Summary: Widowed mom Nicole struggles to raise her only child Dion, not knowing the second-grader possesses powers beyond anyone's comprehension.

We begin with a mother narrating her trials and tribulations in raising her son Dion. In the heart of Atlanta at 7.15am, we see Nicole preparing for school while Dion eats his breakfast. The house is a mess and it's here Dion watches in awe as he seemingly controls time and suspends his cereal in mid-air.

At 7.34am, Dion manages to elevate rubbish either side of the road as Nicole drives him to school. When they get there, she sees first-hand that Dion is ignored by the other kids, before hurrying back to her car where she receives the bad news that she's been fired. Joking about Dion's skin colour, telling her friends that he's like "two raisins in a glass of milk", we cut back and forth from the school to Nicole's conversation with her friends as we see them both struggling.

Desperate to fit in, Dion heads to the skate park as a slow-motion shot of him performing a skateboarding trick sees the other kids in awe... until Nicole shows up and embarrasses him. Heading home, she sees Pat (his godfather) outside who offers to help her out. She reluctantly agrees as she breathes a deep sigh of relief and has a flashback involving her husband creating a Faraday cage.

At the restaurant, Pat and Dion connect over comic books before the conversation turns to his Father where we learn, through a large dose of exposition, how good at science he was. Bringing Dion home after their dinner, Pat leaves before her son shows his powers firsthand. As items float and swirl around her, he loses control before everything eventually drops to the ground.

Nicole decides to take him to hospital to get checked out but after a fruitless visit, she heads back home where we learn more about Dion's father, Mark. After watching a recorded video message, they decide to honour his memory and head down to the lake. It's here we also learn Nicole used to be a ballet dancer.

While out on the lake, Dion attempts in vain to control his powers, changing from the wondrous levitating fish in water bubbles through to him being hit by a tree, as everything chaotically falls out of his control.

In the middle of the night, Dion awakens to numerous ghostly spirits outside; "rain people" as he calls them. Mark's spirit appears soon after and tells Nicole to leave with Dion where we leave the episode.

Fortress of Solitude

Summary: Dion's powers continue to perplex an increasingly on-edge Nicole. Pat volunteers to investigate a possible lead into Mark's past.

The episode begins after the dramatic events during the night, as the sun rises and Nicole phones Charlotte Tuck, a woman who may know more about Mark's work. As she leaves a voicemail for her to phone back, it turns out Charlotte was listening the whole time.

Detective Miller arrives soon after, asking about the storm and informing that a lady went missing by the lake. Telling her to phone if anything comes up, she leaves as Nicole phones Pat and tells him the news. Agreeing to help, Nicole hangs up and speaks to Dion about his powers in the morning.

Distracted by a squirrel, it turns out Dion's powers are far more powerful than initially thought as he teleports to the top of a tree. Panicking, Dion's asthma flares up as Nicole scrambles for a ladder and helps him down. Offered a job at the hospital, Nicole reluctantly heads off while Dion leaves a note for his Father, telling him they've gone home.

At the store, Dion struggles to control his powers again while Nicole is forced to buy an inhaler. Heading to her interview, Dion is advised by Kat to go home as her head isn't in the game, but is interrupted by the interviewer who invites her in.

Midway through talking to Pat, Dion's battery dies and he winds up spinning on his chair and levitating, forcing Nicole to end the interview abruptly and head home. Kat phones Pat and asks about Dion's behaviour before we see Nicole baby-proofing the flat. Midway through, a knock at the door sees her neighbour arrive. Pat phones her soon after, where we learn more about Mark and Charlotte's shady past. It turns out she went radio silent the day Mark died.

While Dion dons an outfit and a new persona — Mind Mover — Esperanza arrives and heads in to see Dion. After a cute meeting together, she heads home while Dion plays his part and watches as Pat arrives and drops off dinner. Suddenly, Dion teleports outside and grabs a doll left in the middle of the road, only to almost get run over. However, he manages to teleport again at the last second into Nicole's arms as a shocked Pat watches on.

Summary: Following a run-in at school, Nicole has a difficult but necessary conversation with her son. A mysterious figure from Mark's past resurfaces.

The episode begins with Nicole taking offence to his enthusiasm. After Dion heads to bed, Nicole and Pat discuss his powers, where he tells her Dion needs something to control his abilities and stop him erratically losing his temper. In storage, she finds a watch and gives it to him in the morning as a way of channeling his emotions.

Seemingly able to keep his abilities under control now, Dion heads back to school where he's teamed up with Esperanza for a school science project. After discussing his watch, the boys tease him and snatch it away, refusing to give it back. Losing his temper, Dion knocks the child into the wall with his powers, before the teacher breaks up the fight, getting the wrong end of the stick and assuming Dion beat him down.

After the initial school drama, Nicole receives a call from Charlotte. She tells her to meet at the swings in 20 minutes, prompting her to hurry off. While she drives to the scheduled location, Pat realizes his company Bioma may have more going on than he initially thought.

Nicole makes it to the woods, after walking from the swings alone, where she asks Charlotte about Dion's powers. It turns out Charlotte has powers of her own, as she suddenly appears before her. It's here we learn more about her invisibility and also that Mark originally had powers too. It turns out Mark saved her from a storm and as she relays the story about the spirits she saw during the freak storm the night before, it turns out something far more sinister is going on here. Wide-eyed and afraid, Charlotte disappears upon hearing this news, leaving Nicole alone.

Pat picks up Dion from school and takes him to play basketball with Malik, encouraging him to use his powers in secret whilst not letting the other boys catch on. After surprising everyone, he heads back home where Nicole shows up soon after and tells him about Charlotte and her abilities. Afterward, she speaks to Dion in bed about racism before tucking him in to say goodnight. Meanwhile, Charlotte sends her a picture of the thing inside the storm which happens to be a giant, electrified creature.

Summary: As Nicole tries to track down the person behind an ominous photo, Pat takes Dion to BIONA, where they see a few things not on the official tour.

The episode begins in Alabama with a father and son on a farm, surrounded by crops while neighbouring fields are dying and full of withered crops. After showing Pat the picture of the electrified giant, we learn it's Dion's birthday. Kat drops off an iPad as a present for the little man before Pat takes him out for a ride. Meanwhile, Malik is offered a job by Nicole; to find the origin of the video. Along with a handsome sum of money, she also offers to teach him dance choreography.

At Biona, Pat shows Dion around before allowing Susanna to take him to the cafeteria while answering a call from Dion. Finally catching up to them, Susanna leaves as Dion hears the faint sound of a reindeer behind one of the locked doors. Managing to focus his powers, he swiftly levitates the keycard over to Pat and, deliberating what to do, decides to open the door and check what's inside.

Along with a whole slew of animals, they also find a monitor showcasing a whole group of people being watched. Seeing a sick animal in one of the cages, Dion uses his powers to heal one of the cubs. After taking another animal from the cage, Dion drops the power in the lab and manages to sneak out with Pat, acting normally as they head out the building. On the way, they're stopped by security before stepping outside and seeing the blackout is actually nationwide and not just in the building.

Heading home and notifying Nicole what happened, they discuss her dancing while Suzanne demands her workers look through the CCTV and find out what happened.

Walter, the man from the farm, then wakes up to find his son Brayden missing from the house. Outside, he watches as storm clouds gather. Telling his son to head inside, Walter uses his powers to protect the house, covering it in roots, while outside the storm-man begins striking the land with lightning bolts. As the episode closes out, Brayden watches in horror as his Father tries to fight off the giant.

Summary: The life-altering events surrounding Mark's past come into focus. Nicole struggles to give Dion his dream birthday. Esperanza makes a discovery.

The episode begins in Iceland 2010. Mark joins Pat in a yurt full of scientific equipment and tells him he just got married to Nicole. They're here to record atmospheric conditions before and after the comet passes. Suddenly the sky changes colour and multiple tiny shooting stars fall to the ground.

Back to the present, it's the day of Dion's birthday party and as he cheekily levitates a packet of crisps to his room, his mum tells him that some of his old friends aren't able to come. Nicole gets a call from her boss soon after, telling her to come to work and, not able to refuse, she asks her neighbour Tessa to take him to the party for 3pm.

Suzanne questions Pat about his whereabouts during the blackout and explains that L5 was vandalized. As Nicole heads to work, she reminisces about the past when she decided to quit dancing because she was pregnant. She told Mark just after a performance and he vowed to be more present in his kid's life than his dad was in his. Back in the present, she unfortunately leaves work late and has to beg the closed bakery to let her in to get Dion's cake.

We then flashback to 4 years ago when Mark started developing his powers. As he's missing his son's birthday party while investigating his abilities, he suddenly teleports there and this makes him realize the extent of his powers.

Back to the present, Dion is not having a great time as his old friends are making fun of him and this makes him reject Esperanza's friendship to impress them. Angry, his mother berates him and tells him to apologize to her. As he angrily storms off to the bouncing castle, Dion makes his inhaler fly to him, prompting Esperanza to tell him she's known for a while that he has powers.

Another flashback to New Orleans, in 2017 this time, shows Mark meeting Charlotte for the first time to talk about their abilities. She tells him to stop fighting it and if he does that, he'll be able to control them. Just as she tells him that two other people from Iceland have disappeared, the storm man arrives, shooting bolts of lightning at them. Mark then rushes in to save a drowning Charlotte before being picked up by the giant. Screaming in agony, he disintegrates into thin air.

In the present, the spirit of Mark watches his son sleep before disappearing into the night as the thunder claps. Dion then wakes up and sees the storm man outside. Hearing the storm herself, Nicole rushes in the room and as she looks outside, she sees the outline of Mark in the clouds.

Summary: Nicole gets reacquainted with an old passion. Charlotte offers to take Dion under her wing. Pat gets some unexpected news at work.

The episode begins with Nicole and Dion talking about the night before during breakfast. When Dion arrives at school, he tells Esperanza all about the storm man from the night before. She suggests that since BIONA can track storms, they could also make them. Suddenly the class gets a message from Suzanne telling them that BIONA will be sponsoring this year's science fair.

As Nicole heads into work, she hears that the dancers are rehearsing her old show and becomes nostalgic. While the theatre is empty, Nicole decides to dance, not knowing that Rashad is watching her. This leads him to offer to train her during her lunch hour as he believes she should start dancing again. Back home, Dion tells his mum about the storm man and as he shows her what he looks like, she shows him the picture on her phone, asking him if it's the same shape he saw. After confirming that it is, Nicole calls Charlotte and leaves a voicemail asking her to come to her house.

At BIONA, Suzanne gives Pat access to L5 labs and approval for his research proposal. She tells him that Mark was working on a confidential project but since he disappeared, they haven't been able to find the results on his computer. The university of Iceland has since reported strange phenomena with the animals. After mentioning the healed fox, she also shows him land in Iceland slowly being destroyed.

Charlotte appears in Nicole's house and tells her that the storm man is just too strong and there's nothing anyone can do. After convincing her to stay and help, Charlotte meets Dion and tells him that she will teach him to hide and use his powers. As they all head to the cellar, Dion and Charlotte show each other their respective powers. She then teaches him to be invisible while also trying to make control him his teleportation.

While Dion works on his powers, Pat calls Nicole telling her he's now working in the famous lab. They later share a nice evening and spend some time together playing pool. After saying goodbye to each other, Nicole finds a memory card in Mark's watch containing the files of his Iceland project and in one of the files, a list of names which they think might be the people who were in Iceland that fateful day. Meanwhile, we see that Suzanne has been sending a drone to spy on Nicole and Dion where the end the episode.

Summary: When Dion is taken to the hospital with a mysterious ailment, Nicole and Pat worry his powers may be discovered.

The episode begins with Charlotte who travels to the farm in Alabama and sees the same burn marks on the floor as the ones we've seen in Iceland. Suddenly Brayden appears and asks her if she's like her dad, telling her to come with him.

Pat arrives at Nicole's house and after some initial awkwardness, Nicole shows him what she found in Mark's files. He suggests taking it to work to analyse but she tells him she doesn't trust BIONA and neither did Mark according to his notes.

On his way to school, Pat tells Dion that the fox is now healed. He goes on to complain about his migraine so Dion tries to use his powers to make it go away. This unfortunately gives him a fever as he had to use a lot of power. His mum gets a call from the school but she's unable to pick him up. She asks Kat to get him instead and when she sees how ill he is, she takes him to hospital. As they try to cool him off with ice, they see that it melts within seconds.

Meanwhile, Charlotte speaks with Brayden's aunt, who tells her that her brother wasn't the same after the meteor shower and thinks he was worshipping the devil. Brayden then starts to communicate with Charlotte telepathically. They both meet in the garden and Brayden explains what his dad did to protect him from the storm man. He asked her to take him with her but she refuses, telling him she's unable to.

In the hospital, Nicole asks to take Dion home but Kat stops her, still not believing that he has powers, prompting Pat to come over and explain the reason why Dion is sick. As he leaves to try finding out more about Mark's experiments, Kat comes back in the room and sees her nephew levitating. Finally believing her, Kat decides to go and delete Dion's medical records, which causes a rift between Kat and her girlfriend.

Suddenly, Dion takes a turn for the worst, leaving Kat scrambling to make him better. Pat arrives and explains that after looking at Mark's research, Dion needs more Iodine. Kat quickly puts more Iodine in his IV and finally, Dion gets better. While Dion is in the toilet, Pat discusses their situation with Nicole to see where they stand. She tells him she wants them to stay friends.

As they leave the hospital, they're stopped by men in hazmat suits claiming to be from the CDC and demanding they put Dion in quarantine. Ignoring Nicole's protests, they take Dion away in a van but as they close the door, we see that they are actually from BIONA where we leave the episode.

Summary: Nicole puts everything on the line to rescue Dion from Suzanne and BIONA. Later, Charlotte uncovers a terrifying truth.

The episode begins with Nicole bursting into BIONA, shouting and demanding to see her son. After breaking a window, Suzanne arrives and brings her to her office. There, she explains what they know about Dion and the unexplained phenomena surrounding the micro storms. She goes on to explain that they want to study Dion as they believe he's linked to the storms. Nicole protests and offers to give them Mark's research notes in exchange for them releasing Dion. Suzanne accepts and after they leave BIONA, she gives all of Mark's data to Pat. After studying it all, he explains that Dion is using his powers too much and it poses a threat to him.

The next day, Charlotte visits Nicole and relays what happened with Walter and Brayden before Pat arrives to check in on Dion. He explains that he's going through all the data and that Suzanne believes Dion might be the solution to reverse the necrosis of the land in Iceland. Dion insists on going to school instead but his mum only agrees to it if Charlotte will be with him the whole time, invisible.

In the evening, as Charlotte and Nicole look through the BIONA storm data, they come to the conclusion that each person present during the aurora event vanished on the same day and place as one of the storms. While Dion is working on his storm science project with Esperanza and Jonathan, Nicole continues getting lessons from Rashad. Just as they share an intimate dance, Pat arrives and witnesses the two growing closer.

At school, the three kids are almost finished with their project — the storm killer. However, Jonathan decides to ditch them for his other friends, leaving Esperanza to complete it. Dion then decides to use his power to make her fly, thinking that she would like it. However, she gets upset and make him stop.

Pat confronts Nicole about the situation soon after, telling her he feels like she's been taking advantage of him and asks if she's seeing Rashad. She apologizes that he feels that way and as things escalate, Nicole gets angry with him, telling Pat they should take a break and he shouldn't pick up Dion from school.

After Charlotte takes Dion home instead, she sees Pat lurking around. She confronts him and tells him that Nicole doesn't want him around. However, he suddenly turns around and tells her that he should have killed her in New Orleans. It's here we see the horrifying truth — Pat is the storm man. Nicole receives a call from Suzanne soon after, telling her there's a storm forming outside her house. As she arrives, she sees the storm man attacking Charlotte and picking her up, just like he did with Mark.

Summary: With the crooked man closing in and a final confrontation seemingly inevitable, a terrified Nicole tries to protect Dion by fleeing the city.

The episode begins in Iceland 2010 during the aurora event. As Mark witnesses the solar flares, he heads outside but is hit by some of the falling debris. 4 years later in Atlanta, Pat's girlfriend Kerry tells him she wants to break up as he's been coming on too strong lately. As she leaves, Pat tries to stop her which causes her to demonstrate her fire powers. This leads to Pat's powers manifesting themselves for the first time too, making him the storm man.

We then flash forward to the present time, where we see Charlotte disappearing in the storm man, just like Mark did. After witnessing this, Nicole rushes in the house and tells Dion they need to leave. After they do, Pat returns to his normal self and starts looking for them. This leads him to Kat who, after pleading with her, reveals that Nicole has gone to her parents. However, this happens to be a lie as they've actually gone to the cabin. Sensing foul play, Pat then messages Dion and finds out where they really are.

Reaching the cabin, he forces his way in and after pushing Nicole out the way, Dion manages to teleport to the community centre. Pat turns around and tells Nicole that all he wanted is for them to be a family. Nicole hits him in the back of the head, prompting him to change to the storm man and leave the cabin in an explosion of smoke.

We then flashback to the day Nicole and Mark met at college, before returning to the present day where we see Dion joining his two friends in the science fair, apologising to them. A panicking Nicole calls Suzanne, telling her Pat is the storm man and begs her for help keeping Dion safe. We then cut to Pat appearing at the science fair where he attempts to take Dion away. He manages to convince Dion to heal him, just as Nicole arrives to tell Dion everything. After tricking him into thinking he was healing, they manage to run away but Pat, as the storm man, soon comes after them.

Meanwhile, BIONA arrives with two trucks, ready to attempt cooling down the storm with liquid nitrogen — just like in Dion's school project. As Dion uses his powers against him, we see the smoke spirit of his dad escaping its prison. Suddenly his mum throws a metal rod into the storm man's chest, prompting Dion to aim his power there. This then gets rid of the monster for now, before we see Mark reuniting temporarily with his family. He tells them that the threat is still out there and apologises to his wife before disappearing.

As they try to go back to their normal life, Nicole vows that whatever threat remains, it will have to go through her first. The episode then ends at the Alabama farm where we see the land slowly dying and Brayden becoming the new storm man.

Two years after facing the Crooked Man, Dion tries to carry a normal life while developing his powers. A new classmate is incorporated to Dion's class.

The episode begins two years after the big fight with the Crooked Man. Down at the arcade, Brayden Mills walks over to the cashier with a whole wad of tickets. Using his newly acquired powers, he manages to convince her to give him the top prize before walking out.

Although Brayden is attacked, he uses his powers again, this time to form a monstrous electrical smoke monster to destroy the thug. Yep, the Crooked Man is back and this time he means business. Brayden also hitches a ride with a random couple too, whom he brainwashes into traveling across to Atlanta. Why? Well, that's where Dion is.

Over in Atlanta, Dion sets to work cleaning up the neighborhood, one group of bullies at a time. That's a problem because Nicole ends up on a video call with BIONA, who encourage her to keep Dion's powers under the radar for the time being.

After being offered a position on the board, Nicole drives Dion to school — after a little chat about his extracurricular activities of course. She's been tracking his phone and knows he's been slipping out to do some superhero training.

At school, a sinkhole has appeared in the field. It's been three months and it appears this could be part of a larger issue. For now, the "triangle of justice" (Jonathan, Dion and Esperanza) attend school. However, things take an unfortunate turn when Brayden shows up as a new student.

After class, Dion arrives at BIONA with Nicole. While Dion gets settled in, there's a nice vibe with Tevin, whom Nicole clearly has chemistry with. Only, it turns out he's actually Dion's trainer. She doesn't want to get romantically involved with a Powered being, but there's undeniably chemistry here.

Another new character is the ever-so-slightly suspicious David Marsh, who's the VP of Operations. He tries to ask Suzanne out on a date, which doesn't go to plan, but it does pave way for more information about the sinkholes.

It turns out several more have cropped up across the globe. But what is their origin? Well, we soon learn that these are the work of Brayden and the Crooked Energy, which is itself a sentient organism.

That night, Dion heads home but he forgets his phone, having left it at BIONA. Believing he can make it there and back again before Nicole realizes, he teleports to the building and finds it on the bench. Unfortunately, he also hears footsteps echoing across the floor.

David and Suzanne talk in the hallway, with David mentioning that the sinkhole readings are off the charts.

As we cut across to the sinkhole itself, flowers sprout up, leading to strange fluorescent bugs attacking one of the security guards. This seems to be the start of something much larger, and surprisingly a powerless Pat shows up at BIONA and warns Suzanne that they're in danger.

Summary: A figure from Nicole's past returns, causing chaos and confusion. Dion shows new classmate Brayden the ropes. Sparks fly between Nicole and Tevin.

The episode begins two years back with us seeing exactly what happened to Pat following the big fight. He inexplicably returned after the Crooked Energy disappeared. One minute he was dead, and the next he's not. With the Energy floating away, Pat's wounds healed and he decided to lay low, starting anew in a little town. Until now.

He saw the Crooked Man in a new host (Brayden, but that's not known to him right now) and showed up to warn BIONA. Suzanne is still untrusting though, and decides to do as many tests as possible to prove Pat doesn't have his powers anymore. She ignores Pat's pleas and keeps him in lock-up.

At school, Brayden continues to stare daggers at Dion. Our little hero starts to realize something is untoward but for now, he remains quiet. Until after class anyway, when he manages to get Dion alone to show him around. The Crooked Man is close to attacking Dion in the hallway but for some reason, he's unable to take him out.

After class, Dion seizes his opportunity to go and investigate the sinkhole. He manages to find those same strange flowers from before but as they spark to life and begin to reach out, Dion teleports out of there and hurries off with Jonathan.

Back home, Kat starts living with Nicole. She encourages her sister to get Tevin's number, knowing there's more going on between them. She even gives her some fashion advice too. Off the back of this, Nicole and Tevin begins to flirt a little after Dion's session.

Nicole is told about Pat ion confidence and pays him a visit in his cell. Pat reveals the truth about the Crooked Man being out and dangerous, but she too doesn't believe him. When she leaves the room, Nicole urges Suzanne not to let him out or tell Dion what's going on. Although her flustered reaction and urging Dion to leave doesn't exactly help matters.

That night, Dion is approached by Brayden in his room. Only, it's just a vision of him. Brayden admits that he's got powers too and with an evil smirk, declares that they're going to be best friends.

The episode begins with Dion at school, distracted by Brayden and how he too has powers. They talk pretty openly about it outside, but Brayden is clearly a bad influence and even encourages Dion to skip class too. Well, sorta anyway.

During class, the pair end up inside Brayden's head. He can make Dion see things, including memories of Brayden's childhood with his parents. His father also had powers, specifically in the form of allowing plants to grow.

These dreams soon end with a nightmarish vision of Brayden's mum telling him he's an evil child. As Brayden screams, the pair blast back into class.

Meanwhile, a very-infected Gary stumbles over to the sinkhole and seems to transform into something far more sinister.

At the same time, Nicole and Tevin continue to grow closer together. The pair hang out together, with Kat playing cheerleader for the pair. There's also word on Pat too, with all the tests coming back negative — he definitely doesn't have his powers... but that's a lie.

David visits Pat in confidence with a soil sample from the sinkhole. It appears it's still charged with fragments of Pat's DNA. He wants Pat's help with his research, and part of that comes from keeping up the lie and making sure Suzanne is none the wiser.

David takes him to the sinkhole next, where Pat gets a feel for what's happening. The Crooked Man is angry and very clearly not hiding anymore. The Crooked Energy realizes Pat is nearby and encourages Brayden to disrupt everything. Specifically, he tells Dion about Pat.

A big stand-off ensues right by the sinkhole, with Nicole showing up and managing to stop Dion from blasting Pat with his powers. When he finds out about Nicole lying, he's not happy and begins crying. At last until they head home anyway. Dion soon comes around, revealing what he saw earlier with the flowers and the strange occurrences deep in the sinkhole.

While this is going on, Esperanza gets over her initial nerves and sings for the school audition. She nails it too, the second time around anyway.

Suzanne rings Nicole and encourages her to show up that night. "I'm not afraid of monsters!" She declares proudly... just before she falls in the sinkhole. Just like Gary before her, the flowers sprout and with it, the strange luminous glow we saw before.

Only this time, the infected security guard has turned into the swamp thing; a monstrous, plant-like creature that tries to attack her. Nicole manages to get out but so too does this creature, which eventually runs away.

Summary: BIONA tries to bring a mysterious sinkhole under control. Nicole's infection worsens. Dion's playdate with Brayden takes an unexpected turn.

The episode begins with Nicole back home, being patched up by Kat. She's been scratched but Suzanne is confident that it's not deep so she shouldn't be infected.

Suzanne is taking drastic measures at BIONA though, deciding to take a team down to destroy and burn whatever is down in the sinkhole. Not only that, these sinkholes across the world seem to be hotspots where the Crooked Man has attacked, and Suzanne finally sees the direct link between the two.

Nicole also lies to Dion too when he asks about the scratch. She claims she just fell over, deciding to try and shield him from the monster problem. She also tells Dion to stay inside for the time being, prompting him to ring Brayden and invite him over. Although to be honest, it's not really explained why he doesn't invite Jonathan or Esperanza over.

Anyway, while he waits for the evil kid to show, Dion speaks to Esperanza about her real powers. It's not invisibility after all, it's very clearly her singing. It's a beautiful chat but it's soon interrupted by our Sith child showing up to ruin the day.

At the school sinkhole, the team work to destroy the hole. For David though, he's unhappy about this and urges Suzanne to stop and research what's happening. Suzanne suggests he be suspended but in return, David reveals that Cutler is looking to replace her, which throws Suzanne off her game.

As they talk, David opens up and breaks the news that this sinkhole actually has Crooked Man energy inside.

At BIONA, Janelle loses control of her powers, leading to armed security with guns to show up. Things are blown completely out of proportion, and it's Nicole who manages to step in and calm Janelle down.

She's definitely helping the teen, and it appears she has a knack of helping the Powered. In fact, she even sets up a safe space for Janelle to practice using her powers.

While Tevin teaches Janelle, Nicole speaks to the girl's mother who admits that everything started when a big explosion took place in the science lab. This is what started their road into become a Powered being.

Nicole next heads off to speak to Pat in confidence. He admits that the Crooked Man uses its energy to feed on hatred and fear. But it seems like the sinkhole underground, on the site of the Civil War, could well be helping to channel its powers and make it grow stronger.

Pat also deduces that Dion could be the key to curing this, given he's "pure good". However, Nicole's arm begins to flare up, and as she removes her bandage, it's clear to see that the scratch is most certainly infected.

Brayden is obviously a bad influence and encourages Dion to break the rules. When Dion mentions what happened with his father, Brayden begins to doubt his own ties with this creature.

However, the hatred is too strong and Brayden soon makes Dion use his powers against a couple of bullies, with Brayden finishing it off by using his mind control to let the pair fight each other.

Brayden encourages Dion to do what he wants, and manages to cause a barking dog to double over and become docile. And NOW Dion realizes the kid is bad news. Finally.

While Kat picks Dion up and takes him home, at BIONA Nicole is taken into quarantine. Elsewhere, Brayden is influenced by the Crooked Man, who encourages him to do the right thing and claims he has no friends other than him, feeding off the boy's energy.

As the episode closes out, those strange luminescent critters from the sinkhole begin to swarm and grow across town, infecting numerous different people.

Summary: Brayden pays Pat a surprise visit. Kat and Tevin take Dion to the country. Worried the infection may spread, Nicole self-isolates.

The episode begins with Pat being woken up in the middle of the night. The scientists are expecting him in the lab. As Pat starts getting up, he sees Brayden in front of him. Only, it's actually an image of Brayden and, by extension, the Crooked Man.

When Pat realizes the young boy is infected with the energy, he encourages him not to let it control him. Brayden though is too angry and full of hatred to listen, and demands he keep quiet. And just like that, he disappears from view.

In the lab, Pat reveals that he intends to use Dion's DNA to try and formulate a cure. Given Pat's echoed powers seem to have a connection to Nicole's infection, it's all up to him to try and save the day. Thanks to Kat's interjection, she helps nudge him in the right direction.

Nicole and Pat are interrupted by one of the swamp creatures, which is captured and brought in for examination. Only, it's clearly not the same one that initially attacked her. BIONA soon realize they're dealing with more than one monster. When Suzanne finds out, she sets up a quarantine.

Things aren't looking good as Pat comes out, despairing and talking to Nicole about how hopeless all of this is. He's not sure they'll be able to fix up the infection and worries that he needs more time to perfect the formula.

When Janelle hears this though, she suddenly uses her powers to head into the lab and isolate the different components of the mixture. It seems to do the trick and after separating the DNA strand, everyone realizes that Janelle's powers aren't completely destructive.

Back at the lab, Pat's serum works... until it doesn't. The man they test it on unfortunately loses consciousness before he can turn back completely and dies. I guess it's back to the drawing board!

Meanwhile, Dion is taken out to the quiet tranquility of the woods with Aunt Kat and Tevin. However, Brayden happens to be across the pond watching them from afar while Tevin and Dion play tag. Esperanza soon rings though, admitting she's having trouble with her performance and needs some words of encouragement. Of course, Dion says just the right thing to help.

Brayden gets inside Tevin's head and encourages him to kill Dion. When Tevin catches up with Dion again, he starts to use his powers. Thankfully Tevin manages to see through the mind control long enough to encourage Dion to run. Unfortunately, a whole swarm of birds circle around Dion, knocking him down as Brayden catches up.

The episode begins in the woods with Brayden exerting his will over Dion. However, Dion uses his powers to teleport inside Brayden's mind. There, he finds a young Brayden trapped underneath the porch, which seems to explain our evil Brayden's current anger. After letting the kid out, it seems to change Brayden completely.

Dion is thrown out of his mind, Brayden runs away, while Tevin and Dion attempt to chase him. Only, the boy is too quick and manages to slip away in a car.

Meanwhile, Suzanne arrives with bad news. In less than two days, Nicole will be completely transformed. Suzanne has a risky solution, which comes from injecting her with tiny doses of the serum in the hopes of slowing the rate of infection and prevent more spores from being made.

So how much more time would she have? Give or take, Suzanne estimates about 36 hours.

At BIONA, Dion shows up and reveals what's happened with Brayden. Suzanne intends to bring in a SWAT team to arrest the boy, although Dion is convinced that he's not outright evil, especially given what he's seen inside Brayden's memory palace.

Back home, Nicole speaks to Kat about her situation. She urges Nicole to use Dion's healing powers to try and cure her but she refuses, believing he's not strong enough to do this. Instead, Nicole has decided to give him the perfect day, deciding to be there for Dion during his big school play and try to keep everything normal.

Meanwhile, the SWAT team show to try and find Brayden. He's not in the house though, and in fact he's actually out by the shed, hiding.

The Crooked Energy swirls around him, telling Brayden he needs to use his mind control and hit back but Brayden refuses. At least to begin with anyway. The Energy is much stronger now than it was before, and because of that, the Energy infects him and takes Brayden over completely.

Dion senses this too, believing the boy has gone completely. Not only that, Nicole's infection starts to get worse, with her struggling to inject the serum and stop the flow of infection.

Kat arrives at BIONA in order to help out with the infection. Pat is going to use super-powered gene therapy. Specifically, he's going to create a form of Powered DNA to thwart the infection. As they begin researching, it appears that BIONA may actually be able to manufacture their own Powered beings and even change what powers each person has too.

During the final day, Nicole and Dion spend time together making pancakes. She also helps Esperanza with her song too, before heading out for an impromptu date with Tevin. He promises to be there for Dion if/when she passes away.

Given this is Nicole's last day, there's an awful lot of time dedicated to these two chatting about the past. Just before they look set to kiss though, Nicole's infection takes a turn for the worst.

At school, Brayden shows up and puts everyone to sleep. Everyone except Dion and Esperanza for some reason. Brayden and Dion immediately start using their powers, with Esperanza manages to wake up Jonathan from his slumber.

Thankfully, the latter helps to turn the tide of battle, using a fire extinguisher to throw Brayden off his game. When he tries to mind control Esperanza, she thwarts it by... . not listening? I dunno, it's not really explained but the triangle of justice comes out victorious nonetheless.

Eventually Dion is taken home by Tevin, where he finds Nicole sick and incredibly weak. Dion's healing powers also fail to work.

Meanwhile, things at BIONA take an unfortunate turn for the worst. Pat is taken off the case, left to stew in his cell. Only, he ends up taking the experimental serum for himself and injects his arm that night. In doing so, he begins convulsing and fitting on the floor. Uh oh...

Summary: As Pat clings to life, Nicole resolves to share a special day with Dion. At BIONA, David gives a major presentation and Simone makes a move.

The episode begins with Suzanne and the others racing into the cell to find Pat unconscious on the floor. I say race, they basically slowly jog into the room.

When Suzanne notices that Pat has used the serum, froth staining his mouth, he's rushed to surgery. Only, his hand starts to manifest new powers, which could well be a throwback to the Crooked Energy we saw before. He's in a deep coma and with his heart-rate up and his vital signs all over the shop, things don't look good.

Meanwhile, Nicole decides to make her final hours the best she can. Nicole is on the mend, at least a little anyway, and sets to work putting her affairs in order. She wants to make sure everything is in place for Dion to thrive if she does pass away.

Part of that comes from talking to Janelle's mum, Simone, asking her to look after him if she passes away. After helping out with Janelle, she's more than happy to do that. With the pair heading to Dion's show that night, they decide to talk later on about this.

However, Simone decides to take Janelle back to Chicago. She wants to run away, believing they're not safe anymore. With Nicole passing away and BIONA in disarray, Janelle is shocked that Simone is running away. Janelle kicks off though and eventually explodes the glass in the car and runs.

At the same time, Nicole gives an impassioned video, talking about how great it's been being Dion's mum. With tears stinging her eyes, she struggles to get all the words out.

Elsewhere, David ends up in a chat with the Board of Directors at BIONA. He brings up the cellular exchange and how he intends to give super powers to those who aren't Powered. Basically, custom-made superheroes. In order to do that, he wants funding for his own team.

All of them reject the offer vehemently, bringing up the dangers this poses and also what's happened to Pat. As they walk out, David slams his fist on the table in frustration.

At the show, Dion ends up backstage but he's struggling. He clutches his ears in pain, gritting his teeth and calling out as it appears as if he's being controlled. Kat though receives a call about Pat and she's forced to abandon Dion for the time being.

While she leaves, Nicole heads backstage to catch up with his son. Brayden happens to be outside and demands he meet on the football field. The final fight is upon us.

Summary: It's Esperanza's big night, but Dion and Nicole soon find themselves in a dangerous showdown against a familiar villain and his army.

The episode starts with a whole army of infected swamp creatures lurking about and following Brayden's lead in the field. As they all stand together, egging him on to fight, Nicole speaks to Dion.

Dion eventually opens up about Brayden and the pair decide to face him together. Just before they do though, Dion heads off to give Esperanza words of encouragement before her big gig, telling her about Brayden. It's all up to Esperanza to keep everyone inside and entertained, and that comes from her singing her heart out.

At the hospital, the doctors struggle to try and save Pat. It turns out the Powered DNA is competing for dominance and he may well be dying. For David though, he doesn't care about Pat and instead, is more interested in the outcome of the DNA once everything settles down.

Basically, David wants to monetize his powers and make a tidy profit. After being refused by the board, he takes drastic measures and when Pat passes away, he organizes for samples to be taken from his body.

Some time passes, and Pat inexplicably awakens again. It turns out he has the power to heal his own body. With electrical powers and a big chip on his shoulder too, he hits out at Suzanne for locking him up and betraying him. Those powers aren't all he has either. Pat also has telekinesis and explosive capabilities, which he puts into good use to escape from BIONA.

Outside in the field, Dion and Nicole approach Brayden. The pair are joined by Tevin, who manages to use his forcefield to hold back the monsters. Suddenly, a brilliant bright light in the sky appears and swirls down to the ground. It's Janelle! Somehow she manages to materialize and dematerialize her own cells, and helps to turn the tide of battle. At least a little anyway.

Brayden continues to manipulate Dion, throwing him off his game. Given he has the power to read his thoughts, Brayden has his infected hold everyone down. With electric sparks emanating from his fingers, he prepares to hit the killing blow. However, it's Nicole who manages to talk him around.

Nicole reveals his past and specifically about Brayden's mother and her love for him. The darkness manages to fade from his eyes. As he steps forward to embrace Nicole, the Crooked Energy crawls away and into the Sinkhole.

Recovering from his injuries, Brayden confirms that the Crooked Energy is en-route to create more of the infected. The flowers are the key to the infection here so the gang deduce that if they could inject the serum into the flower, at the root cause of it all, it should stop the infection.

So with all hope lost and everything resting on a precarious knife-edge, Dion takes the serum and heads into the sinkhole alone, preparing to inject the the flowers. The Crooked Energy continues to swirl in the air. Dion doesn't let that stop him though and he injects the flower, which in turn cures everyone from their infection.

Thankfully they manage to do all of his just before Esperanza's big singing number. And as she sings, the gang all gather together after having saved the day.

However, the real Crooked Energy is actually with Pat. David's attempts to persuade him over to his cause and monetize the Powered serum, fall on deaf ears. The Crooked Man returns once and for all, with Pat complete with the dark energy once again. Unfortunately, that looks set to be bad news for everyone.

We then skip forward two days later. Nicole isn't dying after all, negating her whole video message for Dion and a lot of the drama these past few episodes. Kat remains determined to try and reverse Pat's powers, working with BIONA to make that happen.

Nicole encourages Dion to use his powers too, letting him grow up a bit, while Pat's whereabouts are still unknown. At least until the post-credit sequence.

Just outside Atlanta, we skip forward in time to find a much older Pat with a whole army ready to follow him. It's hinted that they all have powers too but that's unclear from the shots we receive.

A hero called Mind Mover shows up and decides to stop them. And this appears to be a much-older Dion, given the costume looks similar to what he's been sketching. What does this mean for the future?
