word he so eloquently said about being discreet, but they may not actually know what the word means. Does he not understand that Francis is not a tactful person, and may not even be capable of restraint?

Still, they find evidence that the dead man's son may have been the culprit. They believe he was jealous after seeing his father sleep with beautiful women that were his son's age. Luckily enough, Corky and Maguire find the son dead, with his bloody head resting against a poetic suicide note.

Corky and Maguire, not being the most educated fellas, need Donovan to translate. Needless to say, Corky smells something fishy, but everyone else is happy to have a case closed. They just want to get back to celebrating. It looks as if Corky will continue to investigate in the next episode.

Elizabeth is back, and she's got a surprise for Sara Freeman: Sara's mother, Hattie. Elizabeth was not able to convince Hattie's "owner" to set her free, but was able to lay down a large sum of bills to purchase her freedom. Elizabeth can be pretty evil at times, but this is definitely not one of them.

Sara is unbelievably happy, as is understandable, to see her mother after so many years. Matthew is delighted to finally meet his mother-in-law. There's just that one little problem of recounting to Hattie how her two sons died.

Sara knows that her mother would never understand the fact that she lives right next to the street where her brothers were hung from a lamppost, so she devises a tall tale about how they bravely saved the lives of many people on a boat, with no regard for their own safety. How long is it going to be before Hattie learns the disturbing truth?

Morehouse must testify against Robert Cobb Kennedy, the man who attempted to set fire to all of New York, but that would mean condemning his new wife Elizabeth to prison or worse for her involvement. So, he makes a deal with Kennedy: Kennedy's silence for Robert's silence. But that doesn't mean everyone else must remain silent.

Morehouse gets his father Norbert to testify. After all, it was Norbert who allowed the plan to be set in motion right under his nose, and who wanted it to go forth in the first place. Robert pulls his father out of exile for the testimony, despite his wish to never see his father's face ever again.

So Robert and Elizabeth get exactly what they want: to see Kennedy hang, and for Elizabeth to remain free. That's assuming Kennedy remains true to his word, even though Robert tricked him. Criminals can be flaky, after all.

Ellen learns that she is pregnant, so what does she do? She goes back to Francis, the same guy she slept with while Corky was away at war. Maguire doesn't think Corky will ever forgive her anyway, but how about now that Corky will have a new child and the ability to start over? She could at least let him have his child this time since she killed the last one.

The Hope Too Bright to Last

Season 2
Episode Number: 17
Season Episode: 7

Originally aired:	Sunday August 4, 2013
Writer:	Tom Fontana, Kevin Deiboldt, Kate Erickson
Director:	Nathan Morlando
Show Stars:	Tom Weston-Jones (Detective Kevin Corcoran), Kyle Schmid (Robert Morehouse), Anastasia Griffith (Elizabeth Haverford), Ato Essandoh (Dr. Matthew Freeman), Tessa Thompson (Sara Freeman), Kevin Ryan (Francis Maguire), Alex Paxton-Beesley (Ellen Corcoran), Dylan Taylor (Andrew O'Brien), Franka Potente (Eva Heissen), Ron White (I) (Captain Ciaran Joseph Sullivan)
Recurring Role:	Donal Logue (Brendan Donovan), Geordie Johnson (Norbert Morehouse), Lachlan Murdoch (Telegraph Operator)
Guest Stars:	Alfre Woodard (Hattie Lemaster), Lee Tergesen (Philomen Keating), J. D. Nicholson (Orrin Lansing), Kendra Anderson (II) (Kentigerna McGrath), Brad Austin (Richie), Tom Barnett (Billy Hannigan), Matt Burkhardt (Milo O'Hearn), Theo Caldwell (Maillard), Lisa Codrington (Lydie Turnow), Jai Jai Jones (Jack Turnow), Peter Jorgensen (Photographer), Tim Koetting (Elderly White Man), Chris Lightfoot (Businessman), Michael Longstaff (White Doctor), William MacDonald (Patric Daley), Heidi Malley (Rosie), Landon Norris (Michael McGrath), Peter Schoelier (Carpenter), Amanda Smith (Elderly White Woman), Supinder Wraich (Lola)
Summary:	Detective Corcoran's investigation hits a dead end. Doctor Freeman must deal with a cholera outbreak as it spreads through Five Points. Elizabeth attempts to assist with Morehouse business. Donovan recruits Eva to expand influence within his own affairs. Corcoran leans Ellen is pregnant and is once again at odds with Maguire.

Gen. Donovan seems on the outside to be a good, noble man, but he actually just wants what's best for himself. As such, he's not too happy about Corky looking into their latest closed case. Corky is probably correct about something fishy going on, but he is forced to drop it anyway.

Now he's got someone new to save: the woman whose husband tried to send her sons off to war – killing a couple of them in the process – and her son. The son buys a gun to kill their pervert landlord, who keeps threatening his mother's safety, but Corky wants to save the poor kid from hanging. Corky talks the kid out of pulling a pistol on the landlord, and decides to train him in boxing. It's fine to defend yourself with a fist in Five Points, just not with a gun.

Corky also sets up an inspection for the landlord with Donovan's help, in order to attack the landlord at his wallet. The plan works, and Donovan is happy to help if it means getting Corky's nose out of a closed case. Plus, Corky gets to flirt with his new female friend, and be a father figure to her son. All in all a good day's work.

Robert wants to rid himself of all the evils which surround him, and loses his entire fortune in the process. It's an accident, but it seems as if he doesn't want his father's corrupt money. Elizabeth calls in Norbert, Robert's father, so he can fix the situation. But Robert would rather be penniless than allow his father to regain their fortune using corrupt means.

Norbert conspires to save the fortune behind Robert's back, leaving Robert furious with both his father and his wife. Poor Robert doesn't know how to ease his pain other than through drinking enough not to care where he is or who he's married to. He's an honorable man surrounded by criminals.

Freeman must deal with a cholera outbreak that only seems to be affecting a few poor people in one building. He soon finds that it is not cholera at all, but bacteria in the water coming from a newly built well. It looks as if he will be studying the new bug further in the next episode.

Donovan wants Eva to help him take down an enemy who stands in the way of building aqueducts for the city, but she goes a little too far. Instead of bending the pervert to her will, she sets him up to look like a fool by having one of her girls drug him to have pictures taken of him in bed with a man. He wakes before that can happen and runs off naked. It's hilarious, but only serves to make the man angry, with his suspicions aimed at Donovan.

Then the benevolent and noble Donovan becomes very dodgy indeed. He really wants to take this guy down. In addition, he seems to have a past with Eva. He makes use of her, um... services, but what does that mean? It was assumed that Eva may be pregnant with Corky's child, but now it seems as if it could be Donovan's. What will Donovan's next move be?

Ellen doesn't know where to turn for help with her new pregnancy, so she turns to Sara Freeman and her mother Hattie. Hattie knows a little something about despair, and offers the most sensible advice: Ellen should tell her husband Corky as soon as possible.

Unfortunately, when she searches for Corky, she spots Eva acting affectionately toward him as he drinks with a friend at the whorehouse. Eva rarely acts that way with Corky anymore, so it's possible that she saw Ellen spying and decided to make her jealous.

Either way, Ellen's fragile psyche can't handle the thought of Corky carrying on at the whorehouse while she sits at home pregnant. It's too much for her to handle, despite the fact that Corky has actually been sleeping at the precinct lately.

Sara takes matters into her own hands and tells Corky about the pregnancy, at which time he immediately flies off the handle and accuses Francis of sleeping with her again and getting her pregnant. He swears up and down that this is not the case until Corky finally believes him.

So Corky finally gets to start over with a new child after Ellen killed the last one. That's great news, right? Right? Not so fast. Ellen had her own knee-jerk reaction after seeing Eva touch her husband's head, and has hung herself. There goes another baby, and his latest hope for happiness and fatherhood.

Ashes Denote That Fire Was

Season 2

Episode Number: 18

Season Episode: 8

Originally aired: Sunday August 18, 2013
Writer: Tom Fontana, Kyle Bradstreet, Andrea Ciannavei
Director: Deborah Chow
Show Stars: Tom Weston-Jones (Detective Kevin Corcoran), Kyle Schmid (Robert Morehouse), Anastasia Griffith (Elizabeth Haverford), Ato Essandoh (Dr. Matthew Freeman), Tessa Thompson (Sara Freeman), Kevin Ryan (Detective Francis Maguire), Kiara Glasco (Annie Reilly), Alex Paxton-Beesley (Ellen Corcoran), Dylan Taylor (Andrew O'Brien), Ron White (I) (Captain Ciaran Joseph Sullivan), Franka Potente (Eva Heissen)
Recurring Role: Donal Logue (Brendan Donovan), Geordie Johnson (Norbert Morehouse), Aaron Poole (Robert Cobb Kennedy), Lara Jean Chorostecki (Sybil O'Brien)
Guest Stars: J. D. Nicholson (Orrin Lansing), Alfre Woodard (Hattie Lemaster), James Cade (Officer Ray Coolin), Lisa Codrington (Lydie Turnow), Paul Gagnon (Jailer), Jonathan Higgins (Mark Coddington), Brian Kaulback (Major General John Adams Dix), Patrick Rose (Old Crooner), Cedric Smith (Father Liam Burke)
Summary: Both Five Points and Uptown try to console Detective Corcoran who is in shock after finding Ellen dead. Doctor Freeman is determined to find a cure for the illness that is spreading through Five Points. Morehouse fights to protect his family and ensure that part of his past is kept hidden.

Corky makes the preparations for the funeral, starting by building a coffin from scratch. The next part isn't so easy, however. The church will not allow Ellen to be buried next to her daughter Maggie, since Ellen sinned by taking her own life. So, the priest comes up with a loophole: cremate her, then scatter her ashes beside Maggie's grave.

The next step is to ask Sara Freeman for a dress that Ellen can wear during the funeral. Luck has it that Hattie, having been a former slave, knows how to prepare bodies for funeral ceremonies. Hattie and Sara prepare the body together.

During the funeral, Corky is extremely grateful to Sara for making Ellen look so beautiful, but when O'Brien's wife makes the same comment, he argues with her about dead people being incapable of being beautiful. The argument about ugly dead people is a nice break of comedic relief from the sadness on Corky's face. He even cracks a smile.

Robert and Elizabeth Morehouse stop by, with Elizabeth and Corky having some kind, if strained, words for each other for once.

Eva then stops by to leave a basket, nearly making her escape before Corky spots her while going out for some air. She feels the suicide was her fault for the fact that Ellen may have thought the child in Eva's pregnant belly was Corky's. While Eva's fears appeared to be true, Corky absolves her of guilt since their marriage had been strained and painful long before Ellen ever met Eva. Corky also confirms that Eva's unborn child is not his, because "the timing's all wrong."

Annie finally comes around to pay her respects, but not to cause any trouble in the process. She has actually found a nice family to live with and take care of her. She even took the name Annie Corcoran and told them that Corky was her father, which causes Corky to beam with both pride and sadness. He is prideful that she finally listened to him and sad that she will no longer be around. Corky is on his own now.

Lastly, Francis comes by after everyone else has left. This man who helped cause the rift between Corky and Ellen is also a tremendous, if dishonest and cruel, ally. He still loves Ellen, but he loves Corky even more. He would kill or die for Corky, which means that there's very little Corky can't accomplish with Francis as his partner.

Kennedy sets a fire in his cell in order to kill a guard and escape. As Robert goes to watch the preparations for the hanging, Kennedy is at his home, attempting to defile his wife. The conniving Elizabeth plays along, promising to help him escape, until Robert rushes home after learning what happened. The couple does some dual-conniving to drug Kennedy and drag him back to his death sentence, finally finding some relief in watching him hang for his crimes.

Freeman attempts to save the poor people who have been dying from the bacteria-laden well water, but he makes a horrible mistake that results in the death of a child. Apparently, they do not yet know about blood-typing, as he attempts to save the girl with healthy blood from a reluctantly giving patrolman. After a day of racial insults from the white patrolman, Freeman now has to deal with insults from the black father of the dead girl, who thinks he is too white for becoming an educated doctor. The poor guy can't win!

Even Hattie seems upset about the situation. While she is grateful for being saved, she also seems to think that freedom should not come at the price of destitution. She seems to prefer the comfortable slave life over the poor and free life. But Freeman ignores all the naysayers and is determined to write what he knows about the bacteria in order to save lives. That story will be continued in the next episode.

Donovan really wants that aqueduct contract, so he decides to become "flexible" in his "negotiation" tactics. That means having Francis torture the poor guy who stands in his way until he signs off on it. So it looks like Donovan will have his aqueduct, which will serve more than two million people.

Think Gently of the Erring

Season 2
Episode Number: 19
Season Episode: 9

Originally aired: Sunday August 25, 2013
Writer: Kevin Deiboldt, Theresa Rebeck, Will Rokos
Director: Clément Virgo
Show Stars: Tom Weston-Jones (Detective Kevin Corcoran), Kyle Schmid (Robert Morehouse), Anastasia Griffith (Elizabeth Haverford), Ato Essandoh (Dr. Matthew Freeman), Tessa Thompson (Sara Freeman), Kevin Ryan (Detective Francis Maguire), Dylan Taylor (Andrew O'Brien), Ron White (I) (Captain Ciaran Joseph Sullivan), Franka Potente (Eva Heissen)
Recurring Role: Donal Logue (Brendan Donovan), Geordie Johnson (Norbert Morehouse), Adrian Griffin (Morehouse's Butler), Lara Jean Chorostecki (Sybil O'Brien), Brad Austin (Richie)
Guest Stars: Alfre Woodard (Hattie Lemaster), J. D. Nicholson (Orrin Lansing), Bruce Beaton (Sedgley Craven), Lindy Booth (Teresa Trembley), Matt Burkhardt (Milo O'Hearn), Joris Jarsky (Rough-looking Man), Dan Lett (Aldeerman Byford Stonington), David J. MacNeil (Bartender), Douglas Nyback (Paul Jenkins), Josh Peace (Jack Ramsay), Michael Rhoades (Doctor Huette Wells), Jim Watson (III) (Conor Glynn), Supinder Wraich (Lola)
Summary: Detective Corcoran is stunned when Eva is sent to the tombs for attempted murder. Doing his best to get help from those in power he finds that Donovan is of no help, as he's involved in an upcoming political and business deal. Doctor Freeman seeks out Morehouse with an idea to aid the city.

It's nicer than her own place!

Things really go awry when someone suffocates Jack with a pillow, putting Eva in danger of hanging for murder. Donovan becomes more interested in protecting Eva once he learns that the baby she is carrying is his, but it is Kevin who she wants to sleep with – which she does right there in her cell, with the danger of anyone walking in at any moment!

Elizabeth Morehouse has become nothing but a slobbering mess. That woman has completely lost her mind! Her husband Robert doesn't mind so much as long as he is having sex with her, but he greatly minds when she embarrasses him. All is forgiven, however, with another little romp in bed.

Everything probably would have been fine if the guy hadn't been rich. Unfortunately, it's the rich ones who are most brazen, and rich-guy Jack decides to give Lola, one of Eva's prostitutes, a black eye.

Eva asks nicely for Jack to stop, and he pulls out a knife and nearly stabs her hand to the bar with it. Well, he should have known better than to mess with a pregnant woman! She takes the knife and stabs him in the eye. Bad timing. Gen. Donovan is putting in his bid for mayor, so he's not feeling very helpful toward Eva. At least Kevin is fully on board and gets Eva set up in the lush governor's cell.

When Robert decides to cut her off from the opiates, her deep addiction forces her to find a way to get more. She decides to buy an even stronger strain in secret, shaking violently as she begins drinking it straight. She will likely wind up dead very soon.

Matthew writes up a paper about the well that was infected with bacteria, listing other wells in the area that could also potentially pose a threat to public health and safety. Robert agrees to make sure the paper is published, since doctors and researchers of the time are more likely to believe the word of a rich white man than any black man. Unfortunately, Robert's father, Norbert, has other ideas when he realizes that some of the locations are owned by the Morehouses, and levying fines against those places would constitute fining themselves.

Norbert destroys the report by tossing it into the fireplace, forcing Robert to request that Matthew go to the painstaking task of writing up a new copy from scratch, then making a second copy by hand. Meanwhile, Elizabeth was busy destroying any chance that the paper would be published by drunkenly flirting with the one doctor Robert hoped would publish the report. Needless to say, the doctor leaves in disgust, and Robert must think of another way to get it published.

Hattie argues with a rude and racist grocer who doesn't want her touching his vegetables. Matthew loses his mind when the grocer uses a shockingly hateful slur against his wife and mother-in-law, almost killing the grocer. The grocer claims to "know people" and promises that they will all burn to death for what Matthew has done. Let's just hope he's full of hot air.

Lansing refuses to settle for being forced to sign the aqueduct deal and kills a confidant close to Donovan who is busy putting away Donovan's important documents in a lockbox. Donovan reacts by stealing back the documents and having Francis bury Lansing alive. With a prostitute's baby and murder under his belt, when are Donovan's actions going to come back to bite him?

Kevin decides to speak with Jack's cousin Jenkins to see whether there's a way to get him to back off his statements that Eva was at fault for Jack's murder. Almost everyone in the bar is on Eva's side, after all, but most of them either work there or are regulars at the bar. Kevin really needs to find someone not connected to the bar who will back Eva's story of self defense.

When Jenkins begins telling Kevin about the time he passed Eva around to his friends "like a bottle of cheap booze," Corky looks as if he's about to explode. He does, in a sense, when he goes nuts on Jenkins. He beats the snot out of Jenkins until O'Brien pulls him off.

The Fine Ould Irish Gentleman

Season 2

Episode Number: 20

Season Episode: 10

Originally aired:	Sunday September 1, 2013
Writer:	Kyle Bradstreet
Director:	Larysa Kondracki
Show Stars:	Tom Weston-Jones (Detective Kevin Corcoran), Kyle Schmid (Robert Morehouse), Anastasia Griffith (Elizabeth Haverford), Ato Essandoh (Dr. Matthew Freeman), Tessa Thompson (Sara Freeman), Kevin Ryan (Detective Francis Maguire), Dylan Taylor (Andrew O'Brien), Ron White (I) (Captain Ciaran Joseph Sullivan), Franka Potente (Eva Heissen)
Recurring Role:	Donal Logue (Brendan Donovan), Geordie Johnson (Norbert Morehouse), Adrian Griffin (Morehouse's Butler), Brad Austin (Richie), Alfre Woodard (Hattie Lemaster), Jim Watson (III) (Conor Glynn), Supinder Wraich (Lola)
Guest Stars:	Dean Armstrong (John Sutton), Bruce Beaton (Sedgley Craven), Brian Bisson (Moustachioed Soldier), Lindy Booth (Teresa Trembley), Albert Chung (Mister Wong), Patrick Garrow (Man in Suit), Giacomo Gianinni (Donovan's Clerk), Joris Jarsky (Rough-looking Man), Rayisa Kondracki (Roxana), Dan Lett (Alderman Byford Stonington), Josh Peace (Jack Ramsay), Alan C. Peterson (J.E. Lovrich)
Summary:	Detective Corcoran asks the Sixth Precinct coppers to help him figure out the truth behind Donovan's strongholds in Five Points. Morehouse's marriage is threatening his business ventures. The Freemans tackle community bigots while striving to maintain their freedom.

The Episcopalians are singing hymns and holding signs outside the precinct, calling for poor pregnant Eva's hanging after the death of dirty old man Jack, whom she stabbed in the eye. Donovan sells her a bill of goods in the form of a good lawyer in exchange for buying out her saloon/whorehouse, then turns around and has Corky and O'Brien shut the place down.

Corky's fellow soldiers feel betrayed to have their only refuge removed, and all the prostitutes are dragged to jail. Many are now homeless. Could this possibly have anything to do with the fact that Donovan is trying to become mayor while Eva carries his child? Hmm...

Corky loses trust in Donovan by the minute

After Donovan again becomes infuriated by Corky following legitimate leads in the compounding number of murders, Corky finally senses that something is not quite right with Donovan. He begins going through Donovan's things, despite protestations of fellow coppers.

With Matthew's help, Corky is at least able to prove that Jack ("stabbed-in-the-eye guy") was suffocated to death with a pillow. The only problem is that it will be difficult to prove that Donovan had anything to do with it.

Donovan has done very little of the dirty work himself. He has sent Francis to torture and kill off competitors and others who do not stand with him. Not this time. When Donovan asks Francis to kill Theresa the witness, of whom Francis had grown fond, Francis finally comes clean to Corky and O'Brien about what has been going on.

They realize that Donovan may finally get his hands dirty after Francis failed to kill Theresa, and they are right. They run to save her, but they are too late and in the wrong place. Donovan called her out of her home to kill her, and she will most likely "disappear" without a shred of evidence to prove that Donovan strangled her with his bare hands.

Hattie learns the truth

Hattie is just beginning to see the charm in making friends and living a free life, even if it's in a run-down old slum like Five Points. Of course, that's right when Corky inadvertently tells her the truth of what happened to her boys. As he attempts to thank her for beautifying his dead wife for her wake, he mentions that little fact that her sons had been lynched.

Hattie runs out of the house to go scream at Sara and Matthew for putting her through the pain and suffering of learning such a horrible truth right when she was beginning to enjoy her new life. And she is right. What was Sara thinking? She had to know that her mother would find out eventually, because pretty much everyone but Hattie knew the truth.

Matthew and Robert have their first fight

Matthew has had some great male bonding moments with Corky, and Corky has had a great bromance with Robert Morehouse. Now it's time for Matthew and Robert to become friends and complete the male friendship triangle.

Robert is trying his best to become a good person and help his dear friend Matthew save some lives by getting Matthew's report published regarding the deadly new bacteria. Unfortunately, Robert's slobbering, drugged-out wife Elizabeth and scheming father Norbert are working in direct opposition to his goals. Matthew believes Robert's help comes at the price of using blood money and that Robert doesn't seem to care about doing the right thing. They have their first little spat about the situation, leaving Robert nearly in tears.

Good Heart and Willing Hand

Season 2
Episode Number: 21
Season Episode: 11

Originally aired: Sunday September 8, 2013
Writer: Kevin Deiboldt, Kyle Bradstreet
Director: T.J. Scott
Show Stars: Tom Weston-Jones (Detective Kevin Corcoran), Kyle Schmid (Robert Morehouse), Anastasia Griffith (Elizabeth Haverford), Ato Essandoh (Dr. Matthew Freeman), Tessa Thompson (Sara Freeman), Kevin Ryan (Detective Francis Maguire), Dylan Taylor (Andrew O'Brien), Ron White (I) (Captain Ciaran Joseph Sullivan), Franka Potente (Eva Heissen)
Recurring Role: Donal Logue (Brendan Donovan), Geordie Johnson (Norbert Morehouse), Adrian Griffin (Morehouse's Butler)
Guest Stars: Dean Armstrong (John Sutton), Bruce Beaton (Sedgley Craven), Lindy Booth (Teresa Trembley), John Callander (Joel Trembley), Sarah Evans (Jacqueline Trembley), Paul Fauteux (City Clerk), Patrick Garrow (David Holland), Giacomo Gianniotti (Donovan's Clerk), Ashleigh Harrington (Morehouse's Maid), Ron Lea (Judge), Dan Lett (Alderman Byford Stonington), Alan C. Peterson (J.E. Lovrich), Adrian Shepherd-Gawinski (City Assistant)
Summary: Detective Corcoran must take drastic action when destruction threatens Five Points. Matthew is pushed to the breaking point. Eva goes to trial. Elizabeth sinks deeper into addiction but an unlikely source intervenes.

Donovan had just killed Theresa, the witness that could eventually tie him to other murders, in the previous episode. Without the forensics of the modern world, it's going to be nearly impossible to prove that Donovan did it, especially when he's got people paid off in every corner of Five Points. Francis is feeling particularly guilty, as the parents believe he had been tasked with protecting her.

Corky finally learns the depth of Donovan's deception when he seeks the help of his good friend Robert Morehouse. Robert did not know of his own dirty dealings with Donovan, including the buying out of Eva's Paradise "Saloon," until he saw his father Norbert's documents.

Robert obtains additional documents for Corky, detailing Donovan's buying of land throughout the area. All deals are hidden through third parties, such as those through the Morehouses. Donovan intends to build his aqueduct right through, tearing down all the property he has bought up and displacing scores of people.

There's not much Corky can do, other than kill Donovan. That wouldn't be very copper-like, but it's the only option when faced with an unbeatable criminal. Well, there's also the option of dying. So, Corky decides to play a little game of Russian Roulette with Donovan.

Corky lays out five guns, and only one of them has a bullet. He also has a gun that he stole from Donovan's desk, so he can always shoot Donovan if he refuses to take the risk of shooting himself. When they finally pare down to the final two guns, they each grab one and point them at each other. Donovan's is empty. Will Corky shoot Donovan with the last gun? We'll have to wait until next week to find out.

Matthew is beaten by the shop owner whose window he broke. The racist man who hurled epithets at his dear wife and mother-in-law gets his due when Corky and O'Brien trash his business and smash a bottle over his head. Capt. Sullivan also suggests levying double the taxes on the man.

Matthew doesn't want their help, however. In fact, it only serves to anger him until Sara has a little heart to heart with him. Matthew is becoming unstable because he is allowing his anger to fester. She reminds him that he's no longer a slave and has the right to confront his attacker.

The confrontation is one of the top scenes of the series. After a long argument, Matthew finally agrees with the shop owner on one thing: He is not the shop owner's equal. No, because Matthew is smarter and stronger than that growling "mangy little dog."

The superb exchange is followed with bitingly sarcastic moment in which Matthew offers the man a salve for the wound inflicted by Corky. He tosses the container at the man's chest, allowing it to drop to the ground. He gives the man two choices: use the salve or "don't, and let it rot." Matthew doesn't much care either way, but at least he vented his anger while also performing his duties as a physician and giving the shop owner a taste of his own medicine.

Elizabeth is drugged out of her mind when Norbert enters with a tub of cold water and begins dunking her head into it. He then gives her an ultimatum: stop using drugs or indulge elsewhere. She finally cleans up, at least for the short term. It's too soon to tell whether she will stay on track.

With his wife finally sober, Robert offers an apology. He has made his share of mistakes and cannot continue to be angered by her betrayal when he has done the same sorts of things in the past. It's time to forgive her. As Elizabeth suggests, perhaps they can finally have some time when they are both happy with each other at the same time.

Beautiful Dreamer

Season 2

Episode Number: 22

Season Episode: 12

Originally aired: Sunday September 15, 2013
Writer: Thomas Kelly (II)
Director: Kari Skogland
Show Stars: Tom Weston-Jones (Detective Kevin Corcoran), Kyle Schmid (Robert Morehouse), Anastasia Griffith (Elizabeth Haverford), Ato Essandoh (Dr. Matthew Freeman), Tessa Thompson (Sara Freeman), Kevin Ryan (Detective Francis Maguire), Dylan Taylor (Andrew O'Brien), Ron White (I) (Captain Ciaran Joseph Sullivan), Franka Potente (Eva Heissen)
Recurring Role: Donal Logue (Brendan Donovan), Geordie Johnson (Norbert Morehouse), Adrian Griffin (Morehouse's Butler), Supinder Wraich (Lola)
Guest Stars: William Baldwin (William "Wild Bill" Eustace), Kendra Anderson (II) (Kentigerna McGrath), Nick Pulver-Andrews (Nick the Cop), Jason Barbeck (Tim Goran), Tom Barnett (William Hannigan), Patrick Garrow (David Holland), Giacomo Gianniotti (Donovan's Clerk), Joan Gregson (Margaret Sullivan), Jonathan Higgins (Mark Coddington), John Tench (Michael Ward), Anthony Ulc (Tombs Guard)
Summary: Corcoran must stay on the move to avoid retaliation, but he continues to pursue what he set in motion. As the people of Five Points and uptown struggle in a town obsessed with vengeance, old loyalties will be tested. The assassination of President Lincoln shatters post-war recovery hopes for both New York City and the United States.

Kevin quickly searches through Donovan's things, finding a hidden compartment with additional documents. He steals everything he can find and hides it in a satchel. Francis and O'Brien are surprised that Kevin went so far after allowing his emotions to get the better of him, but they decide to stick with him to get back their good ol' Five Points home.

Kevin quickly goes to work and sends one of the beat cops off to Robert Morehouse's place with the satchel. He then asks Captain Sullivan to sign an order to release Eva from prison for questioning, saying it's under Donovan's orders. Sullivan has never had reason to distrust Kevin before but notices that something is off with him.

Kevin quickly makes his way to Eva, waits for a slowpoke to sign the paperwork, then takes her off to Robert's place. He then asks Robert to go through all the paperwork to find proof that Donovan was a scum bag and heads off to hide at Mrs. McGrath's house.

What Kevin doesn't take into consideration is that someone saw every step that he took, and the information gets back to Donovan's men. With their power, influence, and willingness to maim, torture, and pay large sums of money to get what they want, the whole town is looking for Kevin.

Captain Sullivan is the first to be threatened, with a swift punch to his dear old mum's face in his own home. He tells them he saw Kevin give the satchel to one of the officers.

Donovan's men quickly find the officer and torture him. He's a good man; they have to cut off two of his toes before he gives up Robert's name.

Then two of the men head to Robert's, but Francis and Robert's butler are waiting for them with guns. Meanwhile, more of Donovan's men find where Kevin has been hiding out based on a tip that promises a big reward. In fact, Kevin was sleeping with the sexy Mrs. McGrath while his copper friend was being tortured.

The missing-toed officer and Mrs. McGrath both wind up at the last remaining safe-haven in town: Matthew Freeman's house. At least Mrs. McGrath has the distinction of being the first woman Kevin brings to them who is not dead or bleeding to death.

Francis takes the papers organized by Robert and Norbert over to Kevin's underground hiding place. Donovan had some dirt on a reporter, so they decide to blackmail him so he'll print some of the proof of Tammany Hall's greed in the papers. They don't have to try very hard; he's happy to do it.

O'Brien then takes Sullivan to meet with Kevin in private. Sullivan just wants to do the right thing, so he decides to trust Kevin over Donovan's horrible friends. They set up Donovan's men, most of whom are shot dead by Kevin, Francis, and O'Brien. Kevin promises not to kill the last of them in order to obtain the name of the man who sent them right before offing the tattler, too.

The new man behind everything is William "Wild Bill" Eustace. Under the threat of more secrets being published, he reveals that two of Kevin's wishes will be easily met: Eva goes free, with all charges dropped, and Kevin will not be blamed for Donovan's death. Kevin would prefer Donovan's death deemed as suicide rather than an accident, but he can't have everything.

There are two more things Kevin wants: the aqueduct to be diverted away from Five Points, and the ability to name Donovan's replacement for Sixth Ward boss. Those will take a little more work, but Eustace seems willing to do it.

The episode ends with a celebration at Eva's, congratulating Kevin for being "the hero of Five Points."

The Place I Called My Home

Season 2

Episode Number: 23

Season Episode: 13

Originally aired: Sunday September 22, 2013
Writer: Will Rokos
Director: Larysa Kondracki
Show Stars: Tom Weston-Jones (Detective Kevin Corcoran), Kyle Schmid (Robert Morehouse), Anastasia Griffith (Elizabeth Haverford), Ato Essandoh (Dr. Matthew Freeman), Tessa Thompson (Sara Freeman), Kevin Ryan (Detective Francis Maguire), Dylan Taylor (Andrew O'Brien), Ron White (I) (Captain Ciaran Joseph Sullivan), Franka Potente (Eva Heissen)
Recurring Role: Geordie Johnson (Norbert Morehouse), Adrian Griffin (Morehouse's Butler), Brad Austin (Richie), Supinder Wraich (Lola)
Guest Stars: William Baldwin (William "Wild Bill" Eustace), Karen Andrew (Leah), Troy Blundell (Major Josiah Rinson), Michael Bradley (II) (Honor Guard), Michael Iliadis (Marion Morris), Paul Johnston (II) (Porter), Peyton Kennedy (Clara Purvis), Frank Moore (Dr. Beaumont Purvis), Billy Otis (Rutt Waymond), Nick Stojanovic (Cavalry Captain), Abigail Winter-Culliford (Gillian Purvis)
Summary: Corcoran, Morehouse and Doctor Freeman join the national effort and set out to track down Lincoln's killer, John Wilkes Booth. With Donovan dead and the ensuing chaos in New York, Tammany Hall finds an unlikely successor.

Matthew had just delivered the news that President Lincoln has been assassinated. Corky stands with Matthew and Robert and their two wives, Sara and Elizabeth, to view Lincoln's body. The men then go off to celebrate the president's life with some heavy drinking and reminiscing. They were honored to serve him.

Robert comes up with the crazy idea of traveling south to find Booth on their own. After a bit of protest, the still-drunk men all agree, as if this is going to be a grand party. They temporarily forget that they will be traveling dangerously close to where Matthew was once enslaved.

Each of the three men go through a series of nightmares on their journey south. The Civil War may technically be over, but not everyone agrees that it should be or that black men should be free. The aftermath of the war still lingers with memories and a tortured body hanging from the trees.

The men come across what appears to be trouble, until Corky has the good sense to declare that he is a detective searching for a bank robber, not a soldier searching for Booth. There's no need for worry, however, as their possible enemies are weary from war. They are glad for it to be over.

The men finally locate Booth, but he has already been captured and killed by their fellow soldiers. Robert had hoped to bring Booth back alive, and he proceeds to lose his mind over the issue as his half-leg becomes infected. Matthew needs medical supplies quickly!

The only place Matthew knows to look for supplies is at his previous "owner's" plantation. Matthew takes what he needs from the disgusting plantation owner, who stands nearby creating "art" that consists of a comparison between a deeply scarred black man's back and his own daughter's "perfect" white skin.

The place holds ghosts and painful memories for all three men, as this is where Robert and Corky accidentally shot an innocent white woman, whom Matthew had known since she was a child. She had still been alive and in pain, begging for Matthew to kill her. He did as she wished, suffocating her with his bare hands, sobbing over her lifeless body.

On their return home, O'Brien informs Corky that he has been chosen to replace Gen. Donovan – the man Corky just killed before heading off with his friends – as Sixth Ward boss. What Corky doesn't know is that Robert's father, Norbert, handed over the only thing Corky had to keep himself and Five Points safe: the documents proving corruption at Tammany Hall.

Consequently, Corky finds that Eva's Paradise saloon has been shut down, with two bloody bodies sitting in barrels. One of the bodies is Eva's go-to girl, Lola, but Eva is nowhere to be found. Meanwhile, William "Wild Bill" Eustace checks his watch, sensing that Corky is not taking his offer to become ward boss seriously.

Actor Appearances

A

Ryan Allen.....	3
0104 (Jasper Longfield); 0105 (Jasper Longfield);
0106 (Jasper Longfield)
Kendra Anderson (II).....	4
0201 (Kentigerna McGrath); 0202 (Kentigerna Mc-
Grath); 0207 (Kentigerna McGrath); 0212 (Kentigerna
McGrath)
Karen Andrew.....	1
0213 (Leah)
Geoffrey Antoine.....	1
0101 (Julius)
Dean Armstrong.....	2
0210 (John Sutton); 0211 (John Sutton)
Molly Atkinson.....	1
0206 (Mab Dwyer)
Brad Austin.....	7
0201 (Richie); 0202 (Richie); 0204 (Richie); 0207
(Richie); 0209 (Richie); 0210 (Richie); 0213 (Richie)

B

William Baldwin.....	2
0212 (William "Wild Bill" Eustace); 0213 (William
"Wild Bill" Eustace)
Jason Barbeck.....	1
0212 (Tim Goran)
Tom Barnett.....	2
0207 (Billy Hannigan); 0212 (William Hannigan)
Bruce Beaton.....	3
0209 (Sedgley Craven); 0210 (Sedgley Craven); 0211
(Sedgley Craven)
Sean Bell.....	1
0105 (Smiling Hugh O'Connell)
Angela Besharah.....	1
0108 (Nelly McLean)
Brian Bisson.....	1
0210 (Moustachioed Soldier)
Maggie Blake.....	1
0104 (Josephina)
Troy Blundell.....	1
0213 (Major Josiah Rinson)
Joanne Boland.....	5
0104 (Mary Lockwood); 0105 (Mary Lockwood); 0106
(Mary Lockwood); 0107 (Mary Lockwood); 0108
(Mary lockwood)
Lindy Booth.....	3
0209 (Teresa Trembley); 0210 (Teresa Trembley);
0211 (Teresa Trembley)
John Bourgeois.....	1
0206 (Major John Augustus Bolles)
Will Bowes.....	5
0108 (Phinbar Byrnes); 0110 (Phinbar Byrnes); 0201
(Phinbar Byrnes); 0202 (Phinbar Byrnes); 0203
(Phinbar Byrnes)
Will Seattle Bowes.....	1
0107 (Phinbar Byrnes)

Michael Bradley (II).....	1
0213 (Honor Guard)
Alexander Broughton.....	1
0106 (Patrolman)
Peter Bryant.....	3
0104 (Marcus Freeman); 0105 (Marcus Freeman);
0106 (Marcus Freeman)
Evan Buliung.....	2
0109 (Edwin Booth); 0110 (Edwin Booth)
Matt Burkhardt.....	3
0204 (Milo O'Hearn); 0207 (Milo O'Hearn); 0209
(Milo O'Hearn)
Jim Byrnes (I).....	1
0203 (Sgt. Major Atticus Reid)

C

James Cade.....	2
0205 (Tough Copper); 0208 (Officer Ray Coolin)
Theo Caldwell.....	1
0207 (Maillard)
John Callander.....	1
0211 (Joel Trembley)
Lara Jean Chorostecki.....	5
0105 (Sybil O'Brien); 0107 (Sybil O'Brien); 0206
(Sybil O'Brien); 0208 (Sybil O'Brien); 0209 (Sybil O'Brien)
Albert Chung.....	1
0210 (Mister Wong)
Michael Coady.....	1
0201 (Asst. District Attorney)
Lisa Codrington.....	2
0207 (Lydie Turnow); 0208 (Lydie Turnow)
James Collins.....	1
0110 (Big Bald Man)

D

Noah Danby.....	1
0201 (Boris Buzzie Burke)
Matthew Deslippe.....	4
0101 (John Reilly); 0102 (John Reilly); 0106 (John Reilly); 0107 (John Reilly)
Christopher Dyson.....	1
0107 (Haverford's Coachman)

E

Scott Edgecombe.....	1
0202 (John Hurley)
Vivien Endicott-Douglas.....	1
0204 (Fiona Murphy)
Sarah Evans.....	1
0211 (Jacqueline Trembley)

F

Abigail Falle ..... 1
 0206 (Blonde Girl)

Paul Fauteux ..... 1
 0211 (City Clerk)

Barry Flatman ..... 1
 0107 (Mayor Charles Godfrey Gunther)

Murray Furrow ..... 1
 0104 (James Thompson)

G

Paul Gagnon ..... 1
 0208 (Jailer)

Patrick Garrow ..... 3
 0210 (Man in Suit); 0211 (David Holland); 0212 (David Holland)

Giacomo Gianniotti ..... 3
 0210 (Donovan's Clerk); 0211 (Donovan's Clerk); 0212 (Donovan's Clerk)

Chris Gibbs ..... 1
 0201 (Constituent)

Michael Giel ..... 1
 0205 (Bearded Druid)

James Gilbert ..... 2
 0109 (John Wilkes Booth); 0110 (John Wilkes Booth)

Donna Goodhand ..... 1
 0108 (Matron)

Joan Gregson ..... 1
 0212 (Margaret Sullivan)

Adrian Griffin ..... 9
 0101 (Morehouse's Butler); 0201 (Morehouse's Butler); 0203 (Morehouse's Butler); 0204 (Morehouse's Butler); 0209 (Morehouse's Butler); 0210 (Morehouse's Butler); 0211 (Morehouse's Butler); 0212 (Morehouse's Butler); 0213 (Morehouse's Butler)

H

Eli Ham ..... 2
 0103 (George); 0104 (George)

Ashleigh Harrington ..... 1
 0211 (Morehouse's Maid)

Edward Heeley ..... 1
 0106 (Doctor Phineas Grimes)

Jonathan Higgins ..... 3
 0202 (Mark Coddington); 0208 (Mark Coddington); 0212 (Mark Coddington)

Andrew Howard ..... 3
 0203 (Mr. O'Rourke); 0204 (Mr. O'Rourke); 0205 (James O'Rourke)

I

Michael Iliadis ..... 1
 0213 (Marion Morris)

J

Andrew Jackson ..... 2
 0109 (Junius Brutus Booth Jr.); 0110 (Junius Brutus Booth Jr.)

Joris Jarsky ..... 2
 0209 (Rough-looking Man); 0210 (Rough-looking Man)

Jason Jazrawy ..... 1
 0106 (Monsignor Sean McNamara)

Geordie Johnson ..... 12

0104 (Norbert Morehouse); 0105 (Norbert Morehouse); 0107 (Norbert Morehouse); 0110 (Norbert Morehouse); 0206 (Norbert Morehouse); 0207 (Norbert Morehouse); 0208 (Norbert Morehouse); 0209 (Norbert Morehouse); 0210 (Norbert Morehouse); 0211 (Norbert Morehouse); 0212 (Norbert Morehouse); 0213 (Norbert Morehouse)

Taborah Johnson ..... 1
 0206 (Bar Singer)

Paul Johnston (II) ..... 1
 0213 (Porter)

Jai Jai Jones ..... 1
 0207 (Jack Turnow)

Peter Jorgensen ..... 1
 0207 (Photographer)

K

John Kalbhenn ..... 1
 0205 (Shirt Druid)

Kevan Kase ..... 1
 0108 (Republican Man)

Daniel Kash ..... 1
 0104 (Jakob Schwarz)

Brian Kaulback ..... 1
 0208 (Major General John Adams Dix)

Peyton Kennedy ..... 1
 0213 (Clara Purvis)

Jonathan Koensgen ..... 5
 0105 (Seamus Walsh); 0202 (Seamus Walsh); 0203 (Seamus Walsh); 0204 (Seamus Walsh); 0205 (Seamus Walsh)

Tim Koetting ..... 1
 0207 (Elderly White Man)

Rayisa Kondracki ..... 1
 0210 (Roxana)

L

Courtney Lamanna ..... 1
 0106 (Ada Moretti)

Johnny Larocque ..... 1
 0101 (Drunk Coal Peddler)

Shawn Lawrence ..... 1
 0104 (Bishop Benjamin Onderdonk)

Ron Lea ..... 2
 0201 (Judge); 0211 (Judge)

Dan Lett ..... 3
 0209 (Alderman Byford Stonington); 0210 (Alderman Byford Stonington); 0211 (Alderman Byford Stonington)

Chris Lightfoot ..... 1
 0207 (Businessman)

Jeff Lillico ..... 1
 0206 (Benjamin Bartlett)

Amanda Lisman ..... 1
 0104 (Niamh)

Donal Logue ..... 12
 0201 (Brendan Donovan); 0202 (Brendan Donovan); 0203 (Brendan Donovan); 0204 (Brendan Donovan); 0205 (Brendan Donovan); 0206 (Brendan Donovan); 0207 (Brendan Donovan); 0208 (Brendan Donovan); 0209 (Brendan Donovan); 0210 (Brendan Donovan); 0211 (Brendan Donovan); 0212 (Brendan Donovan)

Michael Longstaff ..... 1
 0207 (White Doctor)

M

William MacDonald ..... 1
 0207 (Patric Daley)

Matthew MacFadzean ..... 1
 0103 (Jerry Crotty)

David J. MacNeil ..... 1
 0209 (Bartender)

Danny Macdonald ..... 1
 0203 (Union Clerk)

Elicia Mackenzie ..... 1
 0107 (Attractive Socialite)

Heidi Malley ..... 1
 0207 (Rosie)

Danijel Mandic ..... 1
 0205 (Street Copper 2)

Ian Matthews ..... 2
 0107 (James McMaster); 0108 (James McMaster)

Steven McCarthy ..... 3
 0201 (Brogan McGrath); 0202 (Brogan McGrath);
 0203 (Brogan McGrath)

Doug McLeod (II) ..... 2 0101 (Haverford's Butler); 0106 (Haverford's Butler)

Brian Mifsud ..... 1
 0205 (Young Husband)

Peter Millard ..... 1
 0201 (Doctor Strom)

Frank Moore ..... 1
 0213 (Dr. Beaumont Purvis)

Landon Morris ..... 1
 0203 (Michael McGrath)

Gareth Moyes ..... 1
 0205 (Tall Druid)

Lachlan Murdoch ..... 10
 0101 (Adam / Telegraph Operator); 0102 (Adam / telegraph operator); 0103 (Adam / telegraph operator); 0104 (Telegraph Operator); 0107 (Telegraph Operator); 0108 (Adam / telegraph operator); 0109 (Adam / telegraph operator); 0110
 (Adam / telegraph operator); 0201 (Telegraph Operator); 0207 (Telegraph Operator)

Laurie Murdoch ..... 1
 0106 (Dr. Gillis Devery)

Tyler Murree ..... 1
 0106 (Hans Elek)

Andrew Musselman ..... 1
 0204 (Billy Murphy)

N

J. D. Nicholson ..... 3
 0207 (Orrin Lansing); 0208 (Orrin Lansing); 0209
 (Orrin Lansing)

Kent Nolan ..... 1
 0110 (Clem Cato)

Landon Norris ..... 1
 0207 (Michael McGrath)

Douglas Nyback ..... 1
 0209 (Paul Jenkins)

O

Billy Otis ..... 1
 0213 (Rutt Waymond)

P

Alex Paxton-Beesley ..... 1
 0110 (Ellen Corcoran)

Josh Peace ..... 2
 0209 (Jack Ramsay); 0210 (Jack Ramsay)

Mike Petersen ..... 1
 0110 (Chemist)

Alan C. Peterson ..... 2
 0210 (J.E. Lovrich); 0211 (J.E. Lovrich)

Eric Peterson ..... 2
 0202 (Rev. William Remington); 0203 (Rev. William Remington)

Aaron Poole ..... 10
 0107 (Robert Cobb Kennedy); 0108 (Robert Cobb
 Kennedy); 0109 (Robert Cobb Kennedy); 0110
 (Robert Cobb Kennedy); 0202 (Robert Cobb
 Kennedy); 0203 (Robert Cobb Kennedy); 0204
 (Robert Cobb Kennedy); 0205 (Robert Cobb
 Kennedy); 0206 (Robert Cobb Kennedy); 0208
 (Robert Cobb Kennedy)

Andrew Priestman ..... 3
 0103 ('Irish' Jake McGinnis); 0105 ("Irish" Jake McGinnis); 0106 ("Irish" Jake McGinnis)

Nick Pulver-Andrews ..... 1
 0212 (Nick the Cop)

R

Michael Rhoades ..... 1
 0209 (Doctor Huette Wells)

Joe Ring ..... 2
 0101 (Upscale Businessman); 0102 (Upscale Businessman)

Patrick Rose ..... 1
 0208 (Old Crooner)

Sam Rosenthal ..... 1
 0105 (Erastus Granger)

S

Elizabeth Saunders ..... 1
 0106 (Ethel Devery)

Peter Schoelier ..... 1
 0207 (Carpenter)

Albert Schultz ..... 1
 0202 (George Becks)

Matt Selby ..... 1
 0205 (Street Copper 1)

Adrian Shepherd-Gawinski ..... 1
 0211 (City Assistant)

Amanda Smith ..... 1
 0207 (Elderly White Woman)

Cedric Smith ..... 1
 0208 (Father Liam Burke)

Kent Staines ..... 1
 0206 (Uptown Lawyer)

Deandre Evan Stanislaus ..... 1
 0107 (Asa Moore)

Patrick Stevenson ..... 1
 0105 (Corwyn Roderick)

Nick Stojanovic ..... 1
 0213 (Cavalry Captain)

Rossif Sutherland ..... 2
 0202 (Tim Doman); 0203 (Tim Doman)

T

John Tench ..... 1
 0212 (Michael Ward)

Lee Tergesen ..... 3
 0204 (Mr. Keating); 0205 (Philomen Keating); 0207
 (Philomen Keating)

Janine Theriault ..... 2
 0201 (French Designer); 0202 (French Designer)

Michael Therriault ..... 1

0106 (Eugene Lunsford)
 Ryan Tilley ..... 3
 0101 (Irish Tenor); 0104 (Irish Tenor); 0202 (Irish Tenor)
 Dylan Trowbridge ..... 2
 0107 (Jeremiah McLean); 0108 (Jeremiah McLean)
 Taylor Trowbridge ..... 1
 0106 (Katherine O'Casey)
 Max Turnbull ..... 1
 0101 (Sailor)
 Jay Turvey ..... 2
 0101 (Blind Man); 0205 (Felix)

————— U —————

Anthony Ulc ..... 1
 0212 (Tombs Guard)

————— W —————

Clinton Walker ..... 1
 0202 (Sickly White Man)
 Eamonn Walker ..... 1
 0202 (Frederick Douglass)
 Craig Warnock ..... 2
 0101 (Haverford's Coachman); 0104 (Edwards)
 Peter Van Wart ..... 1
 0106 (Deroot Nellis)
 Jim Watson (III) ..... 5
 0201 (Conor Glynn); 0204 (Conor Glynn); 0205 (Conor Glynn); 0209 (Conor Glynn); 0210 (Conor Glynn)
 Samantha Weinstein ..... 1
 0103 (Kayleigh O'Connor)
 Jonathan Whittaker ..... 1
 0206 (General William Hopkins Morris)
 Philip Williams ..... 1
 0107 (Mister Sim)
 Abigail Winter-Culliford ..... 1
 0213 (Gillian Purvis)
 Alfre Woodard ..... 5
 0206 (Hattie Lemaster); 0207 (Hattie Lemaster); 0208 (Hattie Lemaster); 0209 (Hattie Lemaster); 0210 (Hattie Lemaster)
 Supinder Wraich ..... 7
 0204 (Lola); 0205 (Lola); 0207 (Lola); 0209 (Lola); 0210 (Lola); 0212 (Lola); 0213 (Lola)
 Ashley Wright ..... 1
 0107 (Alderman Wright)

————— Y —————

Beatriz Yuste ..... 1
 0101 (Sophie Longin)

————— Z —————

Timm Zemanek ..... 1
 0101 (Penrod Winner)