As the ICC team recovers from Agent Pride's death, a millionaire real estate developer in Amsterdam is poisoned and his Van Gogh painting stolen. The team's research finds two other similar cases over the past year from other countries. At the victim's apartment, a scan reveals the ingested poison to be Polonium-210, also known as "The Terminator." Image captures from cameras show the woman who entered with the victim to be Irish national Nicole Ryan. Hickman finds the fake Van Gogh painting. When a previous victim's veneer is traced to a warehouse, the team finds two of Ryan's cohorts. One of them mentions "The Russian," a man who had Ryan poison her victims to see if the polonium worked. The other gives up Ryan's next target in Prague. Eva poses as a server at an art gallery. She has a geiger counter in her earpiece that alerts her when near Ryan. The team surrounds Ryan holding a glass of champagne. Summary: When a wealthy teenager is taken hostage, the ICC team has to move fast to track the kidnappers. Meanwhile, Anne-Marie finds a connection to a similar case in Florence as the team races to rescue the boy. Elsewhere, Dorn and Louis soon discover an unexpected link to their arch enemy Alexander Dimitrov, which puts their lives in danger.

Hickman and San are on the French-Italian border, investigating Phillip Genovese, the person who injured Hickman. In Cannes, billionaire Lev Marianski's son, Maxim, is taken hostage, his security detail and girlfriend Laure are shot and killed. Hickman and San learn of the case while visiting the police station. San remembers a similar case in Florence a few months prior. At the crime scene, Hickman suggests a professional hit — the shooting victims were double tapped and the killers left with Maxim in a hurry. Maxim's divorced parents arrive at the scene. Hickman notices Lev's nervousness and gets him to admit that a kidnapping insurance policy, which covers any ransom demands, was placed on his family. Lev also admits that Maxim had a tracer microchip implanted to get a discount on the policy. Berger traces the microchip to the local family villa. They find it, excised and bloody, sealed with a note mentioning future contact. The team sets up camp at the villa for any such contact. Vittoria is sent to Florence to check for connections between cases. Daniel gets a call from Dorn, asking why the team is investigating his contact regarding Dimitrov. Daniel realizes Lev is the contact, as the Marianksi financial records are being checked out and the abductors are Russian. Meanwhile, the kidnappers prepare Maxim for a video link to the parents and then call with their demands, 10 million euros in ten hours. Lev pleads for more time. The link is severed by an explosion at the villa.

Summary: Whilst in Florence, Eva discovers a similar kidnapping and the finances of the missing boy's father reveal that all may not be as it seems. Meanwhile, Sebastian's career could be at risk when a secret from his past comes to light.

The explosion was contained to the house's security room, but knocked out the power. The team meets outside with the parents. The kidnapper's liaison monitors them from a nearby security camera and is told to call Lev Marianski. From the speaker of his phone, she mentions having everyone's attention. Hickman realizes they are being watched. The team uses the local police station as a hub. The kidnappers become distrustful of each other, yet enter the next stage of the plan by putting Maxim in an airtight container with a limited supply of oxygen running into it. In Florence, Vittoria meets with the only witness from the previous similar case, an art school's guidance counselor, Katya, who we know is the liaison. Katya cuts the meeting short and appears to be withholding information. Vittoria follows her to discover the video link between the kidnappers and the Marianskis. The two women fight and Katya is shot and killed. Daniel gives the ransom money to a motorcyclist, while McConnell follows it in a helicopter. The team watches, via the video link that Vittoria keeps active, as the kidnappers prepare to set Maxim free. However, armed gunmen arrive and kill the kidnappers. Maxim remains locked away, his oxygen tanks depleting. After the cyclist is picked up but cannot help with details, Hickman questions Maxim's mother about the kidnapping. She confesses to it, out of hatred for Lev and overhearing Katya's previous plot, but doesn't know Maxim's location. Berger uses the IP address of the kidnappers' computer, along with images seen from the outside, to send McConnell to save Maxim just as he runs out of oxygen. Later at Hickman's trailer, Shari tells him that Genovese has left the area, but should return. They kiss.

Summary: Hickman's search for a criminal mastermind leads him to a bank where he is suddenly taken hostage and soon realizes that the thieves may not be after the money. Outside the bank, the ICC team must work against time to figure out the real motive behind the crime and when part of the truth is revealed, Tommy must confront a secret from his past that could jeopardize his career.

Tommy requests silence at the office. He is hungover and Eva is worried that he has been partying again, and even Dorn comments on the smell as he walks by. Dorn asks Louis if the kidnapping case they worked on was at all related to Dimitrov. Dorn has just come back from Moscow. He planted a camera in a hotel room there and a team of Dimitrov's operatives found it in less than a minute. Dorn is worried about how Dimitrov knew he was there. Louis schedules lunch with his wife, Rebecca, and asks Anne-Marie where Hickman is. Hickman told her that he had to run an errand.

Hickman is at a bank trying to get in touch with a manager he knows. He gives a code word to a secretary to give to the manager. Looking around, Hickman notices two people acting very suspiciously. He makes a phone call to Sebastian and tells him to keep the line open. A group of people wearing animal masks burst into the bank with guns. They tell everyone to get on the ground and not to be a hero or else everyone will die.

The bank robbers gather everyone's cell phones into a duffel bag. Wolf, the leader of the robbers and wearing a wolf mask, threatens to deactivate Hickman if he becomes a problem. He steps on Hickman's phone, which hangs up on Sebastian. Unfortunately for him, Sebastian already had a trace. He attempts to get inside the bank security cameras. The manager is found hiding in a closet with a married couple. Their application for a loan was rejected because their credit score was too low. The manager is forced to put on a vest rigged with explosives. Wolf asks the manager to change his mind about their loan. The manager says yes and is then pushed out the front door. He yells not to shoot as the bank is surrounded by police, but it won't make a difference because Wolf detonates the bomb vest. Three of the robbers head to the vault, one of the robbers is monitoring police frequencies, and one heads upstairs.

Back at the CCI headquarters, Tommy notices that one guy has a strange method of shooting but excellent aim. The team note this robbery has lasted much longer than an average robbery and their van has been taken. They may have destroyed all of the cameras and brought all those bags of equipment in to make an escape through a secret exit. The CCI team identifies the leader as a man who recently left prison. Tommy recognizes him as a drug dealer who went to jail and became an anarchist while imprisoned. Eva, Tommy, and Daniel are outside the bank talking to Police Chief Helson. They advise him to set up the mobile command post because the robber on the second floor is a sniper. The sniper sees Tommy and recognizes him.

One of the robbers in the vault room breaks through the vault floor into a sewer under the bank. The robber who was a security guard in the bank wants a larger share of the money. The other robber in the vault slits his throat with a knife, saying that's their last offer.

The pregnant woman exits the bank through the front door, holding a phone from the robbers. Eva takes the phone and gives it to Helson. Inside, Hickman believes that the robbers are not just robbing the bank because they've in the vault far too long. He doesn't think the hostages will be allowed to live after seeing the robbers' faces for so long.

Tommy takes to the roof to keep an eye on the sniper. Eva overhears one of the police officers outside broadcast that there is a cop inside. The robber monitoring the police frequencies reports this to Wolf. Up on the roof, Tommy recognizes the sniper that is in the bank and later says that he didn't find the sniper.

Dorn shows up to pick up Rebecca and bring her to the Hague. Another man with Dorn is going to check their house for bugs. On a train to the Hague, Dorn tells Rebecca that he was very close to finding Dimitrov in Russia. Rebecca is distressed about having had her house bugged for who knows how long.

Wolf makes the demand of six Porsches and four planes at nearby airports. He gives the police chief one hour to meet these demands or he will kill everyone in the bank starting with the cop. Wolf discovers that Hickman is the cop when the bank secretary gives him away. Wolf grabs her and throws her to the ground across from Hickman. The bank secretary has a bomb vest attached to her and another hostage is taped to her with a gun taped to his hand. Hickman is trying to reason with one of the robbers inside. He is trying to convince him that Wolf is trying to set him up with taking the fall for the murders and bank robbery.

Louis is able to defuse the bomb attached to the secretary. Sebastian tells Louis, Eva, and Tommy that it's not a bank robbery. One of the robbers, identified with the surveillance footage, has a husband in prison on top of the old sewer system less than a mile away. Hickman apprehends the robber inside and goes down into the sewer system to follow the rest of the robbers.

The man in the prison was Wolf's cellmate back when they were in jail together in the UK. In the sewer under the prison a bomb is detonated and the prisoner is freed. With Hickman hot on their trails, he comes to a fork in the tunnel. He takes a different direction but through another side tunnel he can see the criminals escaping. He holds up his cell phone to attempt to signal Sebastian. Sebastian sees that Hickman has stopped and takes it as a signal. Eva and Tommy were already heading to the prison so they change direction and head for Hickman's location.

As one of the robbers exits the sewers through a manhole, Eva is there to arrest him. When Wolf hears her voice he shouts that everyone is on their own and to run. Tommy is able to stop the rest of them but Wolf gets away. Wolf crosses Hickman's path and tries to pull his gun on him. Hickman shoots the gun out of his hand, telling Tommy after that he was aiming for his head.

A police officer radios in that they have five in custody. A response comes back saying they thought there were six. Eva notices a man walking away and asks Tommy if that man was one of the six. Tommy says no but it is the sniper that he saw from the roof.

Louis asks Hickman about his drug problem but he says it's just for his hand, the pills didn't work. With an officer shooting up, Dorn is worried about his reputation. Three bugs were found in Louis' home, they will be left there to deliver Dimitrov any information they want. Tommy decides not to go out with the team and Eva congratulates him. Tommy makes a phone call. He tells the person on the other line that he saw Colin today and wants to speak to him. It tuns out to be his mother he called. Louis is looking for his wife after forgetting to call her and ignoring her all day. He calls her but when she sees who it is from she throws her phone into the river.

Summary: When Anne-Marie is away working on an old case, the ICC team must figure out the reason behind a series of shootings in Italy and Slovenia. Meanwhile, two young men have stolen money and drugs from an Italian drug lord and unknowingly kidnap the drug lord's daughter. Eva's past family connections to the drug lord reveal hidden details from her past which may be able to help save the girl.

Near the side of the river, Tommy's brother blames him for informing the feds of their family's illegal activities. They both point out seeing each other on the rooftops during the bank robbery. Tommy warns his brother, that the next time he sees him at a crime scene he won't let him go free.

In Italy a sleeping man is woken up by two armed robbers. He is forced at gunpoint to open a locked door. Behind the door are crates of drugs and money. When the two robbers see armed men running toward the building, they make a break for it. They hijack a car and kidnap the woman inside. The leader of the armed men makes a phone call and reveals that his name is Giancarlo. He then executes the man who fell asleep and let the burglars in.

Giancarlo and his men catch up with one of the thieves in a marketplace. Shots are fired but the thief gets away. Giancarlo doesn't allow anyone to shoot when the thieves are near the woman. The robbers show the woman the drugs they have stolen and force her to continue driving.

Hickman visits the bank manager, Annika, from his last bank robbery case, at her home. She asks him if he is visiting because she revealed him as a cop or because she gave a statement that said Hickman was using drugs. She says Hickman's boss was very insistent on getting the statement. He isn't here for either of those reasons though. She reported $100,000 missing from the vault, and says that the Irish kid took it. Hickman requests that Annika close the bank account associated with the carnival. If she closes it he will leave her alone, and if she doesn't his team will track her around the world and watch her spending.

The two robbers and the kidnapped woman make a stop at a gas station. While they are inside, Giancarlo and his men drive up and pull out their guns.

Dorn meets with Rebecca for lunch, they talk about how her husband, Louis, worries about her. Rebecca tells Dorn to call Louis for her, she wants to work things out with him.

Louis informs Hickman that Anne-Marie has not been heard from since earlier in the day when she was making an arrest. Hickman asks Louis who told him about his needle. Louis responds that the bank robbers and the bank manager both reported it.

At the ICC headquarters, a news report tells of a mass shooting at a marketplace. The shooter is reported to be the man that was executed by Giancarlo. News of a second mass shooting at a gas station reaches Tommy's phone.

Louis meets with Rebecca to discuss the bugs that are in their apartment. Rebecca feels stuck, she has nothing now that their son is dead. She wants revenge for what the Russians did to their son. After she has this revenge, she wants to move on with their lives, she wants a divorce.

In Hickman's office, Dorn questions Hickman about his drug habit. Hickman wants Dorn to talk to the courts and allow his team to stop whoever is behind the mass killings.

Tommy and Sebastian look around the crime scene at the petrol station. Tommy figures out where all the gunshots originated, while Sebastian uses a machine to scan the scene and identify a set of tire tracks. They reason that one of the cars involved is a black convertible. They note that there are not as many gunshots behind the car as should be expected. It's almost as if the shooters were trying not to hit someone.

The kidnapped girl calls her father, Conti, from a hospital. She must hang up though when one of the robbers walks near her. The kidnapped girl's name is Angela. One of the robbers has been shot and they are operating on him. The robbers stole from Conti because he bought all of the land around town. All they have left to do is steal.

Eva and Hickman meet with Conti. Outside of his warehouse they find blood on the ground, he won't allow them inside without a permit. Meanwhile, Angela calls her father to say the robbers were just scared boys. Conti only wants his 'goods' returned. She is upset at being referred to as goods alongside the drugs and money.

Tommy and Sebastian arrive at the hospital but they are too late. Inside they only find the bodies of one of the robbers and the medical personnel. Nearby in the forest, the remaining thief commandeers a van. A man runs up with a gun pointed at the robber. Angela kills the man. Tommy and Sebastian both hear the gun shot. Angela and her kidnapper's car is pushed off the road from behind by one of Conti's cars.

Angela wakes up from the car crash to find a man shooting at them. Giancarlo runs up to her and says that men have been dying trying to protect her family. This time she will pay for what she has done. Tommy and Sebastian arrive on the scene just in time to save Angela.

Eva tries to reason with Angela about the robbery. Angela feels that the whole thing was her fault. Eva asks if Angela remembers her, they met once before. Their fathers did business together. Eva explains how when she was young her parents were murdered by Conti. She tells Angela that while you can't change the past, you can control the future. Angela gives up her gun to Eva. Hickman checks the pulse of the robber, but it's too late. He is already dead. Conti is arrested.

Back at headquarters, Hickman compliments Sebastian on his shot. He attributes it to more luck than skill. He tells Hickman that Anne-Marie ended up capturing 8 suspects and she is fine. Hickman receives a phone call from Shari, the carnival managers are mad about their bank accounts being closed. Hickman tells her that he was behind that and to stay away from them. Shari waits for Hickman at his place. After she hangs up, someone enters the room and Shari fearfully asks "What do you want?"

Summary: Louis and his wife, who have never recovered from the death of their son at the hands of arch enemy Alexander Dimitrov rely on Dorn, who discovers new information that may lead to the capture of the Russian. Meanwhile, a woman is found dead and another missing, and all the evidence points to Hickman prompting Tommy and a Dutch detective to track down who framed him. Elsewhere, Louis returns home to a shocking discovery.

In Paris, France, Dorn meets with Louis and Rebecca. Their apartment is bugged and Dorn wants Dimitrov to think he is looking for him in the wrong places. He also wants them to mention they are moving and leaving the French flat empty.

Hickman is at Shari's place, but she isn't there. A neighbour agrees to pass on the message though. Back in Hickman's trailer, a man outside yells for him to clean up the portable toilets. Hickman receives a phone call from an inspector who works in the Netherlands. She calls because she is standing over a body and the cell phone found on it has Hickman as the last person called.

Sebastian asks Eva why his files were hacked and he traces the attack to the Italian police. Eva tells Sebastian that she has no idea who hacked his computer. Sebastian tries to find which computer hacked his but he can't get close before being kicked off the network. Eva says she will handle it and Sebastian tells her he has very personal information in his files. As Eva leaves, Hickman calls and asks Sebastian for help with something.

Tommy answers a phone call from Anne-Marie and says she will be in soon. It's a policeman named Barry, who works at her old unit. They need the paperwork soon on the arrests she made or they will have to let the prisoners go.

Louis and Rebecca have their planned conversation over breakfast. They mention that Dorn is going to catch Dimitrov in Poland and he is leaving today. They also say they are leaving the apartment together.

Tommy tells Eva about the arrest reports that Anne-Marie never made. Eva doesn't think that's normal for her but no one has seen her.

Hickman and Sebastian arrive at the crime scene and offer to help the investigator but she doesn't want any help. The body is not what Hickman expected, it's Annika, the bank manager from Amsterdam. The last call on her phone was a 10 second call to Hickman. Hickman says that the call was private. The investigator points out that it's suspicious that Hickman is connected to a missing woman and also a dead woman. She arrests Hickman.

Louis tells Dorn that they are done in the house and thanks him for trying to catch Dimitrov. Back at the headquarters, Sebastian tells the rest of the team that Hickman was arrested. He says that Annika's hair colour was different but it didn't surprise Hickman. The team calls Daniel to tell him the news. Louis not being able to go to their apartment in Amsterdam upsets Rebecca. Rebecca and Daniel have a fight on their train. Louis tells Rebecca she can divorce him but don't blame it on his team or his job.

The dutch inspector shows Hickman some information about Hickman and Annika. She points out that Annika outed him as a cop and outed his drug addiction. She speaks of the missing money, the carnival account closure and Annika's death. She asks what Hickman would do if there positions were switched. Hickman says lock me up. The investigator doesn't believe he did it though. A cop wouldn't leave that much circumstantial evidence around and leave that bag outside of his trailer. She just needs something to tell her supervisor to convince him of Hickman's innocence. Hickman won't say anything though.

Dorn enters a cabin in the wilderness. He pulls a gun out of a desk drawer and loads it. Dorn drives away from the cabin when a man in camouflage fires a rocket launcher at his car. His car is flipped over and two men with guns advance on him. He takes out his pistol and attaches a silencer to it. He dispatches both men and examines tattoos on their hands. He hears a helicopter as he leaves.

Sebastian tries to use his crime scene scanner but it's not working properly. It was also hacked. Back at the lab, Sebastian is frustrated when all of his work is lost. Daniel tells him to get a hold of himself.

Tommy sees the body of Annika and says that the wounds are from fists. It couldn't have been Hickman because the killer used two fists. There are gashes on the body from the killer's ring that had the initial, G, on it. As he leaves the morgue there is a body on the next table that was burned in a car accident. It's tag reads unidentified female.

The man who was outside Hickman's trailer talks on the phone. He is wearing a ring with a G on it and his knuckles are bruised. Tied up next to the man is Shari.

Daniel tells Hickman he is free to go but he wants to know about the man with the ring. Daniel knows that the man with the ring is Genovese, the man who shot Hickman in the hand. Hickman quits when Daniel tells him that he has been watching him since he left New York.

Dorn gets to a pay phone and calls Daniel to tell him it was a set up. He tells Daniel to get Rebecca and go underground. Daniel says that Rebecca has already gone back to their apartment in France.

Hickman goes back to his trailer and finds a tarot card of death stuck to the wall with a knife. A note is also there that says let's have some fun. Hickman goes into the fun house to find Genovese. Hickman wanders through the fun house while Genovese taunts him. When he catches up, Genovese punches Hickman to the ground and kicks him while he is down. The gangster handcuffs Hickman to Shari's body and sets it up to look like a murder suicide.

Daniel is back home in his French apartment and is shocked when he finds it destroyed and a puddle of blood on the floor.

Summary: Hickman's life hangs in the balance and he is forced to find a way to survive. Elsewhere, Sebastian and Eva search for Anne-Marie, who has not returned from Italy. Meanwhile, Eva must reveal that she has broken her trust with Sebastian and that his personal secrets could be exposed. Dorn may have tracked Dimitrov, which in the process leads to many mysteries being solved.

Hickman struggles over to the gun lying across the room. He opens the syringe of drugs thinking of taking away some of his pain but he decides against it and tosses the syringe. Shari makes a noise and Hickman is excited that she is still alive. He yells for help but no one is around to hear.

In Hickman's trailer, Tommy comments on how messy it is but inspector Seger thinks it looks like more than just bad housekeeping. Tommy finds the tarot card and note.

In a helicopter, Dorn tells a man that he needs a car and a tactical team to head to an apartment.

Hickman struggles with his pain and picks the needle back up. He injects it into his injured hand. Tommy enters the room with Seger, who calls an ambulance for Shari. Hickman stands and walks away after Genovese.

Eva leaves another message on Anne-Marie's phone. Sebastian and Eva have no idea where she is. They decide to go to her old department, hoping to find some clues. Eva tries calling once more for good luck. In the morgue, a broken phone is seen ringing next to a body bag.

Eva asks Sebastian to give her a moment of privacy so she can answer a private call. Eva answers and asks Lorenzo, her ex partner, what he did to Sebastian's information. She threatens to report him for hacking and stealing the files. He warns her that if the scandal goes public, so will Sebastian's files.

Hickman watches from the bushes as Genovese packs suitcases into his car. After the gangster goes back into his trailer, Hickman slashes the tires of his car. Hickman confronts Genovese and tries to make him put his weapon down. Genovese isn't afraid though, because there's only one bullet in the gun, Hickman is high, and his friend Butch has a gun over on his left. Hickman doesn't back down and Genovese tells Butch to kill him. Though before Butch can shoot, Tommy takes him out.

At Anne-Marie's old police department, her boss says he hasn't seen her since she left but it isn't like her to go missing like this.

Hickman follows Genovese, he fires all of his bullets but is unable to hit him. Tommy fights a large bodyguard but is beat up. Inspector Seger shows up to save him and shoots the bodyguard in the leg. Genovese has Hickman cornered but Hickman uses the last bullet out of his secondary gun to shoot Genovese. He is still alive and Seger handcuffs him. Hickman tells Tommy to tell the ambulance that he may have done a lethal amount of heroin.

Dorn shows up at Louis' destroyed apartment, he talks to a man who knows an officer involved with the investigation that Louis was a part of, that led to this. Louis is missing now. Dorn later discovers the officer and tells her Louis and Rebecca are missing. He believes the man after him is Dimitrov. The officer explains that the drug ring connected to Dimitrov was broken up, everyone was killed by Dimitrov that wasn't a low level criminal.

Hickman is at the side of Shari's hospital bed. He hopes she gets better and forgives him. Hickman tells Tommy that Genovese runs a child smuggling ring out of his carnival all around the world.

Eva asks Sebastian what the personal files are that he worries about. They are held up by a car accident ahead. The car is badly burned and Eva recognizes it as Anne-Marie's. Eva talks to the police officer on the scene. He says that there was a burned up body but he can't say much more. Sebastian finds foot prints leading away from the car and wishes he had his equipment.

Genovese wakes up and laughs that Hickman can't kill him. Hickman explains that Genovese will be extradited to the US to go to prison. Hickman promises that the last thing he sees before going into prison is Hickman smiling.

Dorn receives a phone call from Dimitrov. He gives Dorn an address and wants to meet in an hour. Dorn says he will go alone but would like a back up team nearby.

Tommy receives a call from Eva about the burned car crash they suspect was Anne-Marie's. Tommy remembers the burn victim in the morgue and rushes off to see if the body is Anne-Marie. Hickman goes with him and warns Seger to be careful watching Genovese because he is still dangerous.

Sebastian laments his loss of equipment and Eva tells him that she told her old unit in Rome to do a cyber security check. Eva didn't mean for it to affect him. Sebastian says she lied to him for months and thinks everything he has worked on is gone. Eva says that she can get it back though. She says that it was her ex partner who hacked him. Sebastian can either lose the files or they will be made public. He says that if it can help find Anne-Marie it doesn't matter what he does with the files.

Hickman and Tommy are at the morgue to see if it is Anne-Marie's body. The body is so burned though that they can't tell if it's her. Hickman is going to search Louis' files for the contact information of Anne-Marie's mother. He asks Tommy to go check on Genovese at the hospital.

Dorn shows up at the club Dimitrov is at. They sit down to talk with each other. Dimitrov admits to bombing the house but Louis was not the target. It was Rebecca because she helped Dorn put Dimitrov's brother in prison. They discuss Chechnyan war crimes. Dimitrov wants to trade Louis and Rebecca for his brother's freedom. Dorn has 24 hours to make a decision.

Sebastian uses his scanner technology and finds a small set of footprints leading away from the accident. They follow the footprints into the forest. They stop and look at something and Eva says "Anne-Marie."

At the hospital, Tommy finds it strange that the guard outside Genovese's room is gone. Seger lies bleeding on the ground. She says her boss attacked her and freed Genovese.

Hickman is at the ICC headquarters, when he receives a call from Dorn. He asks Hickman and the team to get to Paris as fast as they can. Hickman says he has already quit but agrees to come when Dorn says Louis' life is on the line. Hickman receives another call, this time from Genovese. He says he is ready for round two and laughs at Hickman.

Dorn says he has spent his life tracking war criminals and he knows that he can't allow one to be sent free. Even if this means that Louis and Rebecca may die.
