Production Code: 1DGT01
Summary: After his college graduation, Joe Kimbreau is faced with a pivotal decision that steers his life down three drastically different paths.

Joe Kimbreau graduates from Syracuse University, and finds himself torn between three potential choices of how to celebrate: he can accompany his family to dinner, accompany his girlfriend Jenny to the beach, or ask an attractive fellow graduate named Amy out. His life story splits into three separate timelines depending on his decision—going with his family leads to him following in his father's footsteps and becoming a police officer, going with Jenny results in the two marrying and raising their disabled son Christopher while Joe becomes a nurse, and going with Amy results in the two marrying and Joe pursuing his musical passion to become a rock star. Ten years pass.

Nurse Joe helps treat Congressman Bobby Diaz, who was shot at a rally. Joe's marriage with Jenny, a paralegal, has suffered from the strain of their careers after both prioritized work to provide for Christopher's needs. Joe's best friend Eric is happily married to Amy. Jenny files for divorce, but Joe intends to change her mind in the forty days he has to respond. They dance together at a reunion for the Syracuse Class of 2011.

Musician Joe's marriage with Amy is strained because they have lost multiple pregnancies to miscarriage. When Diaz is diagnosed with Parkinson's disease, he endorses Amy, his campaign manager, to replace him on the ballot; Joe is upset because this runs counter to his desire to be a father, and Amy refuses to attend the reunion. At the reunion, Jenny, now a law partner, tells Joe that she was pregnant with his child at graduation; she put the child up for adoption, and Joe vows to find and meet his son.

Officer Joe protects Diaz from the gunman and is celebrated as a hero. Joe reconnects with Amy while investigating the shooter, and they attend the reunion together. He encounters Jenny, who has become an assistant district attorney and is raising her disabled son Lucas—the same child as Christopher.

Summary: With the anniversary of 9/11 approaching, all three Joes grapple with the emotions that come with the day. Cop Joe and Amy pursue a romance. Music Joe and Amy's marriage is clouded by a big secret. Nurse Joe and Jenny have a breakthrough.

On the upcoming 20th commemoration ceremony for 9/11, Joe remembers his late father, and it is revealed that he blames himself for his death because he turned down a chance to go to a football game in Colorado in favor of practicing with his band, resulting in his father going to work on that day and subsequently dying in the line of duty.

Nurse Joe, following the advice of Eric and Amy, takes Jenny out on a date, during which Jenny asks him to bring Christopher to the commemoration. She tells Joe that if he's serious about repairing their relationship, he needs to start dealing with his grief. Joe ultimately finds the courage to attend the ceremony, and even takes part in the reading of victims' names. Jenny learns that her firm wants her to return to college and finish her degree, allowing her to finally become a lawyer, but only if she moves to Atlanta for a year.

Musician Joe asks Frank, his head of security, to find his son. He goes to ask Jenny for help as well, but she discourages him, fearing what might happen if her husband learns she had a child out of wedlock. Amy accepts Diaz's offer to run in his place, and tells Joe that she is content with them not having children. Joe then calls Frank and tells him to do whatever it takes to find his son's adoptive parents.

Officer Joe learns that he has been promoted to detective, with Frank as his training officer. The two are assigned to investigate Diaz's shooting, with Joe learning that the shooter, Wayne Coleman, wanted to take "revenge" on the Congressman. The investigation also forces him to work with Jenny, even though her husband is concerned that Joe might discover that he is the biological father of their son. Amy uses her connections to get Joe's father's badge number restored so Joe can use it, and they go on a date. Unbeknownst to Joe, Amy is also in a relationship with Diaz.

Eric gets Joe a vacation in Canada for Jenny's birthday, but Jenny refuses to go and tells Joe to cancel the trip since she doesn't want to leave Christopher's side. Joe and his son make a special cake for her party, and when Joe reveals that he is willing to pay for couples' counseling, Jenny decides to turn down her firm's offer.

Musician Joe's growing obsession with finding his son begins to drive a wedge between him and Amy. After learning that his name is not on the birth certificate Jenny filed (preventing him from learning who adopted his child), Joe deliberately skips out on a commitment to introduce his wife at her first campaign rally, forcing Diaz to step in at the last second. Instead, he goes to see Jenny at her birthday party and threatens to reveal her secret unless she agrees to help him. Arriving late to the rally, Joe watches Amy give a heartwarming, unscripted speech and celebrate with Diaz.

Officer Joe invites Amy to dinner with his family, not knowing that Amy only accepted his invitation because Diaz kicked her out for the evening to keep his wife from finding out about their affair. After dinner, the two go upstairs to Joe's room and share a kiss. Jenny steps out of her own party to take a work call, and learns that Coleman died during surgery. She notifies Joe, who is distraught over the realization that his bullet killed Coleman.

He contacts Jenny for legal help, who has a lawyer friend that tells Joe he'll be made an example because of being a celebrity. After hospital release, he gets his mugshot and Uncle Frank shows him the wrecked Porsche. Joe agrees to rehab and starts the recovery process, but seeing that Amy lost her primary election drives him to leave the facility. He's seen describing his life mistakes at someone's front door, and it's eventually revealed to be Jenny.
