Summary: One of the diverse recruits – the best and the brightest – who arrive at the FBI Quantico Base for training is suspected of masterminding a terrorist attack.

The episode kicks off with Ryan Booth on an airplane he introduces himself to a woman seated next to him — he is on his way home from the Phillipines, she is on her way to Chile. Ryan and the woman wind up having sex in a rental car after their plane lands — she still won't tell him her name, she explains that he is not her type because he is "too nice" and she can tell that he used to wear a wedding ring — she can also tell that he was lying about where he was flying from. Ryan is shocked that she has figured out that much about him, she hops out of the car and he still doesn't know her name.

The next day, Ryan and the mystery woman head to the FBI Academy at Quantico — they are shocked when they recognize each other in their training class. An FBI agent swears them in, and then teases them that just because they made it in to the academy does not mean that "they are going to survive." During day one of orientation, the assistant director Shaw takes the stage and warns them that the FBI academy is the toughest bootcamp and it is "life and death."

The Quantico class is given their uniforms and badges, and fake guns with red handles. Then they head to their dorms The ystery woman that hooked up with Ryan reveals that her name is Alex, she introduces herself to her roommate Shelby. Meanwhile, Ryan is moving in with his roommate Simon. The rest of the class gets settled in to their rooms. Simon meets a Mormon named Elder Eric. Ryan bumps in to Alex in the hallway — she announces in front of everyone that she just had sex with him in the car 6 hours ago.

The Quantico class heads to their first class — they are ordered to pic a fellow trainee. They are given the files on each other. Their mission is to figure out the "missing piece" about their partner that isn't in their files. Ryan and Alex wind up with each other's files.

Fast Forward — A few months after graduation there is an explosion in New York City — Alex is on the scene. She and the other agents learn that it was an inside job, Alex is shocked that one of the people from her Quantico class is the terrorist. The FBI needs her to help them figure out who in her graduating class is the terrorist so that they can stop them before they strike again.

Back to Quantico — It's Day Two at Quantico, they head to the track where Agent Fairman is waiting for them. They have to pass the physical requirements, then they head to the shooting range. In between their training sessions the Quantico class is on their cellphones, trying to get dirt on each other because the clock is ticking and they have to find the "missing pieces" to each of their files. Shelby is struggling, she can't find any dirt on Caleb — he is a total "Golden Boy." Meanwhile, Caleb is busy trying to find dirt on Elder Eric. Eric is freaking out, he obviously is scared that whatever Caleb finds could get him quicked out of the school.

It's time for the truth to be revealed. The Quantico class will get a chance to question their partners — and administer a polygraph test to them to confirm their findings. Simon heads in to the interrogation room with Shelby first. He starts asking her about her family, she reveals that her parents are dead — they were killed when she was 16 years old. She carries a piece of a plane with her, it's a piece of the plane that her parents were killed on when it was flown in to the towers on 9-11.

Nimah is up next, she reveals that Simon is a gay Jew — but he left his family and lived in Zionist Gaza for 4 years. Ryan questions Alex, he reveals that she has "issues with men" and she didn't even grieve when her father passed away a few years ago. Alex confirms that her father was a drunk, and her mother shot and killed him in self-defense.

It's Caleb and Eric's turn to go in the interrogation room, Caleb taunts Eric and tells him that his secret is about to be exposed. When they go in to the interrogation room, Eric is freaking out — he pulls a gun on Caleb and screams at him to "leave him alone." He shoots the woman in the interrogation room and pulls the gun on Caleb. He cries, and says that he is "sorry and never thought she would die." Then he shoots himself in the head and kills himself.

Later that night, Shelby finds Caleb on the roof crying. He sobs that he never meant for Eric to snap like that. He admits that both his parents are FBI agents, and they had to pull strings to get him in to Quantico. He barely passed his entrance tests, and he is afraid that he is going to get kicked out of the academy. The next day Shelby stops by Caleb's room and he is gone — apparently he was kicked out by the director and sent home while everyone was sleeping. Nimah heads to her single room, it's revealed that she has a twin sister — and they have been swapping places the entire time.

Flash Forward to the bombing in New York City — The FBI thinks that Alex is the terrorist. They search her apartment, and she swears she is innocent. They find Agent Ryan Booth lying on the floor of Alex's apartment with blood on him, he appears to be dead. Alex watches the search on the video camera, and is obviously shocked. They arrest Alex and rush her out of the train station for the murder of Booth and the terrorist attack. Alex is thrown in to the back of an FBI van, Director Miranda is driving — she tells her that she knows that she is innocent, she gives her a key to get her handcuffs off while she drives through the streets, trying to lose the police cars that are chasing them. Miranda crashes the van and flips through the streets — she is surrounded by officers with guns when the van stops, but Alex makes a clean getaway.

Summary: Alex needs to outwit Liam and his team in order to get into her apartment to find evidence to clear her name. Meanwhile, in a flashback, the NATs are tasked with finding potential threats to national security.

The episode kicks off with a flashback of Alex Parrish interviewing for the academy. Apparently, Ryan Booth was recruited at the academy to "keep an eye on Alex." He knew who she was before they even got to the academy and they met each other on the plane and had sex.

At the academy, Alex, Shelby, and Nimah are heading to class. They are teasing Alex about hooking up with Ryan Booth. They spot Ryan outside flirting with Nathalie — Alex insists that she doesn't care and says that Nathalie can have them. In class, the Quantico students are paired up with a team of analysts for the next 12 weeks. They will be learning how to identify and stop an attack before it happens.

Flash forward to the terrorist attack in New York — Alex Parrish is on the run and they are shutting down the city and searching for her. Alex contacts Liam on the walkie talkie, and he begs her to turn herself in. She insists that she is innocent — but he reminds her that they found Ryan Booth bleeding out on her apartment floor surrounded by plastic explosives. She tells him she only needs one day to prove that she is innocent. Liam tries to keep her talking while his men work on tracing the walkie talkie signal.

Back to Quantico — Shelby is surprised to see that the analyst that she is paired up with is Haas — she can't believe that they let him back in to the academy. While they are working with the analysts, Shaw takes Liam aside — she says that Ryan Booth is an undercover agent. But,

Liam already knew that, he is his contact. Shaw thinks that the bureau sent Ryan Booth to spy on her, to see how she is doing.

Flash forward to present time — Alex Parrish is on the run. She is wearing her FBI hat and coat still, she barges in to a shop near the explosion. She asks the store owner for access to her security footage from that morning. Meanwhile, Nathalie is processing evidence at Alex's house — she call Liam and says that there is no way she built an entire bomb in her apartment, there isn't enough supplies or space. Liam confronts Shaw after she is arrested, Shaw snarks that he is just bitter because he was in love with Alex Parrish.

At the store, Alex is watching the video of her apartment door. She doesn't see anyone else enter her apartment besides Ryan Booth. The store owner is suspicious of her because her hand is bleeding. She notices that Alex is on the security footage that she is watching. The store owner starts to run to call for help — but Alex grabs her and restrains her.

Back to Quantico — The trainees are presenting the evidence that they found in their fake cases to the analysts. Alex is arguing with Nathalie and Ryan about their case — she is certain that they missed something. It turns out Alex was right, and they failed the project. They wound up "exposing" themselves as FBI agents — and if it were real life their covers would have all been blown.

Flash Forward to NY — Alex creates a diversion and plants her walkie talkie on a random guy. All of the FBI agents rush out of her apartment because they think she is at a different location. Once they are gone, Alex runs inside of her own apartment where they are processing evidence. While Alex is inside — Nathalie returns, they wind up in a huge fight. Alex runs and locks herself in the bathroom. She notices a crack in the cupboard wall and kicks the wall in and runs in to the next apartment. She is shocked when she realizes that someone has been staying in the apartment and it is full of packages with her name on them.

Nathalie breaks through the wall and Alex makes a run for it — she chases Alex as she hops from roof to roof through NYC. Finally, Nathalie catches up to her. Alex wrestles her down and handcuffs her to a pole and steals her gun before she runs off. The entire time Alex tries to explain to Nathalie that she is innocent — but Nathalie isn't buying it.

Back to Quantico — Alex heads back to her room and Ryan Booth is waiting for her. He comes clean, he says that she was right about him — he says that he was married for three years and it didn't work out. He tells her where he "really was" before he came to Quantico. The thing is, he still didn't tell her the real truth — that he is undercover and spying on her.

Ryan Booth wakes up in the hospital, they were able to save him after they found him in Alex's apartment. The nurse gives him his phone and says it has been ringing off the hook. He takes the phone and calls Alex. She demands to know what he was doing in her apartment — he says that he just visited her to apologize for what happened back in Quantico. Ryan says it was dark someone opened the door and shot him — he didn't see the shooter. He says that he will help her, and buy her some time — but in order to do that he is going to have to make her seem guilty. Liam arrives at the hospital, and Ryan quickly hangs up.

Summary: At Quantico, Alex learns of her father's FBI past; and, in the future, Liam asks Alex's mother to take part in a televised press conference geared to getting Alex to turn herself in. In other events, at Quantico, the NATS learn the art of profiling and focus on their classmates' strengths and weaknesses.

The episode kicks off with the Quantico class in the pool during training. They are doing the "Sink or Swim" drill — they were tossed in to the pool with their hands tied behind their backs and tied to their partners' hands. Of course, Alex and Shelby were the first team to get untied. They head to the lockerroom, while they are getting changed Nimah rants to them about how sick and tired she is of Vasquez's competitiveness. Afterwards, Liam takes Alex aside and gives her the file about her dead father that she had secretly asked for. In class alter that day, the Quantico class is given a lecture on psychological profiles. They are ordered to make profiles of their classmates — Miranda tells her class to find each other's strengths and weaknesses.

Fast forward to present time — Liam is getting grilled by his higher ups, they want to know where Alex is. They need something to tell the press, the world is demanding answers and wants to know why the second 9/11 was pulled off by one of their own. Liam thinks he may have found someone who can help — he had Alex's mother brought in to custody. Meanwhile, Alex is on the run, she pays one of her former classmates a visit — Simon — and convinces him to help her find the real terrorist. Apparently, Ryan Booth called him and told him to help her.

Simon reminds her that she got kicked out of Quantico, and he is not in the FBI — so he can't do much for her. Alex gives Simon a wire that she found from one of the bombs that were planted in his apartment, he agrees to look in to it and see what he can find out about it. Flashback to Quantico, the students are all partnered up and interviewing each other for their profiles. Ryan is sitting across the room, and keeping a close eye on Alex the entire time.

Meanwhile, Shelby is quizzing Nimah — or possibly her twin — and isn't making much progress. Afterwards Miranda posts everyone's analysis on the wall outside of class. They start turning on each other when they read what they wrote about each other. Miranda announces that every student needs to submit a list of the 3 students that they think should be cut from the class — they have 2 hours to make their lists.

Present time — Liam is questioning Alex's mom Sita. She insists that she doesn't even know her daughter any more and she hasn't spoken to her since she graduated from Quantico. Apparently, Alex's mom and Liam have some bad blood between them, and she remembers what he and her husband Michael were up to. Meanwhile, Alex and Simon have a bit of a breakthrough. They rush to his lab at work and he looks at her fingerprints on the wire she brought him. Whoever is framing her, used her old set of fingerprints — before she cut her finger in the "Sink or Swim" exercise at Quantico. Her current fingerprints have a scar across her pointer finger.

Simon searches the wire that Alex brought him — it was actually made out of government supplies. And, it was nothing more than a prop. It couldn't actually have been used to make the bomb that blew up in central station, it was actually part of an old nuclear bomb that would sit in the government's stock rooms for decades. The wires are the smoking guns that can prove that Alex was framed.

Flashback to Quantico — The students are all cracking. Ryan and Simon are in their room — coming nearly to blows. Simon snaps and starts choking Ryan, he hints that he knows that Ryan is not a former marine. Alex breaks them up and says that this is what Miranda wanted — she was trying to get them all to turn on each other. Simon storms off and heads to Miranda's office and hands her a piece of paper, he says it is for the "better good" of everyone in the class. He submitted his votes. The rest of the class is furious when they learn that Simon turned against them and voted — even though they were taking a stance and not voting. To Alex's dismay, everyone caves and agrees with Simon and gets ready to submit their votes. Miranda interrupts, she says that it was all an exercise. She is shocked, no class ever actually decided to vote each other out. They were supposed to remain united. She informs Simon that he is on formal warning, one more mistake and he is out, because he "turned on his people when they needed him the most."

Present time — Alex is pacing while Simon is searching the military database on his computer. She whines that it has been over an hour. Suddenly, Simon starts laughing and an alarm system goes off in the house. Alex pulls her gun frantically and Simon taunts "Sorry Alex." Simon says that he had to alert the authorities so that he doesn't get in trouble for helping her — but he promises to help her get away.

Fast forward to present time — Miranda is still in custody and she sees agents taking Alex's mom in to the bathroom. She lies and says she needs to use the bathroom too, and she locks herself in the bathroom with Sita. Miranda tells her that she knows Alex is innocent and she needs to stand by her daughter right now. Alex's blood is all that she has left — if her own mother turns on her it will destroy her. Liam takes Sita back in the bathroom, he shows her security video footage of Alex beating up Simon. Sita obviously believes that Alex is a terrorist, she caves and tells Liam that Alex lied to her whole family — she was MIA in India for a year and they have no idea where she was or what she was up to.

Tonight's episode ends with Shelby and Alex making amends in their dorm room. Afterwards, Alex heads outside and Ryan finds her sitting alone with the FBI file about her dad. Alex confesses that her dad was in the FBI, Alex breaks down crying. Her father was a hero and he saved 100's of lives — and she shot and killed him, because she thought that he was just a miserable drunk.

Present time — Alex's mom stands up at a press conference and turns against her own daughter, she says that Alex's actions can't be forgiven.

Summary: At Quantico, the recruits take part in a hostage rescue training exercise that leaves Alex questioning whether she should quit; and, in the future, she finds possible evidence that seems to point to one of her closest classmates.

The episode kicks off with a flashback of Alex Parrish's parents Michael and Sita fighting over a gun on the floor. While they are wrestling, Alex runs in to the room and picks up the gun and shoots and kills her own father. It's all a bad dream — Alex wakes up in Quantico, they are being woken up for a pre-dawn gun test.

Fast forward to present time — Alex is on the rush. Simon finds her hard at work, she hasn't been to bed yet — she has built an entire bulleting board with all of the Quantico students faces. Simon gets a phone call and says it is his work, its actually his handler at the FBI. They tell him that there are agents en route to pick up Alex, he has to keep her busy until they arrive. Simon begs them to give him tie, Alex trusts him, he thinks that he can get her to talk.

Back at Quantico — Liam takes Booth aside and tells him that his mission to keep his eyes on Alex is over. They don't think that she is a good match for the FBI. Ryan can go home as soon as he convinces Alex to drop out of the academy. Ryan argues that it's ridiculous, Alex is at the top of her class — how is he supposed to convince her to leave the academy.

At the bomb site, Ryan is out of the hospital — he runs in to Vasquez. He reassures her that nothing is going on with him and Alex — it was just a one time thing between them, Vasquez isn't convinced because he was at her apartment at 6 in the morning.

Liam tells Ryan that they are about to arrest Alex — he sees the agents live feeds of Simon's house and realizes that Simon has been working with the FBI all along and is setting Alex up. He texts Simon and demands to know what he is doing. At the last minute Simon has a change of heart and he rushes Alex out the back door of his house before the FBI agents arrive to arrest her.

Of course, Vasquez taunts Shelby and Alex about how much better she is at shooting than them. Next, they send them in to a staged bank robbery. While they are getting strapped up, Shelby takes Ryan aside — she is worried about Alex and the way she has been acting. Ryan slips up and says that Alex shot and killed her father, he thought that Shelby already knew.

Present time — Simon and Alex are on the move, he is taking her to meet his "bomb maker friend" to get information on the wires that she found at the scene of the crime. He analyzes the wire and says that there is only one company that manufactures those wires. It's the company that her old roommate at Quantico, Shelby, secretly owned — Alex recognizes the name instantly.

Summary: The trainees leave campus for the first time while on an undercover assignment; and Alex and Ryan become closer. In the future, Alex decides to share her side of the story and, to that end, sits down for a TV interview.

The episode kicks off with Alex Parrish and her former roommate Shelby — Alex has taken her hostage. Alex is convinced that Shelby was trying to frame her, the wire she found in her apartment was linked to Shelby's family business, Alex insists that she is innocent. Shelby points out that innocent people don't other people hostage and handcuff them to poles. Ryan calls Alex and warns her that the FBI put a "shoot on sight" order out on her, they aren't just trying to arrest her, they have orders to kill her.

Flashback to Quantico — After training, Ryan flirts with Alex. He says that he wants to take her to a diner nearby, but they are forbidden from leaving the academy. They head to class and Miranda gives them their new task — they are going undercover and they are all required to create a fake fortune 500 business character. Whoever wins the competition, will get to go out in real life and see if people fall for the fake persona that they have created.

Present time — Simon and Ryan are still at the bomb site at Grand Central Station — they are working hard to try and find the real bomber because they know that Alex is losing hope. Meanwhile, Alex comes up with a plan — she decides to go online and "tell her story" to the public, since the media has dubbed her "Jihady Jane." She thinks that if she convinces the public she is innocent, the FBI won't be able to kill her on sight, because they won't want to deal with the backlash. Alex contacts the hacker group "Anonymous" — she wants their help broadcasting a video that the FBI can't trace to her location.

Flashback to Quantico — Alex and her classmates are getting to work creating their fake personas. Alex decides that she wants to be a lawyer, because she is really good at arguing. Liam gives them some pointers on selling their fake characters. He quizzes them all for hours, and then they head out to the "real world." Liam takes them to a fortune 500 conference — their mission is to network their way to a 1-on-1 meeting with Norman Reed.

The students begin mingling at the mixer. The twins are bickering with each other, meanwhile Simone sneaks in a fake boyfriend named Max to try and prove to the other skeptics at Quantico that he really does have a boyfriend. Caleb is following Shelby around and sabotaging her, he thinks that she ratted him out at the gun range earlier. Miranda takes Liam aside at the bar and demands to know why he has Ryan spying on Alex. Liam reveals that Alex has "something on all of them," and he promises to tell her everything if she buys him a drink.

Present time — Alex and Shelby meet up with some members of Anonymous. They quiz her first to make sure that she is really innocent before they agree to go live with her interview. Back at headquarters, Liam gets intel that Alex is preparing to go live with Anonymous — he tells his team to get ready. If she is live for more than five minutes, then they will be able to get through some of the firewalls and track her to her location.

Alex goes live and says that someone from Quantico "framed the brown girl." She was an easy target because of her nationality and the fact that she has spent time in other countries. Alex vows that she loves this country, and if it were up to the FBI — she would be dead already. She prays that the FBI thinks twice about silencing her before the truth comes out.

Flashback to Quantico — Elias tracks down Simon's fake boyfriend Max. He learns that he and Max aren't really dating. Downstairs at the convention, Shelby freaks out on Caleb — she has had enough of him sabotaging her. She drags him in to an empty room and they start shouting at each other and then wind up ripping each other's clothes off and hooking up. Meanwhile, Alex, Ryan, and Nimah win the challenge and get to meet the CEO.

Present time — While Alex is broadcasting, the FBI manages to track the signal and rush to her location. They roll up with their troops and jump out with their guns drawn. Alex planned ahead though, she is in the basement of a chapel — and it is Ramadan. Ryan and Simon arrive, Ryan points out to Liam that this is a PR nightmare. While Liam is arguing with the priest news crews arrive, and then hundreds of people leave the chapel with their faces covered and they can't do anything about it. Alex gets away — but she leaves Shelby in the basement. Anonymous helps Alex check in to a hotel under a fake name, they give her an encrypted cell phone and laptop that she can use before they leave.

Flashback to Quantico — Simon heads up to Max's hotel room, and finds Elias sitting in there. His scheme is up. Elias rants that he knows Simon is dangerous and he is going to make sure that he never sets foot in Quantico again. Alex and Ryan are up on the roof alone, drinking — one thing leads to another and they wind up sleeping together, again. The next morning, they had back to camp — Simon pays Elias a visit. He confesses to him that he was in the Israeli Defense Forces, and he did horrible things that haunt him every day of his life. When he got back, he went undercover to help him cope with himself. He made his entire life a lie — he doesn't wear glasses, he is not gay, and he doesn't even like coffee. Simon breaks down in tears, and he and Elias make amends.

Tonight's episode ends with Miranda telling Ryan that Liam wasn't lying, and Alex is a threat to National Security. Meanwhile, Liam is debriefing Shelby — she doesn't tell Liam that Ryan and Simon are secretly helping Alex. Afterwards, Shelby tells Ryan and Simon that they are right — she doesn't think that Alex did it. Simon gets a text message and learns that they weren't the only ones in NY during the bombing — Caleb was there too, he might be the bomber.

Summary: The NATs practice surveillance on Miranda and her son; Shelby tries to keep her distance from Caleb; Raina opens the door to a closer relationship with Simon; and, in the future, Alex is helped with her effort to hack into an FBI computer.

The episode kicks off with Alex and Shelby watching the news — Shelby has agreed to help her prove that she is innocent. The news anchor is sharing a photo that was snapped of Alex carrying a box right before the bombing — they got it off from a social media page.

Alex whines that all that was in the box was flapjacks, not a bomb detonator. Alex is certain that Caleb is the bomber — she needs Shelby's help to prove it though since she knows more about Caleb than anyone else. Alex calls

Ryan and wakes him up, he's in bed with Vasquez. Alex tells Ryan to check the social media accounts that the FBI is going through for pictures of Caleb — not her.

Flashback to Quantico — Miranda hasn't been to work in nearly a week. Liam heads to her house to check in on her. Her son Charlie's just got out of prison, after he threatened to go on a shooting rampage at a school. Miranda is scared to leave him alone, she is scared of what he might do while she is at work. Liam tells Miranda that she needs to have some faith in him, and then he might actually speak to her if he thinks that she is giving him space and trusting him.

Present Time — Ryan gets to work and calls Alex — he has bad news. The FBI analyst in charge of searching all of the social media posts the day of the bombing for evidence that Alex is the bomber — is none other than Caleb Haas. And, it is going to be impossible for Ryan to access his projects because Caleb's Dad Clayton is overlooking him.

Flashback to Quantico — The FBI students are learning how to set up surveillance, and how to use the information they gather to see what the person they are watching is really like. Meanwhile, Alex and Shelby are teasing each other about hooking up with Caleb and Ryan.

They all head back to class where they are "watching" a fake couple named Edgar and Julia. Back in class, Vasquez realizes that Shelby is hooking up with Caleb. Vasquez says that Shelby is going out with another guy, she encourages Caleb to find out who it is and "take him out." Ryan and Alex are working together,

It's time for the students' next surveillance assignment — Miranda tells the students that now they have to run surveillance on her. She teases that she has something planned, and if they don't keep an eye on her then they will be tapped out. The students are obviously thrown off by their new assignment.

Present Time — Caleb gets to work analyzing the surveillance video and images and videos from social media — and Alex has hacked in to his computer so that she can see everything that Caleb is seeing, to make sure that he doesn't cover up his own tracks.

Flashback To Quantico — Alex and Ryan park a van outside of Miranda's house, they are surprised to see that Miranda is not home — but Liam's car is parked outside of her house. Meanwhile, Miranda calls Liam and thanks him for keeping an eye on Charles while she was at work. She tells Liam that he can head home, but neglects to say that all of the kids will be doing surveillance on her house.

Present Time — Alex has been watching Caleb rewind through hours of footage, finally he deletes something. She calls Simon and tells him to create a distraction so that she can hack in to Caleb's computer and see what he deleted. She is certain that it was proof that he was at the bomb site.

Flashback To Quantico — Liam is leaving Miranda's house and he finds Ryan snooping around outside the house. Liam has no idea that Miranda gave them an assignment to watch her house and he demands to know what Liam is doing there. Ryan is wearing a wire and Alex can hear their entire conversation — and Liam mentions that Ryan is already an FBI agent and he was assigned to keep an eye on Alex. Alex freaks off and speeds off in the surveillance van.

Shelby gets back to her room, and Caleb is waiting for her — he is furious. He knows that she has been lying, and she isn't really dating any one else. Caleb scoffs that he knows Shelby thinks she is "too good" for him. Shelby corrects him and tells Caleb that the reason she pushed him away is because she likes him too much and he is starting to distract her from becoming an FBI agent.

Present Time — Alex gets the video that Caleb deleted — it is just him arguing with his father outside of the station. Caleb didn't have anything to do with the bombing. Then Alex is confused when Shelby meets up with Caleb's dad afterward and they start kissing. Shelby pleads with Alex to turn the computer off, and Alex puts two and two together... Caleb came to New York because he was trying to figure out who Shelby was having an affair with, and it was his own father!

Flashback to Quantico — Miranda finds her son Charles — he is standing outside the school that he was going to shoot up, they start arguing. Miranda shouts that she wants to trust him, she just is scared that he will make good on his threats before he went to juvie.

Ryan finds Alex — she is furious, for obvious reason. He admits that he started following her before they got to Quantico, and he knew who she was when they hooked up at the airport. Ryan insists that when he took the assignment, he didn't know anything about her father or why Liam was keeping tabs on her. He reveals that Liam took him off the case as soon as he found out they were sleeping together, and he shouts that he lost his position at the bureau over her and Liam. Alex doesn't want to hear it, she shouts at him to never speak to her again.

Present Time — Shelby tries to talk to Caleb, but he is devastated after seeing video footage of her cheating on him with his father. Shelby tries to explain herself but there is nothing she can say to make what she did okay. Caleb storms off in tears, after reminding Shelby that his dad is married — to his mother.

Flashback to Quantico — Alex pays Liam a visit, he reassures her that he ended the surveillance on her as soon as he realized that she was such an asset to the FBI.

Tonight's episode ends with Caleb getting back to work on the surveillance footage — he finds another one of their classmates was also at Grand Central Station... it was one of the twins!

Summary: The NATS face an explosive assignment for their midterm. In the future, as Alex continues to try and clear her name, Nimah and Raina provide her with more questions than answers.

The episode kicks off with Simon and Alex arguing — they just found footage of either Raina or Neimah walking through Grand Central Station two days before the explosion. Simon thinks that it is just a coincidence. He agrees to help her try to find the twins though. Ryan visits Miranda in custody to try and get the twins' latest phone numbers. Miranda gives him a number and warns him to be careful. Meanwhile, Vasquez and Liam are watching Ryan — they know that he is working with Alex. Liam tells Vasquez to follow

Ryan and let him lead them straight to Alex.

Flashback to Quantico — Simon is furious that the twins attacked him and hid him in the bathroom to keep his secret. Miranda pays him a visit, she tells him that if he keeps the twins' secret for her than she will strike the probation from his record. Meanwhile, Shelby and Caleb are making out in the utility room — and his dad the Executive Director of the FBI walks in on them. Shelby feels super awkward, but Caleb reassures her that he is happy to finally meet her and has heard lots of great stuff about her. After Shelby leaves, Caleb's dad tries to bribe him to drop out of Quantico. He offers to give Caleb his trust fund early if he will fail his next test on purpose, he doesn't want Caleb in the FBI any longer because he is scared that he will embarrass their family.

Present Time — Alex and Simon find Raina meditating. They sneak up on her and Simon pulls his gun on her — she is confused and wants to know what they are doing. Alex demands to know what she was doing at Grand Central Station. Raina's face lights up and she says "Nimah is alive!" Apparently, she thought her twin was dead — but she can't be if they have security footage of her two days ago. Nimah explains that she and Raina were supposed to swap places last week and Raina never showed up. She hadn't heard from her and she thought the worse.

Raina explains to Alex and Simon that she and her sister have been infiltrating an Islamic house across the street. But, she hasn't saw Nimah or anyone else come in and out for days. She thinks that they may have forced Nimah to help with the Grand Central Station bombing. She says the terrorist group was targeting landmarks. Back at the FBI headquarters, Shelby finds Caleb looking through the video surveillance — he found the footage of Nimah. When Shelby talks to him, she slips up and says that it is Nimah in the video — he wants to know how she knew it wasn't Raina.

Flashback To Quantico — The students are all given a written test — it's a blank piece of paper. Miranda leaves them all alone in the classroom, and they spend hours trying to figure it out. They do some research and realize that Brandon was the only one that didn't get a piece of paper. Brandon storms out of the classroom and says that he knows he is getting kicked out of Quantico and that's why he didn't get a paper. After he leaves the classroom, the fire alarm goes off and the doors lock — someone finds a timer underneath Brandon's chair, it's counting down and there is less than a minute remaining on it.

Present time — Simon uses thermal goggles to look at the house across the street from Nimah's. They can see five guys inside, and it looks like Raina is inside with them. Nimah refuses to believe it — she says that it is impossible and her sister never would betray her or the country. Nimah decides to sneak back in to the house and get her sister out. Meanwhile, Vasquez rushes to get Liam — she says that Ryan is on his way to meet with Alex, and she put a tracker on his jacket.

Flashback to Quantico — All of the students are still locked in the classroom, they think that Brandon's big exit and the doors locking are all part of their final exam. But, then they find a bomb hidden under the speaking podium — there are only 22 minutes remaining before the bomb is detonated.

Present time — Raina sneaks out of the house and rushes across the street. She screams at Alex and Simon for nearly blowing her cover. Nimah is still inside the house with the Islam terrorists. Raina explains that she didn't leave the house because she was getting close to the leader "Hamza." Simone realizes that by getting close, she means she was sleeping with him, and he's not happy. While they are arguing — they hear Nimah on the walkie talkie — apparently while she was pretending to be Raina, the leader Hamza came home and told her that the house is no longer safe and they have to leave the country ASAP. Shelby and Ryan show up, they warn Alex and Simon that the FBI is on their way.

Flashback to Quantico — The students get the door open, and start escaping. But, Simon was trying to deactivate the bomb. He can't take his hands off from the wires — because if it is a real bomb, then it will blow up. Everyone in the class scatters and leaves except for Ryan, Shelby, Alex, Caleb, and Nimah, and Vasquez. Miranda walks in and tells them that they passed, and thanks them for sacrificing their lives for their country — even if it turned out to be just a fake bomb.

Present time — Raina is freaking out, she wants to go switch places with her sister Nimah before Hamza realizes what is going on. Simon and Ryan won't allow it — they say that it is too dangerous. They are loading their guns and preparing to rush in to the house and get Nimah out before Hamza realizes anything. Raina is furious that they are about to blow her entire assignment. Alex convinces the guys to let Raina go back in, she doesn't want to risk Nimah's life just trying to prove her innocence. Meanwhile inside, Hamza starts kissing Nimah and it is only a matter of time before he realizes that she is not his girlfriend.

Flashback to Quantico — After the test is over, Ryan and Alex share a moment. He explains to her that he didn't want to take her as an assignment. Liam forced him to take the job and blackmailed him. Outside, Nimah meets with Miranda — she doesn't think that she and her sister should keep lying to their classmates. How can they trust them with their lives if the twins can't even tell them their secret? Shelby runs in to Caleb's dad and tells him that Caleb didn't throw the test. Caleb's dad scoffs that Shelby doesn't know what his son is capable of. He says that he has picked up Caleb's messes in the past — and one of his messes nearly cost dozens of lives.

Present Time — Raina and Nimah are trying to switch places and the FBI storms the house that they are hiding in. Alex and Ryan are outside and Hamza shoots Ryan — Alex opens fire in the middle of the street on the Islamic house.

Flashback to Quantico — Miranda calls the remaining students in to the classroom — she has an announcement to make. She introduces Raina and Nimah, everyone is shocked that there are two of them.

Present Time — Ryan is injured, and bleeding badly. Alex is trying to get him to safety. Vasquez corners them in the alley. Alex surrenders herself, because she knows that Ryan needs help. Vasquez shockingly lets them both leave when none of the other FBI agents are looking.

Summary: In the future, a hack of the FBI computer system causes confidential information to become public; and Alex realizes that a second bomb is in NYC. In other events, at Quantico, the NATs receive individual assignments that are actually connected.

The episode kicks off where we left off last week — Alex and Ryan are on the run now and Ryan is injured. Liam and the FBI are closing in on them, they just raided the house where they were hiding out. Alex and Ryan run in to another house, and Ryan tells her that she is going to have to perform “field surgery” — because he was just shot, again.

Flashback to Quantico — The class is whiddling down, there has been another round of cuts. Now, they are allowed to leave campus. They head to class with Miranda and she announces that they are all getting their very first case to work on. The twins are still working a case together though — it’s a jewelry theft. Caleb is stuck with a cyber crime. Ironically, Alex’s case is a bomb threat.

Present — Shelby and Simon are arrested by Liam and his men and brought back to central station. Caleb’s dad is furious when he sees that Shelby is involved. She tries to explain that Alex is innocent, but he doesn’t want to hear it. Caleb’s dad goes live in a press conference — and the computer screens behind him start going crazy. The FBI was hacked — and someone leaked the entire grand central station files on to the internet. Alex gets the bullet out of Ryan, and then she gets on the computer and realizes that someone just hacked the FBI and gave her everything that she needs to clear her name once and for all.

Alex calls her hacker friends Mia and Duncan for help, she begs them to help her look through the FBI’s files and find something to clear her name. Meanwhile, the FBI is scrambling — Caleb’s dad asks Caleb to help him cover his tracks and hide his affair with Shelby. He is scared that the hackers are going to leak his emails too and reveal he was having an affair. Caleb agrees to clear the emails, and his dad orders him to delete Shelby's emails too — he gives Caleb Shelby's passwords.

Flashback To Quantico — Ryan takes Alex aside, he dug up some dirt on Liam. Apparently Alex's dad was Liam's boss in 1993. But, then Liam put in an immediate transfer request, and no one knew why. Alex decides that she and Ryan are going to have to go talk to her mom about it, if anyone knows what really happened it would be her mom. Alex can't believe that Liam lied about knowing her dad this entire time. Meanwhile, all of the students are working their cases and they realize that they are all connected, and all cases lead back to Washington DC.

Alex and Ryan sneak in to the records office, they find a case file on Alex's mom — apparently she was questioned about her relationship with Alex's dad and the FBI thought she had links to the Pakistani Intelligence. Alex steals the file on her mom and they rush back to class. In class, Miranda gives them their next assignment, they have to go out and capture an assailant that has Ebola and is planning on spreading it.

Present Time — Alex and Ryan are going through the files with the hackers, they find a receipt in Alex's name for supplies used to buy stuff to make a bomb. They realize that those supplies weren't used in the Grand Central Station bomb — and there is another bomb out there. Meanwhile, back at FBI headquarters, Caleb makes an interesting discovery in his dad's email. Apparently, someone alerted his dad BEFORE the bombing that someone was using Alex Parrish's badge, and it wasn't her.

Meanwhile, the hackers are trying to convince Alex to leave the country — they have a car and a plane set up for her. Alex doesn't want to leave. She is afraid that if she leaves the country she won't be able to clear her name. Ryan tries to convince Alex that it is the best thing for her to do right now. Back at the FBI headquarters — Caleb is freaking out, his dad tried to delete the email that would clear Alex's name. Luckily, Caleb kept a copy of it.

Flashback to Quantico — Liam stole the file back from Alex about her dad and him working together. Liam admits that he worked with Alex's dad, they went undercover with a militia. There was a terrorist attack and Liam and Alex's dad misread the target — they wound up being responsible for hundreds of deaths, and then they covered it up so that they didn't lose their jobs at the FBI.

Caleb and Shelby wind up in a huge fight — he got her in trouble for sending money to her sister in Saudi Arabia, the FBI thought that it was terrorism related. Shelby can't believe that Caleb violated her trust, Caleb confesses that he has a secret too — he admits that his father had to save him when he was 17 years old because he joined a cult.

Present Time — Alex and Ryan arrive at the airport, Ryan is in bad shape. Alex puts Ryan in to the plane, she lies to him and tells him that she left his medicine in the car. Alex tricked Ryan, she is sending him out of the country to be safe, but she is not leaving until she is able to clear her name.

Flashback to Quantico — Alex pays Miranda a visit, Miranda confirms that Liam was telling the truth about the cover-up with her father. While they are talking, Miranda gets a phone call and rushes out of the room. It's her neighbor — she calls to let Miranda know that there is someone on her roof. Present Time — Tonight's episode ends with Alex marching in to Grand Central station, FBI agents rush her and pin her on the ground. She warns them that that there is another bomb in NYC.

Simon puts his life in danger when he becomes too good at the task. A highly experienced FBI team interrogates Alex while Ryan's life in on the line.

The episode kicks off with Alex Parrish being processed at the FBI headquarters — she just turned herself in. They are swabbing her DNA and taking her fingerprints — Liam orders his agents not to mirandize Parrish just yet.

Flashback to Quantico — Alex is at class when she learns that Liam hasn't been to school in over a week, they are looking for a permanent replacement for him. She sneaks off base and heads to Liam's house, where she finds him passed out drunk in bed and drags him in to a cold shower. Meanwhile, Ryan is sitting outside in his car watching — apparently he followed her there.

Present — Harper shows up to FBI headquarters and announces that he is Alex's legal counsel — he shoots some snarky comments to Director Haas. Harper reveals that he was kicked out of Quantico by Haas before he graduated, and he is making it his mission to destroy him in court. The President has sent a team of his own men to interrogate Parrish, Liam and Haas are not happy that they have to hand the case over to HIGS.

Flashback to Quantico — Dr. Susan Langdon has come to lecture about serial murder cases. She has brought along real crimes scene and killer files — they are going to split in to teams and try to figure out which one of the victims on the list was added and not real.

Present — Caleb gets a phone call from the medical examiner — they found Agent Goodwin's body in the rubble, she had her keys and badge on her — but no cell phone. He frantically calls Elias and tells him to make sure that Alex doesn't say anything to the interrogators, he just found a huge piece of the puzzle. Caleb is too late though — the President's interrogators have already taken Alex away to an undisclosed location.

Meanwhile, Alex is being questioned by Griffin Wells — one of the lead intelligence gatherers in the country. He offers her a deal, if she confesses then he will put in a good word for her and she may not get the death penalty. Caleb rushes back to FBI headquarters, he and Harper fill Simon and Shelby in on Agent Goodwin. The night before the bombing Goodwin reported that another agent was using Alex's badge — and then she miraculously turned up dead, and her phone is missing. Caleb is certain that Goodwin was killed because she knew the true identity of the terrorist. Shelby and Simon are being detained, Simon and Caleb rush off to try and find evidence to clear Alex's name.

Flashback to Quantico — The students finish their exercises and Langdon tells them that every good profiler needs to be able to take the edge off after working twisted files — she invites them all to a bar after class for drinks. Susan takes Asher aside and tells him that she was especially impressed with his skills.

Present — Caleb and Harper are rewatching security videos and trying to figure out who kidnapped Alex off the street and how she woke up in the rubble of the bomb. They realize that there is a blindspot between two of the security videos and that is when someone snatched her. Caleb recruits the twins to help him figure out what is in the blindspot — he gives one of them the address to go check it out, and tells the other twin to stay at headquarters so that no one realizes her sister has left.

In the interrogation room, Alex is trying to tell Griffin Wells that there is another bomb out there — she starts rambling about finding the wire that could prove that there is another bomb. Wells isn't buying it, instead he leads her down a dark hallway to torture her. He says that Alex has a high threshold for pain, but she can't handle her loved ones being hurt. Wells has Ryan hanging from the ceiling, handcuffed and unconscious — when Alex sees him she starts freaking out.

Flashback to Quantico — All of the students head to the bar with Langdon — they play a serial killer drinking game and everyone gets wasted. Alex is dancing with Ryan and receives a phonecall from a bartender in Georgetown, Liam is there and he needs help, he is still drinking. Ryan begs Alex not to go — he doesn't understand why she would want to help a man that tried to destroy them both.

Present — Neema calls Caleb — she found the blindspot, there was a van parked there — it looks like it has been parked there for days and there is a rag inside with chloroform. They rewatch the security video and notice a taxi pulling up on the next camera, they get the taxi's license number, they think that the bomber took a taxi to the blindspot. Caleb and Vasquez rush off to try to track down the taxi and get an ID on the passenger.

Meanwhile, Wells is torturing Ryan and shoving his hand inside of his bullet holes while Ryan screams in agony. Ryan shouts at Alex not to say anything — no matter how madly they hurt him. Alex sobs that she doesn't know who the bomber is, the only thing that she does know is that there is another bomb out there and more people are going to get hurt.

Caleb, Neema, and Vasquez brief Liam on all of the information that they found — they talked to the cab driver, he remembers the passenger but doesn't know his name, he gave them the address he dropped them off at, it's a hotel. Caleb went to the hotel and found the luggage bag that they think the terrorist used to transport Alex after she was knocked out. Caleb points out that whoever they are dealing with is calculating and meticulous, they were obviously plotting this for months — and made sure that they were never caught on a single camera.

Flashback to Quantico — Alex arrives at the bar where Liam is pounding drinks — apparently his teenage daughter frequents the bar and he was hoping to run in to her. Alex is able to convince him to go home finally, he is still shaken up about what happened to Miranda and her son. Back at the other bar, Simon and Langdon are back at the bar — they are arguing over a case file that they looked at in class, the "Welfare Killer." Simon looked over the file, he knows that Langdon falsified evidence to put the killer away. She threatens him while they are sitting at the bar and taunts him that she could kill him right there — she knows where all of the security cameras and blindspots are.

Langdon rushes Simon out of the front door, and Ryan notices. Ryan rushes outside and Langdon lies and says that she was going to take Simon home to hook up with her. She jokes that "tonight is not the night," and she kisses Simon and whispers "you will never prove it" before she hops in the car and drives off. Simon tells Ryan that he just saved his life.

Present — Wells is still torturing Ryan — Alex Parrish finally snaps, she says that she will say whatever Wells wants her to say. Right before she confesses to a crime that she didn't commit, Liam and a squad of FBI agents barge in through the door with their guns drawn and tell Wells that is enough.

Liam takes Alex aside, he apologizes to her that it took him this long to believe her. He promises her that all of the students who helped her will be reinstated. Liam tells Alex that whoever framed her expected her to be caught, and the only way they will catch the terrorist is to play in to the next phase of their plan — he needs Alex to plead guilty. That way the bomber will continue with their plan, and they will be able to catch them.

Flashback to Quantico — Alex visits Miranda in the hospital to check up on her. In their dorm room, Nathalie confesses to Shelby that the reason she has been so moody is because she misses her 4 year old daughter — Shelby is shocked she had no idea that Nathalie had a kid. Out in the woods, Caleb receives a phone call from his dad Clayton — Clayton says that he just got intel on Shelby, and the sister in another country that she sends money to, doesn't even exist. Ryan informs Alex that he is leaving Quantico — Miranda told him that he could leave weeks ago, but he had stayed for her...until now.

Present — Tonight's episode ends with Liam holding a press conference — he announces that Alex Parrish has pled guilty to first degree murder of 130 people, and the bombing. Meanwhile, Simon is meeting with a man on the side of the road ranting about the FBI, the man hands him a flashdrive with blueprints of every train station in NYC.

Alex heads back to the FBI office, they brief Simon, Neema, Rayna, and Shelby on the plan. They have 24 hours to investigate their entire class from Quantico to try and find the bombed before they strike again.

Flashback to Quantico — the class is in the gym, working on their self- defense tactics. Nathalie, Ryan, and Alex are paired up with each other. Shelby is fighting Caleb and Brandon — but they are scared to hurt her. Shelby freaks out because she is tired of them treating her like a girl.

Shelby can tell that something is off with Caleb — she confesses to Alex that she thinks that Caleb is going to dump her. In the boy’s locker room Caleb calls his dad. He begs him to leave Shelby alone and promises to find proof that her sister is real.

Alex notices something strange with Nathalie in the locker room. It looks like the scar behind her ear is peeling off — she confronts her and wants to know if it is fake. Nathalie tells her to mind her own business. Alex tells Ryan that something is “off” with Nathalie and tells him about the fake scar, Ryan agrees to look in to it.

Present — Alex and her classmates are working hard with Liam and Miranda to get surveillance on all of the other students that were at Quantico with them. They have eyes on all of them. Miranda and Liam take Alex aside and tell her that she needs to keep an eye on Simon, Shelby, and the twins too.

They are going to “put eyes on them.” Alex argues that they have earned her trust — but Miranda and Liam tell her that she can’t trust anyone right now, and the person that framed her might be one of the people closest to her.

Flashback to Quantico — their final mission at school is to go through background checks of a new class coming in to replace them, and try to find what they are hiding and to make the final cuts. Meanwhile, Caleb is on a mission to find proof that Shelby's sister is real. He sneaks in to her dorm room to look through her laptop. Shelby walks in and catches him — he swears that he is trying to help her.

Ryan gets Alex a copy of Nathalie's file — there is nothing in there about her scar. But, there is something strange in her file about a restraining order she has against a drug dealer named Edgar Beltran. Nathalie catches them reading her file and freaks out. While they are arguing, Liam marches in and says that they have an emergency meeting for the Candidacy Review Board — something happened.

Present — Miranda, Liam, and Alex are watching the surveillance footage. They overheard Shelby on the phone, with Clayton (Caleb's dad) — Miranda is shocked, Shelby's secret affair is out. Meanwhile, Raina visits Hamza in the hospital, he is the terrorist of the cell that they were infiltrating.

They look in on the surveillance footage of Simon, he is meeting a man at the park. Alex zooms in on the man and recognizes him and freaks out, she tells Miranda "That man Simon is meeting makes bombs."

Flashback to Quantico — they are waiting for the emergency meeting to start. Caleb is trying to explain to Shelby that he was trying to find proof for his dad that her sister is real. He doesn't want his dad to come after her. Miranda arrives at the meeting and calls Natalie up front — she knows about her fake scar. She orders Natalie to explain herself in front of the entire class.

Natalie cries that she faked the scar before she got in the FBI, she lie in family court and said that her ex-boyfriend Eddie did it to her so that they couldn't get custody of her daughter because he was a bad man. Neema stands up and interrupts, she says that Natalie is innocent and if anyone should be up front it is Simon, because he is a "war criminal."

Present — Alex explains to Miranda that the man meeting with Simon is named Oren Shelef, he is an explosives expert and Simon met him at the IDF. Simon makes the FBI agents and can tell that he is being watched. He and Oren leave the park before the FBI agents are able to pick them up. They send units out to Simon's house to look for him.

Meanwhile, Shelby, Natalie, Caleb, Neema, Rayna all barge in and they demand to know why they are still under surveillance. They thought that Alex trusted them and knew they were innocent. While they are all arguing... Simon marches in. He announces that he is "The one that planned Grand Central." Everyone stops talking and stares at him in disbelief.

Simon explained that he planned a political act — when he was at Quantico — after everyone turned against him. He never was going to actually use it, but he had the bomb plans all written out. Someone must have stolen the plans from him at Quantico, because as soon as the bomb went off at Grand Central, he recognized the layout and procedure.

Flashback to Quantico — Neema reveals to the class that when Simon was in Gaza, he fought with the Israeli Army, and he killed innocent civilians. Simon insisted that he was just a translator, but one day he had to help his platoon leader. He sent Simon in to lure women out so they could question them — Simone breaks down crying and explains that his platoon leader went rogue and he was hurting the women.

Present — Simon swears that he is not responsible for Grand Central, he is not a murderer, someone stole his plans and set the bombs off. Simon announces that he is going home to get his affairs in order, before he is arrested for treason.

He blames Alex — he never would have gotten in trouble if she wasn't having him followed. Shelby stands up and curses Alex out, she cant believe that they all risked their lives and careers to help Alex, and she turned on them and spied on them after everything that they did for her.

Flashback to Quantico — Miranda takes Simon in to her office, she tells him that if he can't control his anger, then he is not going to be able to serve for the FBI. Caleb heads to his dorm room and video calls Shelby's sister, he says that he has been watching her every move and knows that she is conning Shelby.

He promises not to tell her, as long as she cuts her in on some of the money she is scamming from Shelby. Shelby listens in on the conversation and begins sobbing when she realizes that her "sister" lied to her and they aren't actually sisters.

Alex learns that Simon was kicked out of Quantico — she rushes to say goodbye to him. He tells her that he is going to disappear. He stops by the twins room, Neema slams the door in his face.

Present — Alex is in the office all by herself watching the surveillance footage. Liam tells her to get some rest. Alex says that she has lost everything, she will be sentenced tomorrow for a crime she didn't commit, all of her friends abandoned her, and she has no clues as to who framed her. Alex pays Simon a visit at his house. She tells him that tomorrow she might be in jail for the rest of her life — and she needs him to help her clear her name.

Simon tells her that they can never go back to being the Optimistic people that they were back in Quantico, he heads inside and leaves Alex. She holds back tears as she leaves. Someone is waiting for Simon inside his house, they grab him from behind and drug him with chloroform.

Summary:	The terrorists behind the Grand Central Station bombing reveal themselves. In other events, at Quantico, the recruits are given time off for the holidays, but not everyone is in a merry mood when secrets are spilled.

Alex and her friends were given a nearly impossible task towards the end of their careers at Quantico. Apparently before they were hunting actual terrorists and trying to find a way to clear Alex's name, they were just freshmen with vacation homework. And as it turns out that's an area the Bureau excels in.

Pending Inactive cases better known as cold cases are literally the bane of agents across the world. Yet just before they were all supposed to leave on their Christmas to New Year break, Miranda decided to hand them all a bunch of pending in active cases for them to pursue at their own leisure.

She said that in the Bureau there was no such thing as a cold case hence the new name which meant in its own way that all cases remained open until it was officially closed with an arrest.

And, well, no one was going to bother with this homework because they were going to be home for the holidays. However a few of them stayed back at Quantico seeing as they dreaded going home and those few just decided to look over the cases together. So Alex, Shelby, Nimah and Natalie were reviewing cases and when they weren't getting anywhere — they began to turn the holidays into a drinking contest amongst themselves.

But Caleb kind of put a stop to that. His parents had blinded him with a black-tie party at the mansion and he needed a date. Therefore he invited Shelby and Alex as well as Shelby to come with him. And Nimah stayed back to keep the party going with Miranda who also didn't have a place to go for the holidays.

As for the party, though, that proved to be not the best of ideas. For while the party in itself gave the ladies a chance to dress up and make some great contacts in the bureau, it also brought them face to face to a few people they wished they hadn't run into. Like Ryan for instance.

Ryan had been giving Alex the space she said she needed but at one point she had caved. She had called him and had overheard a very girlfriend voice ask him "who was it". So that put Alex in a mood and her friends then tried to cheer her up by saying it simply could have been one of his sisters. Only when Alex called — she overheard Ryan's phone at the party.

He had been on the arm of Hannah Wyland and Hannah was a woman that Alex had just been admiring. Nevermind the gigantic ring on Hannah's ring finger.

But surprisingly Ryan had an explanation for all of it. He said he was undercover with Hannah and that they were only pretending to be married. And once he got that part over that's when he admitted to actually having been married to Hannah in the past.

Though apparently they've become good friends since the divorce and that's why they got partnered together. And Hannah did come across as a good friend. Especially when she warned Alex away because she felt Ryan deserved someone who wasn't going to break his heart in the end.

So the party really was a bad decision. Natalie had gotten into an argument while she was there and Shelby ended up seeing a very ugly side to the Haas family. Caleb's mother had told his father that she was ready to give their marriage another try when the truth was she simply needed him in order to run for Vice-President on a family values platform. And therefore it came as shock when their son told his dad the truth (in front of Shelby by the way).

The entire incident made Caleb seem callous, Senator Haas seem cold, and his dad look like a victim. And so Shelby later broke up with Caleb. She said she finally saw him for what he was and that he was destructive to be around.

And towards the end of the holiday, Miranda's son finally came back. Though he was suffering from severe injuries. So what happened to Charlie is something that is just going to have to wait until the season picks back up again in March.

But fast-forward to the day of the second bomb and we found out that Elias hadn't been part of the part from Day 1. In fact he had been recruited a couple of days ago after he his life had been threatened. Yet while it was the plan to set up Simon, Alex chose to side with Simon when it really mattered and the two worked together to figure out where the second bomb was.

And there was a bomb in the basement of the Democratic National Convention event. However that had been a decoy and a third bomb had gone off. Thereby destroying the Command Center the Bureau had taken over.

Summary:	Alex testifies at a congressional hearing about the terrorist bombings. In other events, a new group of recruits joins Alex and her classmates at Quantico.

Alex Parrish was again making claims that apparently no one was willing to believe. Following the attack on the FBI Emergency Command Center, Alex had told all who would listen that Elias Harper hadn't been the true mastermind behind the attacks and seeing as she had in fact been in a room with him moments before he took his own life — many had taken her at her word when she said Elias had been manipulated by a third party. But then some time had passed and there was simply nothing for anyone to find. No paper trail or even a known affiliate of Elias's.

So ultimately the bureau chose to take the easier option. They said the reason they haven't found anything in the three months since thirty-nine of their own agents were murdered is because there was nothing to find. And Elias Harper acted alone.

But Alex didn't believe that and her need to argue the point, even in front a congressional hearing, meant a lot of people were forced to drop her for their own good.

The FBI had to put her on leave because she refused to be less vocal about what happened. And although they couldn't outright fire her with the world scrutinizing everything they did, her friends were an altogether different matter.

Alex's friends had tried to defend her in the beginning and all that got was an even harsher light trained on them. What with Natalie nearly losing her job because she had defended Alex and had also been part of an investigation into Elias's whereabouts before he died, but ultimately she didn't find anything either. And Shelby got the worse of it.

Her affair with Caleb's father was thrown in her face right by public opinion and the paparazzi. And it didn't help that Calvin Haas's widow just happened to be a vice-presidential nominee. So Shelby ended up having to move back to Georgia for a while and she was only back at the bureau now because she had denounced Alex.

So, after everything that has happened, Alex was left without friends or allies and personally had Claire Haas gunning for her. Claire apparently blamed Alex for delaying the closing of the case and she had taken her grievances to the media. Who were naturally on her side because they could sell things from the grieving widow's point of view.

Yet Alex managed to stick to her guns despite what was being written about her and her friends all abandoning her, but the one person she couldn't ignore was Ryan. Ryan had told her that she was being selfish by only seeing her side in all of this and so she later did what she thought he wanted her to do. She went in front of the congressional hearing and said that she couldn't find any evidence that contradicted the bureau findings.

And then she said that it was time for the city as well as the country to move. However, she didn't say that she had stopped believing Elias hadn't been behind everything. She simply said that there was no evidence to prove it.

So Alex's changed testimony had gotten her reinstated at the bureau, but she was still friendless. Ryan had been upset with her for her turn of phrase and the others had still been angry because the investigation she hadn't been able to contradict had been theirs. Therefore, the only thing that changed for the better was that Alex got to go back to work.

But sadly still wanted to use her. Alex had later been contacted by the person claiming to have known her at Quantico and this person said that they still had work to do because she was now going to become a terrorist whether she liked it or not. And to make sure Alex complied — a bomb had been strapped to Natalie.

Summary:	The trainees learn how to source information from confidential informants and then have their newfound skills tested in the real world. In the future, meanwhile, Alex and another agent face a life-or-death situation that forces them to share classified information.

Alex and Natalie had both been given an excellent education at Quantico and it's that education that they had to put to the test. Apparently someone had gotten drop of Natalie last week despite Natalie being Natalie. And they were able to attach a bomb to her chest before she could put up much of a fight. Yet, the odds have never mattered to the former police officer and regardless of her fragile situation, Natalie had been the one to tell Alex to keep a cool head as they tried to figure everything out. Including a way for her to survive a madperson.

And there was only one way for Natalie to survive. So Natalie decided to help Alex with whatever the bomber was demanding. Which unfortunately meant treason in this case because the bomber wanted them to break in the FBI's server.

So while, the elusive mastermind had managed to find a way to blackmail the two into carrying out his or her plans, the women had also come up with a plan of their own.

It seemed that they agree that they both should play along for as long as possible, but that they had to go back to the drawing board as well. Which was a must for this one because for the longest time possible, they had thought Elias had been the only mole during their training days yet the person that was threatening the both of them had told Alex that they had seen her on her first day there. And then this person swore they had automatically known that Alex was special from the very start.

So Alex had been right when she thought someone had been watching her for a while before making their move and framing her for the Central Station bombing. Though she hadn't known it was one of her classmates that had set everything in motion. And why should she seeing as she had originally thought she had cleared her whole class. As well as the class they later merged with during the middle of their training.

But she must have missed someone and Natalie had promised to help with that as well. Only they had to fill in on their end of their bargain with the mastermind first. So they called in a fake bomb threat right in the middle of a working for the bureau. And carried out stealing files even though that's not the kind of people that either of them had ever wished to be.

And after they crossed boundaries such as stealing Ryan's key card as well Alex's new superior's fingerprints (Hannah Wyland), they realized they couldn't just hand over the information the bomber wanted. Much less leave this person to continue to threaten them until a safer time. And that's when Natalie realized how they could catch the bomber without putting national secrets on the line.

Natalie had eventually come up with a worm. A worm that would place a homing beacon on the person they were hunting once they tried to open the file. So that's the route they chose to take and at first the plan did appear as if it had worked. The bomb that had still been attached to Natalie had been remotely turned off. And the two women were later able to track down the location they had been given.

Yet, their plan had been compromised. The bomber had apparently found the tracker they had added with the file and had set them up. First by allowing them to enter to the building and then by drawing Alex away from Natalie. All so that she could see Natalie die for her mistake.

The warehouse they had gone to had blown up and sadly Natalie had still been inside while Alex had stepped out of the building to answer the bomber's phone call. So not only had the ladies broken the law, but their mission had withered away with Natalie. And now there's no one left that believes Alex.

And there's also no one she could turn to.

Alex had been told by the mastermind that next time she has to follow orders to the letter. And she can't bring anyone else in!

Summary:	At Quantico, the recruits take defensive driving lessons; and tensions between Liam and Drew explode. In the future, Simon faces a new reality in the aftermath of what's occurred.

Back at Quantico, Alex and her friends had been taught by the best. They had defensive driving lessons and they were frequently given assignments to test their instincts as well as their resolve if there were to go out in the field. Yet, in spite of everything she had been taught, there was mastermind on the loose that was seemingly willing to break Alex just for their amusement and they were doing a pretty good job on tonight's all new episode.

Alex was a complete mess following Natalie's death. Apparently she had forgotten everything she had been taught about expectations and therefore had gotten her hopes up last week when Natalie had come up with a plan to catch the mastermind. And unfortunately not only did this plan fail, but it also resulted in Natalie's death.

So Alex had blamed herself for what happened. She wondered where she had gone wrong with their investigation and what else she could have possibly have done to save Natalie's life. Though the biggest problem that Alex had with Natalie's death was that she was the only person that knew about it seeing as someone had supposedly sent an email to the director claiming to be her and this person had put in a request for emergency time off.

And therefore there wasn't anyone looking for Natalie much less on anyone trying to recover her body. Yet, the one thing that was suspicious was the fact that Alex had also taken the day off without any kind of forewarning. So Ryan had tracked her phone back to Holland, Vermont. Which he found unusual because as far as he knew Alex and Simon hadn't exactly been on speaking terms.

But Alex had gone to Simon's because he was the one person she knew she could trust. Alex, you see, had nearly told Ryan about Natalie however someone had been watching her and they had threatened Ryan's life if she told. So the one person that Alex knew who would willing go back to the FBI even if it meant their death was Simon. The same Simon that always had a strong sense of justice and who Alex knew wouldn't turn his back on her.

Not to say that Simon didn't at least try, he did. He also pulled a gun on Alex as a way to scare her off so that he could finally stay under the radar. Yet Simon hadn't fought with Alex or threatened her because he didn't believe her. He had done those things because he too had been left broken by the mastermind.

He had lost friends and had his own life had been threatened. And eventually those things were going to wear down on his psyche to the point where he didn't even know if he could pick up a gun again.

So Alex was at impasse with him for the longest when Nimah and Ryan showed up. The other two had been concerned when they saw that Alex had gone to seek Simon out and so Nimah had offered to drive Alex back town while Ryan stayed behind to check on Simon. Although, on the drive back, Alex began to think of her training days at Quantico and suddenly she remembered what happened to Drew. Drew being a young man that she had befriend and who she had led down a dangerous path.

Drew it seems had wanted to join the FBI because he had lost his pregnant fiancée during a shoot-out that was to be between the cops and couple of radicalized militia. Yet it turns out that Liam had armed the militia with those weapons and he had told Alex about it by mistake. She had gone to him after she and her team were having problems with an exercise and so that's when he had told her his story. He had wanted to offer up an example of when he too had once underestimated a suspect. And she had then told Drew because she hadn't connected the dots.

Only he had so he had later openly accused Liam of getting people killed and that landed in Drew getting thrown out of training and Liam then getting benched by Miranda.

And so Alex has gotten people she's cared about into trouble. However, she never means it. She just acts without thinking sometimes and that has resulted in the same blindspot that everyone keeps telling her about.

But Simon had gone to Alex's apartment after everything.

He had offered Alex his help and surprisingly he even had a plan.

The episode kicks off with Alex and Simon in Brooklyn — they have been up all night trying to decode the terrorist's voice in the threat that they received. Alex is freaking out — whoever the terrorist is, has all of the security details for next week's elections. Simon reassures her, and says they are going to get ahead of the terrorist this time. While he works on the voice, Alex leaves to get Ryan's help changing the security details at the election.

Flashback to Quantico — this week the trainees are getting closer to graduation, and things are awkward between Shelby and Caleb. Meanwhile, Miranda is pressuring Liam to resign. He refuses, he says that if Miranda wants him out — then she is going to fire him. In class, Caleb's mom comes in to discuss hate crimes. They will be looking at cases that were presented to the FBI, and they will decide if they are just violent offenses or hate crimes.

Nimah stops by Miranda's office, she is not happy She demands to know if Miranda sent Raina to work undercover at a training cell. Miranda tells Nimah to stay out of it, and she begins calling Nimah's phone an trying to find her, she tells her to get out of the terrorists' house ASAP.

Present — Alex heads to work and tries to find Ryan to talk to him about the elections. The terrorist calls Alex's phone again and tells her that it is time for her to "open the package." Alex takes out the enveloped that she received and finds a pill bottle inside. The terrorist tells Alex that she needs to switch the pill bottle with the bottle in the Senator's purse. Alex whines that she isn't going to get close enough to the Senator, she is surrounded by security. The terrorist won't hear it — they reminds Alex that she and the Senator are old pals.

Alex calls Simon and says that she got one of the pills tested — and they are harmless, they are just blood pressure pills. She wants to give them to the Senator. Simon warns her that for all they know she could be allergic to the medication. Alex is working on a plan, she is going to get to the Senator's purse via her campaign manager Amanda.

Flashback to Quantico — the students are all arguing over hate crimes, and what is grounds for a hate crime. Miranda fills Liam in on Raina, she asks him to watch her classes. She explains that Raina infiltrated the terrorist cell that had Charlie, and they are about to make a move on their target.

A delivery van shows up at Quantico, and it has about 12 men in the back with machine guns. They shoot and kill all the guards at the gate and head inside. The campus goes on complete lock down. Raina and Charlie arrive at the gate a few minutes later, and see all of the dead guards. Raina puts the car in reverse and peels off, shouting at Charlie to call his mother Miranda to see what is going on.

In the car, Charlie has a meltdown. He cries to Raina that the terrorists never really kidnapped them, he left with them all on his own. It was all a ruse so that he would be questioned on the Quantico campus, he gave them all of the information on the layout of Quantico and where the guards were stationed.

Shelby is hiding out in the woods — she ran off the campus in a huff because Iris had told her that her parents were still alive, and Caleb had been hiding it from her, right before they were under attack. Caleb sneaks out of the classroom that is under lockdown to find her. They see one of the terrorists running through the woods with a gun, and Liam is about to be his next victim. But, the Quantico students work together to save him.

The FBI arrives and takes down the terrorists, Miranda and Nimah leave to go see her sister and Charlie. On their way out, they bump in to Liam — Miranda confesses that her son Charlie might have helped the terrorists that attacked them. Liam insists that he is going with them.

Present — Alex is still trying to get close enough to the Senator to switch the pills. She has a plan, she texts the Senator and tells her that she knows where Caleb is. The Senator agrees to meet with Alex, she tells her that she knows Alex is lying — because Caleb might be hiding, but she has talked to her son and she knows exactly where he is, and Alex does not. Senator Haas tells Alex that she is "done at the FBI."

Alex talks to Hannah, she tells her the entire story — that the terrorist is forcing her to switch the Senator's pills. She begs Hannah for help or else another one of her friends will be killed. Hannah takes the pills, then she takes Alex's gun and badge too and says that she is fired.

Flashback to Quantico — Miranda arrives at her house where Raina and Charlie are waiting for her. Liam and Nimah wait outside in the car. Raina gets ready to leave, but one of the terrorists (Derrick) comes out of hiding and pulls a gun on all three of them.

Alex meets up with Ryan at a hole in the wall bar. Ryan is thrilled to see her, but Alex informs him that this is the last time that they will be seeing each other. She has decided that they are too much distractions to each other. She is jeopardizing his undercover job, and she was off her game when she was underfire at Quantico.

Nimah managed to sneak a phone call to Liam while Derrick was holding them hostage inside Miranda's house. Liam has the entire house surrounded by the FBI and SWAT in record time. Inside, Derrick gives Charlie a gun and tells him to shoot and kill his mother Miranda to prove that he is a true believer. Charlie turns the gun on Derrick and shoots him instead. Then Charlie goes over the deep end, he won't give his mother the gun. Outside the snipers see a black man running around with a gun and assume that it is the terrorist — they shoot Miranda's son Charlie instead, the EMT's rush in and Charlie is rushed to the hospital for emergency surgery.

Present — Alex and Simon are freaking out. She failed at her mission, now the terrorist is going to kill another one of her friends. Her cell phone rings and Alex begs the caller not to kill anyone. The voice replies, "Why would I do that? You did exactly what you were supposed to do" and then hangs up. Alex and Simon are obviously confused. Then, there is a knock at the door — it's Hannah. She marches in and reveals that she swapped the pills because after Alex left she realized she was telling the truth.

Summary:	At Quantico, the NATS are given a training exercise that hits too close to home for Shelby. While in the future, Alex finds an unlikely ally in Hannah, as she continues to try and stop the terrorist from striking again.

Alex had gone to Hannah Wyland for help. Although it seems that neither she nor Simon could foresee the consequences of receiving just that. It had initially taken Hannah some time to comprehend everything she had heard, but the pieces did slowly begin to fall into place after she had done as Alex suggested and had tried to find Natalie or at the very most chase the email that Natalie had supposedly sent in to explain her sudden absence. However, Natalie couldn't be found and so the only conclusion there was left to draw was to consider what else Alex had said. Which was Natalie being dead and has been dead for a while.

So once Hannah had realized this, she then went over to Alex's place and demanded she explained everything that had happened. Starting from the point she had lied at a congressional hearing and ending why Alex had dragged Hannah into her mess of an investigation. Apparently, all Hannah could see were the flaws in the many things that Alex has done since she found out "the Voice" was in fact real.

Alex and Simon have taken to calling the mastermind "the Voice" yet Hannah didn't care much for the nicknames. What she cared about is that the person they were calling "the Voice" had explicitly told Alex that he was going to hurt if not ruin any person she tried to confide in about him. Yet, Alex had decided to take a risk with her own life as well as both Hannah and Simon's. And so it was safe to say she was angry with Alex for just doing whatever she wanted without thinking about the consequences.

But, despite her anger and what she thought was Alex being her general self, Hannah did agree to help Alex and Simon. So they told her about the prescription they had switched out and how they had verified it as nothing life-threatening because the pills were only ever going to up Claire's body pressure. Which in all honesty didn't seem or sound as if it could be dangerous. That is if it had been the pills alone.

Only Hannah had dared "the Voice" into revealing more of his plan. Hannah had apparently been on Claire's security detail and so it had been her job to assess impending threats. And with Simon and Alex constantly in her ear, she had unfortunately become paranoid on the job and tackled a freshmen reporter whose face hadn't been recognized on their facial scanner.

So Hannah had gotten taken to task for that, but Miranda hadn't pulled her from duty. She simply gave the other a woman a warning and told her that she gets that because she previously had an impeccable record. Though, that first strike with the journalist had pushed Hannah into calling the number that Alex still had on her and telling whoever was on the other end that she was now in charge.

Which "the Voice" found to be amusing. He told her that he was watching them at that very moment meaning he was on the FBI's most secured floor and, after he managed to scare Hannah into accepting who was really in charge, he told both women what their next task was going to be because Alex had broken his rule about outsiders. And again their task had appeared to be too easy.

The ladies were going to be given a chip. A chip that they had to place under the chair at Claire's venue and so the ladies had run the chip passed Simon. However, he hadn't found anything amiss. There had been no anthrax or nuclear launch codes hidden inside. So the ladies had once again felt safe with following "the Voice's" instructions.

Only Alex had gotten caught.

Ryan had seen her put something under a chair and therefore he had confronted her about what she was really up to. But Hannah had managed to divert him. She told him that the Senator was looking for him seeing as she was about to go up on stage and she had seemingly agreed to follow up with Alex. And find out what was going yet that very same conversation between all three would go on to look suspicious considering what later happened.

Apparently Simon hadn't been finish with looking into the chip so he hadn't found out what it did until it had been too late. Simon it seems had realized that the chip was actual a component. A component that was literally capable of knocking out the power nearby. So he had called the ladies to warn them about it, but the chip had been gone by time they looked.

And there had been a much bigger problem to contend with. Hannah had realized that without lighter, there should be concerned about an assassination attempt on the senator. Though when Alex had pointed out that the shooter wouldn't be able to find Claire in the dark, Hannah had reminded her about the pills.

The same pills that increased the Senator's body temperature and that would make it easier on a sniper to find her with thermal imaging.

So that's when the ladies acted. They had been desperate and the only thing that Hannah could think about in order to stop an impending disaster was to shoot off her gun in the crowded theatre. Thereby sending everyone running. Including Claire's security detail that naturally wanted to rush the senator out of there.

Although, a seasoned agent accidentally firing their gun didn't seem plausible. At least not to Hannah's bosses. So Hannah was eventually suspended for what she did, but she told Alex that she wasn't upset. Hannah had said that she realized she couldn't take on "the Voice". She had tried and it had backfired.

And yet Hannah thought that Alex had a chance. Hannah told her that she had been right from the very beginning and that she had been the only person to see it. Therefore, Hannah wasn't going to get in the way.

She wasn't going to tell command and she asked Alex not to tell Ryan. But Hannah wanted Alex to keep looking into "the Voice" and find them before someone else gets hurt yet that was sort of hard to do with Ryan following her everywhere. Ryan had been told the same story as everyone else about Hannah accidentally shooting her gun, but he ended up distorting what happen and thought Alex had framed Hannah because they had been on to her back at the theater.

So that's why Ryan later tracked down Alex and told her that he was going to find out what she was hiding. With the additional promise that he was never going to give up until he does.

And while that Ryan was directly placing himself in the way, there had still been a reason to celebrate and even believe that all of this might soon be over.

On the same night that Hannah and Alex thought there was going to be an assassination attempt on Claire Haas, there had been a break-in in the same building and so both Simon and Alex had remembered Myranda's lesson. She used to tell them before her suspension (her son had used her position to target headquarters last week), that there was no such thing as coincidence. And it did seem weird that "the Voice" hadn't been upset about Claire making it out of the building.

And so the break-in had to have been his real reason for the chip. Though to Alex and Simon, the break-in had merely been their first clue.

Yet it was revealed on tonight's episode that Caleb and his fellow trainee Will had become involved with an investigation that Caleb's father was secretly running. So maybe it hadn't been so strange for Caleb to be seen entering FBI's command headquarters a day before the bombing. Maybe it had something to do with the radical group he and Will were looking into and that Will had appeared to be too keen on joining.

Production Code:	117
Summary:	The trainees learn about human trafficking when they're assigned to cross the U.S.-Canadian border without passports. Meanwhile, in the future, Simon puts his life at risk while helping Alex.

The episode kicks off with Simon having a secret meaning with Ryan. Alex sent him — Simon tells Ryan that Alex is convinced Elias isn't responsible for the attacks, he wants Ryan to track down a CIA asset, they don't have a name only a number — 2281. When Ryan isn't paying attention, Simon slips a tracker in to his pocket. He calls Alex afterwards and tells her that the tracking device is in place.

Training will be over in 4 weeks, the students are giving forms to select the top field offices and what city they want to be based in. Meanwhile, Shelby is still reeling from learning that her parents are alive. Liam meets with the twins and tells them that Miranda is on leave — so the FBI is probably going to drop the trial twin test. Everyone in school is gossiping about Alex and Drew — and the sparks flying between them. Nimah and Raina are determined to try and prove to the FBI that they should keep both twins.

In class — Liam is teaching a lecture on human trafficking. He is sending the class to the Canadian border to meet with immigration. Liam introduces Ryan, they are bringing him on as a teacher since Miranda is on leave. Alex is shocked to see him back at Quantico. Behind closed doors, Ryan tells Liam that Alex is after a CIA asset — they need to figure out who the asset is. Alex calls Simon and tells him that the plan is in place, and soon Ryan will lead them to the CIA asset. This is the final mission that the terrorist has given them. Alex and Simon plan to question the CIA asset before they turn him/her over to the terrorist so they can figure out what the plan is.

Caleb is scheming — he wants Shelby to set up a meeting with her parents when they are in Canada. Her parents obviously can't return to the US, but they can meet them while they are in Canada for training. Shelby changes the subject, she just wants to focus on class.

Ryan takes Alex aside to clear the air — they have an awkward conversation about not crossing any boundaries and how inappropriate it is for trainee's and teachers to get involved with each other.

Caleb and Shelby are in her dorm room arguing — she insists that she doesn't want to meet her parents. Shelby argues that there is no way that her parents love her. Caleb and Alex try to convince Shelby to take this opportunity to meet with her parents, she deserves to have her questions answered about why they faked their deaths.

Liam takes the training class to Canada. When they arrive at the border — Liam takes all of their passports. He has a mission for the students. They have until 9:00 AM to get back across the border without their passports. They are divided in to teams — Alex is upset that Drew wasn't assigned as her partner. She convinces Drew to work with her anyway.

Alex and Simon meet with the CIA asset that the terrorist sent them to find. They get the address off from Ryan's tracker. Alex is shocked when they walk in to the safe house and learn that the CIA asset they are suppose to bring in to the terrorist is Will Olsen — a former student from Quantico. Will says that the CIA has been holding him for 7 months. Alex tells Will that they are going to break him out — he's skeptical they will be able to get past the CIA guards.

Flashback — Alex and Drew are at the airport, Alex tries to get through security by saying that she is an FBI agent and Drew is her prisoner. The guard isn't buying it, another team already tried the same trick — they get kicked out of the airport.

Nimah and Raina are using their twin advantage at the airport. They may have taken Raina's passport — but not Nimah's because she was sitting out this mission. The sisters plan on using only one passport between the two of them to get through customs. And, if they are successful this will be the perfect way to prove to Liam that he shouldn't scrap the twin trial.

Caleb takes Shelby to a hotel where he arranged for her parents to meet them. Shelby is shocked when she comes face to face with her not so dead parents. Shelby's mother explains that on 9-11 they were sitting at the airport and preparing to take off. It turns out that their family's weapon company accidentally supplied Taliban with the weapons that they used to bomb the towers. Shelby's parents faked their deaths and made it look like they were on one of the 9-11 flights. They knew that the government would hold them responsible, and they didn't want to go to prison — or have their mistakes effect Shelby. Shelby is moved by their story, and accepts their apologies for abandoning her.

Flashback — Simon and Alex help Will Olsen escape. Alex and Will make a run for it in a van — the CIA agents are hot on their trail and chasing them through traffic. Simon and Alex were thinking ahead though, they created a power outage in the area so that there are a ton of white vans driving around. The CIA chases down the wrong white van, and Alex and Will make a clean escape.

The Quantico teams are having a tough time getting through customs. Nimah and Raina are the only ones through so far — Alex and Drew are wandering through the woods and trying to cross the border on foot. Meanwhile at the hotel, Caleb is suspicious about Shelby's parents — even though she is thrilled to see them. He plants his phone in Shelby's Dad's pocket so he can listen in on their conversation. And, it's just what he suspected, Shelby's parents are using her. They only reason they met up with Shelby is so that they can convince her to sign over more money to them, they are running low on funds.

Caleb confronts Shelby's parents about meeting up with Shelby just to get more money out of her. Her dad scoffs that everyone wins, they get money and Shelby gets to see her long lost parents. Caleb offers to transfer them $5 Million dollars — if they leave now and don't see Shelby again. Caleb meets Shelby for dinner, he tells her that their parents had to leave unexpectedly because there was a "security scare." Shelby isn't even suspicious, she's happy that her parents are safe.

Meanwhile, Drew and Alex are stuck sleeping in an abandoned cabin in the middle of the woods — they still haven't made it across the border. They make a fire and bicker — Drew confesses that he was upset when Ryan showed up, Alex is all that he can think about it, and he doesn't want her to distract him at Quantico.

Alex and Simon try to convince Will to make a run for it — he has vital information that the “Voice” could use to hurt a lot of people. Will refuses, he says that he wants them to hand him over to the terrorist. He says that he will be their Trojan Horse, and work on the inside to see what the Voice’s target is.

The students head to class — Liam announces that 18 of them made it across the border, and the winners of the contest are Raina and Nimah. After class, Liam tells the twins that the FBI has decided to keep the twins in action — and they need to keep matching perfectly and living together so it seems like there is only one of them.

Tonight’s episode ends with Alex and Simon handing Will over to the Voice in a dark parking lot. Will climbs in to the vehicle that comes to pick him up — then Alex’s phone rings. The Voice tells Simon to get in the car with Will, Alex throws a fit and says it is not happening. Simon tells her everything is going to be fine and he climbs in the car behind Will. Alex is instructed to hand her phone to the person driving the car, the window rolls down and Alex hands her phone over to the Voice’s driver ... . SHELBY.

Summary:	At Quantico , Alex, Shelby and Iris learn some surprising truths about Drew, Will and Caleb while investigating them for high-level security clearances. Meanwhile, in the future, Alex contacts Claire Haas in an attempt to locate her missing friends and is shocked to learn what happened to Caleb.

The episode kicks off with Alex running a check on the license plates of the van that picked up Simon and Will. It was registered to someone named Mark Raymond. Alex searches online and finds that Caleb's Facebook page has his name listed as Mark Raymond. Meanwhile, Ryan and Nimah have hacked in to Alex's computer — they know that she is cyber stalking Caleb.

Flashback to *Quantico — it's medical screening week. They won't graduate until they pass an advanced physical examination. Meanwhile, Shelby is in an amazing mood because she just got a letter from her parents telling her how proud they are of him. Liam is riding the twins — he says that their physicals have to match. Will is being prepped by Caleb to infiltrate a cult. Miranda is at a hearing, she argues that she did everything that she did to protect her country and her son. The vote was close — but she is being removed from Quantico, and is going to be assigned to a local field office. Afterwards, Miranda is on a witch hunt to figure out who voted to have her removed from Quantico.

Clayton pays Quantico a visit. He takes the stage to discuss security clearance. Ryan has forms for all of the students to fill out before they will be granted security clearance. The form asks for exhaustive details about their personal finances, any drug or alcohol use, and their sex lives.

Present time — Alex calls Raina in Michigan, she tells her that they need to talk about Will, Simon, and Shelby. She asks Raina to fly to NYC to help her, Alex says that she thinks Caleb is the key to the terrorists they have been chasing. Nimah has security clearance, and Alex needs Raina to pretend to be her sister again.

Flashback to Quantico — Miranda heads to her office to pack up her things and Liam stops by. Miranda is suspicious of him, it looks like she thinks that he may be the one that voted her out of Quantico. She invites him out for drinks later after work.

In class, they are split up. One of the twins, Shelby, and Will have been flagged and can't have their security clearance yet — apparently there was something suspicious on the forms that they filled out. Meanwhile, the rest of their class members get their next case files on a Mexican cartel.

Present time — Raina has arrived in NYC and is helping Alex. Alex calls Nimah in to her office, and Raina slips in to Ryan's office pretending to be her twin sister. Ryan and Nimah are too smart though — Ryan figures out that Raina is trying to steal her identity. Alex slips out of the building before she gets in trouble too — Caleb's mother is waiting outside in a limo and picks her up.

Caleb's mother lectures Alex about how difficult she is being — Alex says that she needs to speak to Caleb. Alex explains that she knows that he is using the alias Mark Raymond, she tells her about the car being rented, and the security boxes she found in Mark/Caleb's name. Mrs. Haas scoffs that Alex is wrong about her son — and she is going to prove it.

Flashback to Quantico — Iris takes Shelby aside and tells her that Caleb has been lying to her about being in the cult Systemics. Shelby is furious — she storms in to Liam's office and rats him out. Meanwhile, Nimah is trying to figure out why her sister Raina was flagged by security clearance, and apparently Will is being held back for saying something Anti-American.

Present time — Mrs. Haas takes Alex all the way to her mansion, she leads her upstairs to Caleb's room where he is sitting in the dark and shooting up heroin. Apparently he has been hiding away at home on a binge for months. He looks strung out, and there is no way that he is masterminding an entire terrorist attack in that state.

Alex sits down with Caleb, he gets emotional and describes to Alex the day that he saw his dad die right before his eyes at the bombing. Caleb blames himself for his dad's death. He cries to Alex that he "just wants to go away."

Alex shouts at Mrs. Haas that she can't just keep him locked away in her house shooting dope. She realizes that his mother has been getting drugs for Caleb so that he doesn't die from withdrawals. Mrs. Haas is trying to keep her son's drug problem a secret until after the campaign is over. Alex tries to talk to Caleb about Shelby — but there is no way he is going to talk to his ex after she cheated with his dad.

Flashback To Quantico — they are still examining the students files to see if they will get security clearance. After class Liam heads to the bar to meet up with Miranda. He knows she is up to something — she only gets him drunk when she wants something. Miranda puts Liam on the spot and asks him if he voted against her. He insists that at the hearing he fought for Miranda — he voted against her being fired. Miranda convinces drunk to hook up with her in the bathroom at the bar and tapes the whole thing on her phone.

Iris has been flagged and is on of the only students that still hasn't gotten her security clearing. She is furious that Caleb passed the test but she didn't — because she has been busting her butt at class, and he is sneaking around in a cult. She calls Systemics and leaves a tip, she says that one of their members is not loyal and is a member of the FBI, Iris tells them all about Will.

Caleb freaks out when iris brags about what she did. He shouts at her that Will is on his way to the meeting at Systemics and they are going to kill him. Caleb arrives at Systemics — they meet him with guns at the front door and call him Mark Raymond. Caleb insists that he came to warn them about Will and he is helping them by working at the FBI.

Present time — Alex is arguing with Mrs. Haas, she wants Caleb checked in to rehab ASAP. Alex argues that he could die up there in that room, and the only reason his mother hasn't gotten him help is because she is protecting herself.

Flashback to Quantico — Miranda pays Alex a visit in her dorm room right before she leaves Quantico for good. She tells Alex that she is special, she fights for the truth, but in the future it will get her in trouble. Miranda says that Alex is the only trainee at Quantico that can do what she was never able to do — “shatter the glass.” Miranda warns Alex that the FBI favors men, protects them, and Alex has to be willing to play dirty.

At Systemics, Caleb is trying to prove his loyalty to the cult. They tell him that if he is really a true member — then he will hit Will. Caleb punches him twice in stomach, and then he starts beating him with a piece of pipe. Shelby shows up at the last minute and screams at them to leave Will alone. Caleb runs in to the building with the other members of Systemics, and they leave Will for dead.

Present Time — Alex is leaving the Haas mansion. When she is standing outside, Caleb jumps out the window and says that he is coming with her. When Alex isn’t paying attention, Caleb sneaks on his phone and tells someone that “she fell for it.”

Summary:	On career day at Quantico, the NATS meet with representatives from the various FBI branches. Meanwhile, in the future, Alex's search for the terrorist brings her into contact with some familiar faces, including one who knows the terrorist's endgame.

The episode kicks off Caleb handcuffed to a radiator in the bathroom — he is going through serious withdrawals, and Alex is helping him get sober. Alex sits down with Caleb, she says there is still no word from “The Voice” of Shelby, Will, and Simon. Alex has to go to work, Caleb begs her to stay with him, but she doesn’t want to be a no show and put up any red flags. After Alex leaves, Caleb calls someone and tells them that she is gone.

Flashback to Quantico — everyone is buzzing about Will being jumped. He lied and said that someone attacked him while he was going on a jog. Shelby is furious — she marches in to Liam’s office and tells him that Will lied, Caleb is the one that beat him up. Liam tells Shelby to drop it, Caleb left for a family emergency. Shelby argues that Caleb is a danger to all of them, but Liam won’t listen.

Everyone heads to class, Liam announces that it is Quantico’s version of career day. They have reps come in from all of the departments, to meet with the trainees to discuss their assignments after Quantico. Ryan takes Alex aside, word is that someone has a medical condition and he wants to know who it is. Alex refuses to be a snitch though, and she won’t give up Perales’ name. Ryan leaves, and he bumps in to Natalie’s mom — she came looking for her daughter, she hasn’t heard from her in over a week.

Present — Ryan leaves the office, and he bumps in to Natalie’s mom — she came looking for her daughter, she hasn’t heard from her in over a week. Alex arrives at work, Caleb calls her on her cell, he is still trying to get her to come back to the apartment. Alex hangs up on him when she spots Shelby sitting in Miranda's office. Miranda explains that they are upgrading the security system, and Shelby is helping them.

Ryan takes Nimah aside and tells her that there is a problem — Natalie is missing. Nimah thinks he may be overreacting. Ryan already checked her credit cards and cell phone, Natalie hasn't surfaced in over a week, there is no trace of her — her other was right, something is definitely wrong.

Flashback to Quantico — after their meetings with reps from the agencies, everyone receives envelopes with the names of the departments that are interested in them. Alex and Perales both receive green envelopes, which means that an "elite" department is interested in them and they will have to undergo tests to see if they make the cut. Alex is obviously worried about Perales and his possible medical issue.

Present — Alex is freaking out, she just found out that Shelby was working with "The Voice" and now she has brought her private company in to upgrade the FBI's servers. There is no telling what kind of information Shelby is accessing while she is in the FBI's servers. Alex takes Miranda aside and tells her that Shelby lied — her parents are still alive — and they were selling weapons to the Taliban before 9/11. Miranda shouts at everyone on the computers to stop what they are doing.

Miranda takes Shelby aside, Shelby insists that her business means too much to her for her to sabotage the FBI. She tells Miranda she wants to talk to Alex and confront her about what she said. Alex sits down with Shelby, they banter back and forth. While they are arguing, Shelby taps out a message with morse code and the arm of her chair and Alex writes it down. Shelby says, "I'm on your side."

Flashback to Quantico — Shelby calls Caleb's dad and leaves him a voicemail telling him that Caleb is back in the cult. Then, she heads to the Systemics Headquarters, after she gives them a huge check as a donation to their organization, they let her meet the headmaster. Shelby is seated in the waiting area right next to Caleb.

Meanwhile, Alex and Perales are training for the elite. They are paired up together and pro-pelling down the side of the building. Before they jump, Alex confronts him about his hand shaking. He insists that it was just caffeine jitters. They jump over the side of the building, and Perales nearly gets them killed.

Afterwards, Alex freaks out on him. Drew insists that it is just stress, Alex tells him he needs to tell the FBI what is going on with him. When she gets back to Quantico, Alex stops by Ryan's office and tells him that Drew is the one that is hiding a medical condition.

At Systemics, Caleb tells Shelby that he is undercover. She needs to leave ASAP, before she blows his cover. Shelby leaves... reluctantly. Caleb sits down with the master, he learns that his friend Ross (the one he is trying to get out of the cult) was "sent down to the lodge for rehabilitation."

Present — Alex meets up with Shelby in the secret stair case. Shelby tells her that "The Voice" called her and told her to pick up Will and Simon and drop them off at a warehouse — the caller threatened to kill Caleb if she didn't. Shelby says that she is the one that Caleb has been calling, he was trying to keep her home from work so she didn't interfere with her mission. Shelby used her company's software to trace the calls, and it is coming from the FBI. That's why she took the job — she is getting in to the servers to try and trace the calls... and Alex nearly blew her cover.

Ryan and Nimah head to Miranda's office. They tell her that Natalie is missing — and the last person that saw her alive was Alex. She helped Natalie bypass security, and she hasn't been seen since. Miranda is not happy, she tells Ryan and Nimah to find her now.

Flashback to Quantico — Caleb meets with his dad, he recorded his entire time conversation with Master Berlin. His dad is proud of him, and tells him that is exactly what they needed. He has bad news though, Caleb's friend Ross is dead, apparently he committed suicide. Caleb is even more upset when he learns that Berlin isn't even going to jail — he cut a deal.

Present — Alex and Shelby head back to her apartment to check on Caleb. Meanwhile, they are waiting for "The Voice" to log in to the FBI server. "The Voice" calls Shelby and threatens her for being at the FBI office, she insists that she was just doing her job. The caller threatens to kill her if he finds out she was doing otherwise. After she hangs up, Shelby and Alex are able to trace the call and they get an address.

Flashback to Quantico — Drew is furious at Alex for throwing him under the bus because of his medical condition. Ryan has ordered him to go visit the FBI doctors and get tests done. He screams at her that she cost him his career. Drew drops out of Quantico and refuses to see Caleb's dad meets with Shelby. He lies and says that Caleb wasn't working undercover, instead he got sucked back in to the cult, apparently it is supposed to be a secret that Caleb and Will were under cover. Mr. Haas apologizes for her missing career day and invites her to come work at his office after graduation.

Present — tonight's episode ends with Alex and Shelby rushing to the address they traced the phone call from, it's a church. They find Will inside. He's frantic and sick — he tells them not to come any closer to them. Will confesses that he helped build a nuclear bomb with his own hands. He tells Alex "You have to find out" before he drops to the floor, lifeless.

Summary:	Alex and Ryan find themselves working together when the NATS visit various FBI field offices. Meanwhile, in the future, Shelby and Caleb's relationship takes a turn; and Alex is unsure who to trust when she uncovers new information about the man she loves.

The episode kicks off with the FBI raiding Alex's apartment — Ryan has a warrant for her arrest. They kick in the door, but all they find is Caleb sitting there eating cereal. He laughs and tells Ryan Alex hasn't been there since yesterday. Meanwhile, Alex is out on the streets. She is heading to a hospital to try and find Simon — she and Shelby think that he may have showed up at an emergency room with radiation burns like Will had.

Flashback to Quantico — Ryan corners Alex in the hallway and gives her a book that he thinks she may be interested in. She flirts with him and tells him he doesn't have to come up with an excuse to talk to her. In class later, Alex is sparring with Ryan and their chemistry is palpable, everyone picks up on it too. Meanwhile, the twins Nimah and Rayna talk to their handler. They are sick of getting assigned to infiltrate cells that aren't even a threat — they want to go after the people that attacked Quantico.

In class, Liam announces that they are going to visit real field offices and shadow real employees before graduation. Caleb is back at school, Chang corners him and threatens him — she knows that he is still in the cult and she is taking him down, she doesn't care who his family is.

Amina and Rayna have a slightly different assignment, they are going in to another cell. Their job is to figure out who else in the cell is an FBI contact and meet with them. If they fail, then the FBI is dropping the twins, or they could wind up killed.

Present time — Shelby and Alex show up at the hospital to see if the John Doe with radiation burns is Simon. They are shocked when they realize that it is actually Drew. When he sees Shelby and Alex, he asks if they have "caught him" yet. They ask who "him" is... Drew says it is Ryan.

Drew explains that he was working in NY and he got a call from "The Voice," he told Drew to rent a van and park it somewhere in the Bronx. If Drew didn't do what The Voice told him to do — his family would get hurt. Drew is the one that rented the van that drove Alex to Grand Central Station at the first attack. Drew says that two nights ago, he dropped off a nuclear cell at the church and he saw Ryan there, he had Will handcapped. Alex doesn't believe it could be Ryan — Drew begs her to look in to it, he promises that if she does some research she will learn that Ryan isn't the guy that she thinks he is.

Flashback to Quantico — Alex and the rest of the students arrive at the field office, they are assigned to different agents. Shelby and Caleb get stuck in a file room together filing papers. Alex winds up checking up on a lead with one of Ryan's old co-workers. In the car, they talk about Ryan, he warns Alex to be careful around Ryan. He thinks that Ryan turned his back on a terrorist cell on purpose and got him shot.

Present time — Shelby and Alex leave the hospital. Shelby argues with Alex, Alex insists that Ryan can't be the guy — he took a bullet for her before. Shelby reminds her that he also shot himself before to seem innocent. Shelby convinces Alex to let her use her software at the FBI to snoop in Ryan's phone and computer.

Caleb is being interrogated by Miranda and Ryan — but there is a distraction in the offices and all of the computers go up in smoke. Shelby hacked in to the computers and overheated all of them. While the building is filling with smoke from the computers and everyone is scrambling — Alex sneaks in to snoop around Ryan's office.

Flashback to Quantico — Ryan is furious when he learns what Jordan told Alex about Chicago and he confronts him. Ryan shouts that he was investigated on that and he paid for his mistake. Jordan taunts that "maybe Afghanistan broke him" and he switched sides and decided to play for the terrorists. Ryan slams him against the wall and says that he loves the country.

Meanwhile, Alex is overstepping her boundaries once again and has decided to have Brandon stake out the house that she and Jordan went to earlier. Alex learns from Jordan that the guy is working with the post office and mailing child pornography, and they are waiting for him to move a package before they arrest him. Alex confesses that she just sent Brandon to his house — and he could blow the whole operation.

Present time — Alex is trying to install the flashdrive that Drew gave her to spy on Ryan's computer, but Ryan catches her. He pulls a gun on her and demands to know if she killed Natalie. Ryan and Alex wind up fighting — and nearly kill each other. Alex starts begging Ryan to stop choking her, she tries to tell him about "The Voice" and the nuclear bomb that was just made. Alex manages to fight Ryan off her, she tells him she is sorry, and then she kicks him in the head and knocks him out and makes a run for it.

Flashback to Quantico — Brandon is still sitting outside the target's house and smoke starts pouring out of the window. He heads inside and Walker has burnt all of the pornographic evidence that he had — then he knocks Brandon out with a vase. Meanwhile, Alex, Jordan, and the rest of the FBI are racing to the address, but they are too late.

They arrive at the house, and Walker is holding Brandon hostage. He tries to attack Ryan and Alex with a knife. They manage to take him down and get Brandon out in one piece. Walker is arrested. And, in the middle of the scuffle, Ryan manages to save Jordan's life. Afterwards, Ryan and Alex have a heart to heart. He tells her about what happened in Chicago. Apparently it was Liam's fault, and Ryan took the blame for him.

Back at the field office, Nimah and Raya are in trouble. They botch their mission and give up their cover. Rayna convinces the guy she blabbed her cover to go out for drinks with her before he turns her in.

Chang has been working all day to convince Shelby to choose a good field office. She is shocked when Shelby tells her that she is dropping out of Quantico. Shelby says that she only wanted to be an FBI agent because she thought that her parents were killed in 9/11. No that they are alive, she doesn't feel the need to be an agent any more. Chang spills the beans and tells her that her parents are con artists — and they only came out of hiding because they wanted money. Caleb is the one that has been writing the letters that Shelby thought were from her parents. They really don't care about her.

Present time — Miranda finds Ryan chained to his desk and puts the building on lockdown. Alex is panicking — she gets a phone call from Drew. He reveals that the flashdrive he gave her just framed Ryan as the terrorist. Drew taunts Alex and says that her story doesn't end here — there is a car waiting for her downstairs.

Flashback to Quantico — Shelby storms in to Caleb's dorm room with the fake letters that he wrote. She is furious, she shouts that a real man shows up and tells the truth. She can't believe that he didn't believe in her enough to tell her the truth... he's not a real man, and she doesn't want to be with him. Shelby leaves and calls Caleb's dad, she tells him that her parents are alive, and she needs his help bringing them in.

Present time — Alex texts Shelby at the hospital, she tells him that The Voice isn't Ryan...it has been Drew all along. Meanwhile, Drew tells Alex to get in Ryan's truck in the parking garage. The bomb is inside — and beeping. He tells Alex to get in and drive or else he is going to kill Simon. Alex peels out of the parking lot with the bomb.

Summary:	As graduation nears, the NATS prepare to leave Quantico for their real-world assignments. Meanwhile, in the future, Alex discovers that a Quantico colleague isn't who they appeared to be; and finds herself in the midst of another possible attack.

The episode kicks off where we left off last week — Alex is driving around Ryan's truck with the nuclear bomb in it. The FBI office is in mayhem, Ryan explains to Miranda that he caught Alex uploading something to his computer and she stole his truck. They pull security footage from the parking ramp and confirm that the truck has a bomb in it. Miranda makes Ryan surrender his gun and says that he is a person of interest too.

Flashback to Quantico — Liam gives Alex her father's badge. He tells her that her father would be proud of her, she's at the top of her class. He will be honored to work with her in the field some day. Alex is being stationed in New York, and Ryan is going to DC. He tells her that they will only be three hours apart.

Shelby gets another letter from her parents — she freaks out on Caleb and tells him to stop writing the fake letters. Obviously, Caleb is baffled, he actually didn't write this letter. Afterwards, Shelby meets with Caleb's father, to discuss having her parents captured.

In class, each of the students are assigned a terrorist attack to study. They meet with agents that worked on the cases, to discuss how they captured the terrorists. Alex requests to work on the Omaha bombing since it was her father's case — Liam says that's not allowed, they can't work cases they have a personal connection to.

Present — Alex is still driving around in Ryan's truck with the bomb, and talking to Drew/The Voice on the phone. He tells her not to try anything — the whole truck is rigged. If she opens the truck door or rolls down the window, the bomb will be detonated.

Miranda has everyone searching for Ryan's truck. Shelby shows up at the FBI office with Senator Hass, they have a recording of Will talking to Alex on the phone and instructing her to drive the truck. Hass demands that she releases Caleb, they need him and Shelby to help them stop the bomber. They are going to have to release Ryan and Rayna too.

Flashback to Quantico — Shelby is trying to get her parents to come out of hiding so that she can set them up. She lies to her mother on the phone and tells her that she is working on an immunity deal for her. Shelby and Alex switch cases so that Alex can snoop around her dad's old case, and Shelby can snoop around the 9/11 files that her parents were involved in.

Alex is reading her father's journals — he turned a log book in every week that he was under cover. She notices that one of the logbooks are missing. She asks the agent that was on the case with her dad and he tells her not to worry about it.

Present time — Miranda and Senator Hass are trying to keep the bomb quiet. But, a video is leaked on the news of Alex leaving the parking garage with a bomb in the truck. The city is about to launch into mass paranoia.

Hass holds a press conference and says that she is suspending her campaign to help the FBI with the bomb. Meanwhile, Miranda tells Ryan to watch the floor and says that she is heading upstairs to a briefing. Ryan is suspicious, because he notices that the elevator went downstairs instead of up.

Flashback to Quantico — Alex can't drop the missing log book. Finally, her father's former partner reveals that he burned it after the Omaha bombing. He explains to Alex that her father was undercover — he actually helped the militia that did the bombing in Omaha get blueprints to the building. He didn't want her father to be remembered like that.

Present — Rayna and Caleb manage to track down an address to the phone that is calling Alex, Ryan rushes to the address. Meanwhile, Drew and Simon wake up in a room — handcuffed together. Drew isn't the terrorist, somehow the terrorist is using Drew's voice to talk to Alex. Drew and Simon start struggling to get free. But, there is a trip wire on the door — if someone opens the door, a bomb will be detonated and they will be dead.

Flashback to Quantico — Shelby is getting herself in to trouble. She stole files from the 9/11 case to pretend that it is an immunity deal for her parents. Caleb meets up with Shelby's mom, he tells her that Shelby is setting her up, if she really loves her daughter — then she needs to turn herself in before Shelby has her arrested, and ruins her career in the process.

Present — The Voice has made Alex pull over the truck in the middle of the street. She is being surrounded by cops. Ryan arrives at the apartment where Drew and Simon are tied together. Simon and Drew get untied, and Simon makes it out of the fire escape. Ryan kicks in the door, while Drew is still inside, and the bomb goes off. Ryan is okay — the SWAT team announces that whoever was inside the room is dead.

Simon finds Alex's truck parked outside. Meanwhile, Ryan calls Alex on her cell phone. Alex is freaking out, she heard the explosion, and the line went dead. Now, the Voice isn't giving her any more instructions.

Flashback to Quantico — Shelby gets to the hotel and her mother is gone. Her plan to capture her parents is ruined. She freaks out on Alex, she can't believe that she and Caleb ruined her plan. She tells her that she wishes that she never met her. There are two weeks until everyone leaves for their first assignments. Alex tells Ryan that she thinks they should run away for those two weeks and get to know each other.

Present time — Simon talks to Alex through the car window. She refuses to unlock the door. He tells her that the bomb team has swept the entire truck, and the bomb is not detonated. The Voice was playing her again, there is no bomb. He tries to tell her that Drew wasn't The Voice — it was all another game.

Tonight's episode of Quantico ends with Senator Hass and Alex holding a press conference — the bomb was detonated and the terrorist threat is over, they reassure the city that they are safe. Meanwhile at the FBI office, the bomb that they just took out of the truck is missing. Simon, Rayna, and Shelby realize that Miranda is missing too — they are certain she is the terrorist.

Meanwhile, Miranda is two steps ahead of them. She has already figured out who the real terrorist is. She breaks in to somebody's office, and finds computer monitors set up in all of the Quantico students houses. The terrorist walks in and shoots Miranda... it's Liam. While she is gasping for air, Miranda asks him why he is doing this. Liam nonchalantly responds, " to make things right."

Summary:	The NATS graduate from Quantico; and, in the future, Alex and her team square off with the terrorist.

The episode kicks off with a series of flashbacks — Liam is spying on the FBI students, he has hidden cameras in all of their rooms, he follows them, and knows all of their secrets. He plants the bomb layouts in Simon's locker, he faked being drunk the night that Alex got him from the bar, and he even had Alex's phone bugged the entire time. Liam basically is a criminal mastermind and has been one step ahead of them for months. He's even the one that shot Ryan Booth, we see him planting the bombs and leaving Alex in the bombing aftermath in NYC.

Flashback to Quantico — the students are preparing for graduation. Shelby is upset that Caleb got assigned to San Diego. She calls his dad Clayton and he reassures her that Caleb will be setting at a desk for the rest of his career.

The students head to their final class — Ryan announces that there is a huge mixer that night between them and the FBI faculty. They turn in their student weapons and badges. They'll get their real guns tomorrow. Alex is upset when she hears from Liam that Ryan is headed to Texas and won't be on the East Coast with her.

Present time — Neema, Rayna, and Simon are convinced that Miranda is the bomber. Liam arrives and Alex is relieved to see him. Liam announces that finding Miranda is their top priority — they have to locate her and stop her before the bomb goes off.

Alex takes Liam aside — she has doubts about Miranda being the new bomber. He gives her a far-fetched tale about Miranda trying to take out all of the FBI bigwigs so that she can create a "new FBI." Liam tells Alex she is "either with him or not."

Flashback to Quantico — Alex and the other FBI students head to the big mixer. Alex quizzes Ryan about going to DC, he changes the subject, apparently he is trying to hide Texas from her. Alex lets him know that she already knows and isn't happy about it. Shelby goes in the bathroom and makes a phone call about Caleb, she's upset when she learns that he has a fancy corner office and his own assistant — obviously his dad wasn't completely honest with her.

Caleb's mom Claire corners Shelby and tells her that she hopes they can still be friends even though she and Caleb broke up. Shelby takes the opportunity to tell his mother that he rejoined the cult. Meanwhile, Neema and Rayna are spending quality time with each other before they go undercover in the cell tomorrow and won't be spending any time together.

Present time — Everyone is searching for Miranda, little do they know she has been shot and is tied up in the trunk of Liam's car in the parking ramp. Miranda manages to get free, but Liam arrives just in time. Ryan catches him in the parking ramp, and can tell something is suspicious, Liam punches him and knocks him out.

At the FBI office, the agents are starting to put two and two together and realize that Miranda can't be the bomber. Alex found out there was a camera in her apartment, someone was watching her — why would she be watching herself. Plus, Simon checked Miranda's schedule last week — and there was no way she was the one calling them, she had meeting during the time that The Voice called. Alex realizes that Ryan is missing and no one can find Liam either.

Flashback to Quantico — all of the students are packing up their rooms and turning in their uniforms before they leave Quantico. Shelby tells Caleb that his parents are not coming to graduation — his mom is furious now that Shelby told her all about the cult. She scoffs at Caleb that she isn't writing him off, she is just going to forget that he ever existed.

Liam privately tells Alex congrats on graduation. He teases her that he is glad she made it through Quantico, because he "has plans for her."

Present time — Alex heads to Liam's house to snoop around. His daughter Louisa arrives and is surprised to see Alex. She tells her that she just talked to Liam an hour ago and he is headed back to Washington DC. Alex leaves and calls Shelby, she says that it has been Liam this entire time and he's headed to DC — Alex says that she thinks that Liam is headed to Quantico. Alex and the FBI agents rush to Quantico — there's another class there graduating today. They spread out to search for the bomb, Simon thinks that Liam may have planted the bomb in the dorms, because that would cause the most fall out damage.

They find Miranda and Ryan tied up in one of the rooms. Alex and Ryan grab their guns and start searching the dorms. Liam taunts Alex over the loudspeaker, he tells her that she made a great scapegoat. He says that he is setting off the bomb to get rid of the "cancer that is the FBI." He rants about how horrible the FBI has done, and all of the projects they have botched and lives they have cost. Liam comes out of hiding and grabs Ryan and takes him hostage. Alex finds Liam holding a gun to Ryan's head.

Liam rambles to Alex that the FBI made him kill people and frame people — and then kept rewarding him and promoting him. Liam says that Alex's dad would have wanted him to set off the bombs and get rid of the FBI. While Liam is talking Ryan breaks free and Alex shoots Liam in the head and kills him.

Liam is dead — but there is still a bomb about to go off. Alex and Ryan rush to the top floor of the dorms, Simon, Caleb, Shelby, Rayna, and Neema found the bomb. The nuke is going to detonate in 8 minutes. Simon looks at the bomb and says that there is no way to stop it. While they are all arguing over what to do with it — Simon grabs the bomb and jumps in one of the SUV's outside and drives off.

Alex calls Simon and asks him what he is doing. Simone says that if the bomb goes off underwater — there will be minimum damage, and no one will be heard. He talks to them on speaker phone while he floors it to the bridge. Alex and his former classmates sob and tell Simon how much they love him — they stay on the line until Simon drives the SUV over the bridge and in to the water, a few seconds later there is a huge explosion underwater. Simon just sacrificed himself to save thousands of people.

A few weeks later, everyone reconvenes for Simon's funeral — and he is being given a Medal of Valor. Miranda and Ryan arrive, they have a surprise for Shelby... her badge, they were able to get her reinstated. Vice President Haas arrives, Alex corners her and makes some accusations, she knows she was involved with Liam. Alex remembers that Liam blackmailed her in to swapping medication with her high blood pressure pills, but she just found out that Haas doesn't have high blood pressure. Alex accuses her of having Liam stage the first bombing to make her look like a hero so that she could win the election. Alex says that Simon's blood is on her hands. Claire Haas scoffs that Alex doesn't have the proof to come after her. Alex vows she may not have proof, but she will never stop watching her. Alex heads inside and pays her respects to Simon.

Two weeks later — Alex is no longer in the FBI, she says she is moving back to her mom's house in Oakland. They all gather at Alex's house to help her pack up. Ryan shows up at her doorstep with flowers. Ryan reminds Alex about the trip they were supposed to take after graduation that they never went on — he wants to take the trip now.

Two months later — Alex is home in Oakland and going for a job. A SUV pulls up and stops her, she climbs in and a man introduces himself as Matthew Keyes. He is with the CIA and they want to offer her a job. She has to decide right then and there — Alex's phone goes off... it's Ryan. She ignores the call and Mr. Keyes waits for her answer...

Summary:	Alex is now at "the Farm", the CIA's mysterious training facility, where she learns about the dark art of espionage; and is pulled into a conspiracy that threatens the lives of Americans and countless others around the globe.

The episode kicks off with Alex grabbing coffee at a street vendor. She takes a mysterious call for Raina, who says that she got the passkey that Alex needs — Alex will pick it up in an hour.

Alex heads inside a building with high-security, the major political leaders from around the world are attending a briefing there with the President to discuss global surveillance policies. Inside, Alex runs into Ryan, apparently he is a part of the meeting. Alex was supposed to bring something to give to him. They end up bickering instead, and Ryan stomps off. Alex takes a ring out of her pocket and leaves it on the table.

Alex heads back outside and starts snapping photos of someone. She calls Shelby and tells her she needs to run the photo through the database — the guy she took a photo of is supposed to be dead.

Flashback — Alex heads to her new CIA job, which is not what she thought it would be. She's basically sitting in a tiny cubicle in the basement. Before she leaves, she finds a mysterious blue post-it note that says 8:18 PM.

After work, Alex heads to the bar and meets up with Ryan and Shelby for drinks. At 8:18 PM, she gets a mysterious phone call saying she has been chosen to try out for the National Clandestine Service. She makes up an excuse to leave the bar, and gets directions via phone to "The Farm." Alex is shocked when she sees Ryan in the group of trainees — they realize that they both lied to each other, and they are both undercover for the FBI and infiltrating the CIA.

Present Time — Shelby calls Alex and tells her that she ran the photo through the database. The guy is actually not Jeremy Miller, like Alex thought, his name is Paulo Silva. Before Shelby can finish filling her in, Alex's phone loses service, and so does everyone else's phones around her. Bombs start going off in the street.

Inside, Ryan and his men rush to get the President to safety. But, it's not just a bombing, men are rushing the building with guns and tear gas.

Flashback — Ryan and Alex meet with Miranda and someone from the CIA. They learn that they are being sent into the CIA undercover because there is a group of rogue CIA agents who are anarchists, and they have been recruiting their members. Ryan and Alex just have to act like they don't know each other.

The next day at training camp, Alex makes friends with a woman named Lydia, and Jeremy Miller. Jeremy wrote a series of books about the CIA, and apparently his books were so impressive, they invited him to the training camp. They head to class and meet their instructor — Owen. They are put through a rigorous lie detector test, Alex is a little horrified when Ryan is able to beat the polygraph test.

Present Time — The group that attacked the building full of political leaders has taken them all hostage. Raina and Ryan are inside. The group is wearing masks, they have a list of people from around the world that has all been charged with crimes regarding global surveillance and they want them all pardoned. If they aren't pardoned, the terrorist group will release biological warfare on the city. Alex is outside, and she's trying to find a way inside the building.

Flashback — at the farm, they are given their next task. All of the recruits are thrown into a room at the bar with a clue written on a card. They have to try to figure out which recruit their card describes. After the drill is over, Ryan and Alex are still in the game, they haven't been eliminated. Owen tells them to sober up, for their next test — they will be jumping out of a plane.

In the plane, they are being strapped with parachutes and jumping out. Lydia's parachute is not strapped on properly, but she is scared to tell Owen, she doesn't want to be cut. As she tries to jump out of the plane, Alex dives across the plane and grabs her before she jumps to her death.

It turns out that Lydia is playing Alex — she is actually an undercover instructor and Owen's partner. Alex gets lectured about compromising a mission, but she still barely makes it on the team.

Present Time — Alex is inside of the building with the terrorists. One of the men finds her in the hallway, she manages to fight him off and makes a run for it as he shoots at her.

Alex heads into a room and runs into another terrorist. She manages to get his gun away from him and rips his mask off, it's Jeremy Miller. He tells her that there is no way she is going to be able to stop this, and now she is going to have to die too. Then Jeremy turns and jumps out the window to his death.

Flashback — Alex and Ryan are up late at the farm, everyone is sleeping. They sneak away to a room in an abandoned house. Ryan gets down on one knee and proposes to Alex. She tells him to keep the ring until after this mission is over.

Lydia heads home, and Owen is waiting for her — it turns out that he is her father. Ryan bunked with Leon, he lied to him and tells him that he and Alex hooked up back at Quantico years ago and it's over.

Present Time — The terrorists march the President's wife up on the stage and assassinate her on camera, in front of hundreds of everyone. Alex watches through the window, horrified.

Flashback A Year Ago — Alex, Ryan, and the trainees head back to class. They get a lecture and Dayana is now on the chopping block after screwing up the drill. Later that night, Ryan gives Dayana a pep-talk, she thinks that she could make more of a difference in the world by being a lawyer than a CIA agent. Alex steps outside and bumps in to Lydia, Lydia tells Alex that the reason she is hard on her is because she does her best work under pressure, and she admires her work at Quantico.

Alex heads to her safe house to meet her FBI handler — she is shocked to see that it is Shelby. She bursts in to tears. Alex says that at Quantico they were training to do good, but at the farm they are training to learn how to lie and manipulate. Meanwhile, Ryan meets up with his handler, who is Nimah. She tells Ryan that she has new intel from Miranda, and they have to debrief ASAP.

Alex finds a phone line in the bunker — she calls Miranda and tells her that she is on the inside. Miranda tells her that she needs some intelligence, they need to know how many terrorists there are. After Miranda hangs up, someone texts one of the terrorists and tells them that Alex Parrish is on the inside.

The episode kicks off with a flashback to Alex and Ryan meeting with their handlers Rayna and Shelby. They fill their handlers in on their CIA classmates and who they think might be recruited by the Anarchists. So far, Alex and Ryan have nothing. Alex and Ryan get a bug to wear and share at the CIA training camp. But, they have to be careful, because the CIA is constantly scanning the camp for spies.

Present Time — Miranda and Shelby are still camped outside of the terrorist attack. They are convinced that it was the anarchist group that was working through the CIA that is responsible. Shelby confesses that she still has an in-depth analysis of all of the trainees that were at the camp on her personal computer. Miranda tells Shelby to bring her the file ASAP.

Meanwhile, inside the building that the terrorists have taken over, Alex is still running around rogue. She takes down one of the terrorists and strips them — then puts on the outfit, and goes under cover dressed as one of the terrorists. With the helmet on, they might not suspect Alex. If they do figure her out though — they will most likely kill her. She strolls through the building in the terrorist gear and starts tallying up how many attackers there are and how many weapons they have.

Flashback — Miranda meets up with Rayna and Shelby at a diner in the middle of nowhere. Miranda isn't happy with their reports so far. She tells Rayna and Shelby that a good handler gets inside their spies heads and makes it personal so that Alex and Ryan will get the info that they need.

Meanwhile, Alex and Ryan are on to their next training session. Owen takes the students to a crowded bar and teaches the how to go inside and assess all of the exits and entrances, how many people are in the bar. Next, they throw them in a closet, and they have to estimate how many minutes and seconds they were in there. Now, it's time for them to put what they learned to the test. Owen and Lydia send them on a test mission.

Present Time — Shelby returns to the office with a flash drive. When Miranda plugs it in to her computer, the machine shuts down, and an officer rushes in to Miranda's office and tells her to step away from the computer immediately. Apparently, there is a virus on the flash drive, they confiscate the flash drive and the computers. Miranda whispers to Shelby to go home and get her personal computer.

Flashback — the CIA agents are blindfolded and dropped in the woods in the middle of nowhere with a partner, they have to find their own ways back. Alex is dropped off with Leon, and Ryan is paired up with Doyle. Ryan and Doyle wind up in an argument over Alex and split up, Ryan finds Dayana wandering through the woods by herself. She tells Ryan that she doesn't want his help, she wants to get out on her own and prove that she can do it. Alex and Ryan use the opportunity to try and get some intel on their fellow students.

Present Time — Alex is still stalking around the building and spying on the terrorists. Inside, Ryan is being held in a room with some of the other victims. He corners Doyle who is also being held hostage, he stages a fight with Doyle. Alex gets dragged in to the scuffle and Ryan realizes that she is still in the building and dressed as one of the terrorists.

Flashback — Lydia is upset because the Cia has her stuck at the training camp and she wants to get back in the field. She rants to her dad Owen that she doesn't understand why they won't let her get back in the action. He advises her to take charge of the situation and find out what is going on. Lydia makes some phone calls and learns that it is her own father's fault that she is stuck at the training camp because he wanted to spend time with her. She confronts him and is furious, she says some hurtful things about her father's past and why he is benched now. Lydia storms outside and makes a phone call, she tells someone on the other end that she "is in," and asks what she should do next.

Present Time — Meanwhile, the trainees are all still wandering around the woods. Doyle finds Leigh in the woods — they decide to partner up. Meanwhile, Alex and Leon aren't on the best of terms. He's tired of her prying to his past and asking him so many questions. He finally admits that he got himself arrested on purpose in Mexico because he was a journalist and he wanted to show people what the inside of Mexican prisons were like.

Because of Ryan and Doyle's fight — the terrorists discovered that Alex had infiltrated them. One of them takes Alex downstairs by gunpoint and prepares to kill her. Alex attacks the terrorist and rips off her helmet... it's Leigh.

Flashback — the trainees finally make it back to the training camp, and Owen and Lydia are not impressed with how long it took them to get back. They had cameras in the trees watching the trainees, and it was clear that they weren't using anything that they had learned.

Alex and Ryan meet up in secret that night. They are arguing over who they should put the bug on. They decide that they should put the bug on Harry. Shelby and Rayna arrive, they split Alex and Ryan up and follow Miranda's orders and try to get inside their heads. They manage to cause a rift between Ryan and Alex.

Present Time — Alex tries to get answers from Leigh, but she is not talking and set on killing Alex. Alex has no choice but to kill Leigh to save herself.

Production Code: 204
Summary: The trainees have their stress levels tested while Alex attempts to get close to Owen. Meanwhile, in the future, the stand-off could come to an end when the terrorist organization demands a trade.

The episode kicks off in the basement, the terrorists have taken the hostages downstairs. The guards are still searching the building for Alex. Rayna is moved in to a room alone, Alex watches from around the corner.

Meanwhile at their office across town, Shelby is briefing everyone on the rogue CIA agents and her report — she is certain that the group that Ryan and Alex were trying to infiltrate is responsible. The terrorist go live and stream another video with Rayna speaking on their behalf. They are willing to release 1600 of their prisoners — in exchange for the criminal hacker Eric Boyer.

Flashback — Miranda is furious about the bug that they found in Alex's room. She wants to pull Alex and Ryan out of the training camp before they are discovered and possibly killed by the anarchists. Back at the students' house — Ryan gets a mysterious package that he has to sign for, it's from the Department of justice, and a key.

Alex and Ryan head to class — Owen lectures the about emotions, and learning to control them and hide signs of stress. The students put on plastic bracelets that measure their stress. Owen promises to teach them to conquer fear.

Present Time — Alex slips in to the room where Rayna is being held. She gets a chance to talk to her, they exchange intel. Alex tells Rayna that she can't let the terrorists trade the hostages for Eric Boyer. Whatever they want the hacker for can't be good, and is the next part of their plan. Rayna seems to disagree, she argues that the trade could save over 1600 people.

Meanwhile, back at the office, Miranda and Shelby are arguing over whether or not to make the trade with the terrorists. Shelby thinks it's a horrible idea, the terrorists are obviously steps ahead of them, and who knows what they want Boyer for. Interestingly, Miranda is all for giving the terrorists Boyer and making the trade — she heads out to find Boyer and convince him to come in and let them trade him to terrorists.

Miranda and Shelby track down Eric and arrest him for jaywalking. Miranda takes Eric aside and tells him that he didn't "hold up his end of the bargain" and now he is going to have to turn himself over to the anarchist group. It's starting to sound like Miranda might be working with the terrorist CIA group.

In the basement, Rayna is sat down next to Lydia. She whispers to her that Alex is still alive and she talked to her. She wants Lydia to help her make sure that the terrorists don't make the Eric Boyer trade. Lydia refuses to help, she points out how many times Alex has screwed up in the past, and they need to make sure the trade goes through and they can save as many people as possible.

Flashback — the students are all wearing their stress watches, Owen takes them all to a Lingley mixer to meet with all of the head honchos at the CIA. Owen is monitoring all of their stress on their bracelets to see who can handle it. Alex is trying to clone Owen's phone so that she can use the APP he is looking at to spy on her classmates and their stress levels.

Present Time — It's time for Miranda and the FBI to trade Eric Boyer for the hostages. Alex watches from the roof, and realizes that Rayna is not following their plan and is letting the trade go through. She starts shooting gun shots in to the air and chaos ensues. Alex watches as Miranda follows through and makes sure Eric Boyer gets to the terrorists. On the bright side, all 1600 hostages that they were letting go, make it to safety.

Flashback — Alex is ruffling Owen's feathers at the party and following him around, still trying to clone his phone. She gets upset because Ryan won't help her with her crazy plan, and he leaves the party early. Ryan heads to a safety deposit box with the key that he got in the mail. There's a baseball cap inside the box, it says "CIA" on it. And, a handwritten note that says, "Hope it fits."

After the party, Owen lectures them about their stress tests. Every student in the class has one stressor, and it's their greatest weakness. He tells the students that they need to learn their weaknesses and embrace them so that they can't be used against them by their enemies. The classmates head back home and realize that they were played by Owen and Lydia... again. They figured out their weaknesses, and used them to drive up their stress levels.

Ryan knocks on Lydia's door in the middle of the night. He confronts her about sending him the hat and pretending that it came from Liam to stress him out.

Alex stays late after class, she is still trying to clone Owen's phone. He rushes off again — but luckily she was able to finish the download. Now, she has access to Owen's phone, and all of his data on all of her classmates.

Present Time — Miranda orders her people to interview all of the hostages that were just released, and then let them go. Shelby scoffs that some of those people could be the terrorists, they can't just let them go. Shelby heads back to her office, she finds a strange email on her computer from Eric Boyer. She opens the email and reads it and then slams her computer shut.

Meanwhile, the terrorists have Eric Boyer at a computer — he says that this has gone too far, and jumps up and attacks a guard. He's shot and killed.

Meanwhile, Shelby heads to a coffee shop near the CIA camp, she has a chance encounter with Leon and he flirts with her. When Nimah finds out she is floored and tells Shelby that she can't see Leon again.

Back at the camp, Ryan and Alex are searching Leigh's room to find proof that she bugged them and is listening in on everyone's conversations. Harry catches them in the act, luckily they didn't find anything in Leigh's room.

Out of nowhere someone jumps Alex, Harry, and Ryan and stabs them in the necks with syringes. The three of them wake up in a classroom with Owen, they're in bed with each other and naked. Apparently, this is their next lesson at the CIA farm, what to do when your enemy drugs you 101.

Present Time — Miranda and the FBI are still stationed outside of the terrorist attack building. Miranda takes Shelby aside and tells her they need a hacker to find out why the terrorists brought in Eric Boyer. Miranda wants Will Olsen, she tells Shelby to contact him and set up a meeting.

Flashback — Owen has a new assignment for the CIA trainees. There's a reporter named Crawford that is holed up at a hotel, he is suspected of sharing secrets with the Russians. They have to go undercover at a socialist party in DC and case the reporter's hotel room.

Present — Shelby secretly meets with Will behind Miranda's back. She tells him about the email she got from Boyer saying that Miranda was one of the bad guys. She asks Will to help her get to the bottom of it and find out if Miranda is working with the terrorists.

Alex is still running around the terrorist site rogue — slowly picking off the terrorists one by one. She manages to get her hands on one of their cell phones.

Flashback — Harry Doyle is on to Alex and Ryan. He texts Shelby the address to the party they are going under cover to that night, and it's from Will's phone. Shelby is freaking out, she thinks that Alex and Ryan have been compromised. She heads to the party and runs in to Leon. Meanwhile, Harry tries to catch Shelby talking to Alex and Ryan so that he can prove that they are still working with the FBI.

It's "Go Time," Alex, Ryan, and Harry head up to Crawford's hotel room. When they arrive, they realized that they have been duped by Owen again, there's what looks like a dead body lying on the bed. The phone rings, it's Owen, he tells them they have 13 minutes to clean up the room and get rid of all traces of their DNA before the police arrive. If they fail this mission, they shouldn't even both coming back to the training camp.

Harry agrees to help Alex and Ryan clean up the suite — on one condition, he wants to know the truth about what they are doing at the farm. Ryan tells Harry that he is FBI, but Alex is not. Henry slips downstairs to get Owen's keycard to help them make it look it was his room. While Henry is away, Alex and Ryan play him — they put the room in Harry's name instead, so the police bust him with the dead body. It looks like they beat Harry at his own game.

Present — Alex shuts down the lights in the building. The terrorists manage to finally capture her at gunpoint. Just as a man is about to shoot and kill Alex, his partner kills him. Alex is shocked — the woman that saved her is wearing a mask and won't tell her who she is. She gives Alex a gun and tells her to go, she takes Alex's bracelet to prove to the other terrorists that Alex is dead.

Flashback — Owen has Alex over for tea once they get back to the training camp. He's impressed that she and Ryan made it out of the hotel room and had the nerve to frame Harry with the body. Back at the students' house, Leigh corners Ryan in the kitchen and makes small talk. She confesses that she misses her kids and her husband. Ryan gives her a pep-talk and reassures her that she is doing just fine at the training camp.

Harry returns and he is not a happy camper. He says that the rule was no one gets kicked out if they reveal that they are CIA to get out of trouble with the police — and he didn't use his get out of jail free card, so technically he is still in the program. Harry demands answers from Alex and Ryan...he wants the truth.

Ryan and Alex go out to drinks with Alex at the bar so that they can talk in private. Harry reveals that he is a member of MI6, he's apparently part of a program where an American trains with MI6 in England and he trains with the Americans. Ryan and Alex tell him that they can't tell him anything about their mission until they talk to their superiors. He tells them to get on the phone and call them then — because no one is leaving the bar until they have this all straightened out.

Meanwhile, Shelby sneaks off and heads back to the diner and secretly meets up with Leon again.

Present — Miranda gets a phone call from Will. He looked at Eric boyer's emails like Shelby asked him to. Will tells Miranda that he knows what she is doing, and he supports her and he wants to help, he scoffs that he convinced Shelby Miranda is innocent too, even though she isn't.

Alex is roaming the halls again, sneaking around the terrorists, and she bumps in to a familiar face...Lydia.

Production Code: 206
Summary: At the Farm, the trainees decide on a drone strike, which triggers Alex's memories of Simon's sacrifice; Shelby and Leon's relationship heats up; and Nimah warns Alex and Ryan that Harry can't be trusted. In the future, Alex battles Lydia.

The episode kicks off with the terrorist — after the Eric Boyer trade is over, all of the hostages are corralled back in to one room. Rayna and the CIA agents are plotting. Dayana, Harry, Sebastian, and Leigh work with Rayna to try and figure out their next move.

Flashback — Alex and Ryan meet with their handlers. The FBI has confirmed that Harry Doyle is part of MI6 but Alex still thinks he may be a part of the terrorist group. The FBI needs something from Alex and Ryan, time is running out and they still have no idea who the anarchists are in the CIA. Meanwhile, Owen corners his daughter Lydia before class. He got a list of names that burnt his cover years ago and he wants Lydia to use her clearance and see if it was the CIA that screwed him over.

Present Time — Alex ran in to Lydia, but she doesn't believe that she isn't a terrorist. Lydia says that the terrorists are after a hard drive that is full of CIA intelligence from the last 20 years. Lydia and Alex team up to destroy the hard drive before the terrorists find a way to decrypt it.

Flashback — Lydia and Owen are teaching the students about drone strikes. They are all given old case files and they have to decide whether or not a drone strike is necessary by calculating the threat and the number of possible casualties. Meanwhile, Harry Doyle is still breathing down Ryan's back about being in the FBI and the CIA.

Of course, it's not long before they learn that the class is not a drill — and they are deciding whether or not to really authorize a drone strike. The students begin bickering amongst themselves over whether or not to risk innocent lives. There seems to be a pretty split divide, Alex, Leigh, and Sebastian vote "No." on the drone strike. Alex is extra emotional because it is the anniversary of Simon's death.

Present Time — Lydia and Alex make it to the room where the CIA's hard drives are being held, after a few close run-in with terrorists. They have the code to access the drives from the satellite phone that Alex stole off one of the terrorists.

Flashback — after bickering back and forth for 20 minutes, Ryan changes his vote to "No," because Alex is obviously upset. Owen interrupts and tells them that time is up, then he orders the drone strike. The students watch in shock as a bomb is dropped on a location where a suspected terrorist might be hiding out.

Present Time — Alex hands her phone over to Lydia, and then Lydia turns on her. It looks like Lydia played her. They begin wrestling over the gun that Alex is holding. Meanwhile upstairs, the hostages are still trying to figure out what they all have in common and why they are being held by the terrorists. Leigh mentions that she had a layover flight in Jakarta, then out of nowhere the terrorists grab her and drag her out of the room.

Flashback — Shelby has some explaining to do. Nemah found out that Shelby is sleeping with Leon, one of the students from the farm. Nemah thinks that Shelby might be the break that they have been waiting for in this case. Maybe Shelby can get more info from Leon than Alex and Ryan have been able to get by posing as students.

Meanwhile, the students head back to the house, and some of them are pretty shaken up over the drone strike, and Owen's speech about being able to deal with the fact that they have to become okay with the idea of taking another person's life.

Present Time — Alex wakes up, and she is tied up. Lydia says that she is not a terrorist, she is in the CIA, and it is part of her duty as a CIA Agent to secure the hard-drives and destroy them. She leaves Alex tied up in the room, before she leaves, she pulls an alarm so that the terrorists can find her.

Flashback — Shelby, Alex, Ryan, and Nemah all meet at Simon's grave in the middle of the night. They each leave a stone on his grave site, and Nemah says a prayer for him.

Present Time — Leigh is killed by the terrorists in front of the other prisoners. Then, Dayana and Rayna are dragged out of the room. Once Rayna is alone with the terrorists, it looks like she may be working with them. And she might not be Rayna — one of the twins is being held hostage by the terrorists next door. The twins have been swapping back and forth again, and one of them is working for the terrorists...

Production Code:	207
Summary:	The trainees learn about enhanced interrogation techniques when Owen puts himself in the hot seat. Shelby goes undercover. Meanwhile, in the future, a new president is sworn in. Miranda makes a difficult decision.

The episode kicks off where we left off last week, Alex is tied up in a room in the building that has been taken over by the terrorists — Lydia left her there to be caught. She dislocates her own arm to get untied, and then makes a run for it before she is caught.

Flashback — Shelby is still hooking up with one of the students at the CIA training camp. Afterward, she meets with Alex at the safe house, they are shocked to see that Nemah and Miranda are already there with Ryan. Miranda is not happy that they still haven't infiltrated the anarchists in the CIA. Miranda gives Alex a blueprint to Owen's house and says that she needs to get inside and get some intel. The operation is moving too slow and they still don't have anything. Alex and Ryan head to the bar

Alex and Ryan head to the bar afterward with some of the other students from the CIA camp. They play a game of darts and question each other about their pasts. Things get awkward when Sebastian questions Harry about his friend Elliot who committed suicide.

The next day in class, Owen and Lydia reveal the next lesson at the CIA training camp will be in interrogations — how to avoid questions, and how to ask the right questions.

Present Time — Alex is making her way through the basement of the building. She calls Shelby's cell phone, she warns her that the terrorists have been communicating with someone on the outside world. She gives Shelby a phone number of the person that has been talking to the terrorists, and then the line goes dead. The terrorists knock Alex out, she wakes up tied to a chair in what appears to be an interrogation room.

Another man is thrown into the room with Alex, his hands are tied and he claims to be one of the hostages. He says his name is Mike and the terrorists sent him in to find out where the drives are. If Alex doesn't give up the drives, then they will kill Mike. Alex basically laughs in "Mike's" face and tells him that she isn't buying it, she knows he is one of the terrorists and they are trying to play her.

Flashback — In class Lydia and Owen warn the student that they will push them to their limits. They put them through several potential interrogation techniques, like weight endurance, putting their feet in ice water, and listening to loud music.

Present Time — Mike begs Alex to tell the terrorists where the drives are, but she still isn't buying it. The terrorists march in and shoot Mike in the head and kill him. It looks like he was telling the truth after all. Next, they bring in Dayana, and promise to torture her if Alex doesn't give them what they want.

Flashback — Owen challenges the students at the CIA to torture him until he gives up his top secret CIA alias. Owen is apparently half superhuman though, and hours without food, water, or sleep don't seem to be breaking him at all. The students bicker over how they should torture Owen next. Interestingly enough, Dayana seems to know a little bit about torturing people.

Owen still hasn't cracked a few days later. They argue over whether they should physically torture him more, or take a different approach. Ryan corners Dayana and asks her about the country where she grew up, he can tell that she was tortured or she saw someone else being tortured firsthand. He gives her a speech about how doing bad doesn't make you a bad person.

Meanwhile, Alex slips away from the training exercise and breaks in to Owen and Lydia's house to snoop around. She finds a secret computer and cell phone hidden in the wall. Henry spots her in the house, and calls her to tip her off that Lydia is on her way back and she is about to be busted.

Back in class, Dayana informs her classmates that their only way they are ever going to get Owen to surrender, is to hurt someone that he cares about — as in his daughter Lydia. The students drag Lydia kicking and screaming back to the torture room where they are holding Owen. After torturing Lydia in front of Owen, it's not long until he gives up his secret alias... it's Jim Dowd.

Present Time — Apparently the class in torture didn't do much for Alex. Before the terrorists even seriously hurt Dayana, Alex sings like a canary to save her and tells them that Lydia took the drives and she doesn't even have them.

Outside, Shelby calls the number that Alex gave her — and to her shock a phone in Miranda's boyfriend's Paul starts ringing. Men in suits whisk him away, Miranda shouts at Paul not to talk to anyone until he gets a lawyer.

Flashback — Alex meets with Shelby, who is not too excited about the phone and computers she found at Owen's house, since she didn't even take photos of them. Alex is upset because she feels like they are fazing her out of the operation. She runs in to Owen at the bar and flirts with him, he offers to buy her a burger.

Meanwhile, Ryan wakes up outside in the middle of nowhere with a burner phone. Someone on the other side of the phone says, "You have been selected."

Dayana and Alex are alone in the torture room — Henry, Sebastian, and Leon rush in. Apparently one of them faked a seizure and they were able to overpower some of the terrorists and get away. It looks like the CIA students are about to put everything they learned to use to join forces against the terrorists.

Flashback — Ryan is meeting with Neemah in the safe house. Alex is upset because they are having secret meetings behind her back, and she hasn't heard from her handler Shelby in weeks. After Alex leaves, Neemah and Ryan get down to business. Ryan was recruited by the AIC, but Alex has no idea that they chose him.

The reason Alex hasn't seen Shelby is because she has been hooking up with Leon and doing her own under cover work. Shelby and Leon are lying in bed at a nearby hotel, Thanksgiving is coming up, they chat about their families — obviously Shelby doesn't tell her the truth about her parents.

Alex meets with Doyle at the bar behind Ryan's back. She tells Doyle about the burner phones and laptops that she found in Owen's house. She thinks that Owen is in charge of the AIC. Harry Doyle agrees to do some snooping in England while they are off for Thanksgiving break.

At Owen's house, Lydia tells him that the CIA finally granted her request for another tour and she will be leaving soon. She wants to spend some time with him over Thanksgiving before she leaves.

Present Time — Alex, Doyle, and the other CIA students are looking for supplies in the old police bunker to disarm the bio weapon. Whether it is viral or bacterial, all they need is to apply enough heat to it to kill the live cultures.

Raynah is taken in to a room and tied to a chair — she's shocked when one of the terrorists come inside and takes their helmet off, it's her sister Neemah. Neemah is a proud member of the AIC, she sits down and tells her sister that she needs to start fighting for herself and what she believes in, the Americans would deport her in a day if they could.

Shelby can't trust Miranda, she takes an army sergeant aside and tells her that she has Alex on the inside and she can help diffuse the bomb. The sergeant doesn't want their help though, she tells Shelby to have Alex lie low, they have everything under control. Something is definitely off. A few minutes later, Miranda takes Shelby aside and plays a recording for her.

A few minutes later, Miranda takes Shelby aside and plays a recording for her, it's of the army sergeant. The army is planning on dropping a drone on Liberty st. to end the crisis, they're killing everyone, even the hostages.

Miranda confronts the army sergeant. Shelby shouts that they can deactivate the bomb with Alex's help. The Sgt. Scoffs that Alex isn't a miracle worker, the drone is striking in 48 minutes. If Alex can diffuse the bomb before the 48 minutes are up, then she will call off the drones.

Flashback — It's Thanksgiving break, the students all head home to visit their families, but they have made up cover stories about where they have been. No one can know they were recruited by the CIA. Harry Doyle heads back to England.

Meanwhile, Alex is upset because Ryan is pulling away from her and won't tell her what is going on with him and Raynah.

Dayanah refuses to go home, she doesn't want to have to lie to her family and then leave them again without notice.

Owen returns home but Lydia is out. He goes through her bag and finds her orders from the CIA, saying what her next job is.

Present Time — Alex, Doyle, and Sebastian are crawling through their air vent of the building and trying to get to the bomb without the terrorists discovering them. Their plan goes awry when Sebastian drops the canister they needed to make a blowtorch. They split up, and Doyle heads back up stairs to find another canister.

Flashback — Alex tracks down Shelby and Neemah, she demands to know why they are meeting behind her back and no one is telling her anything. Shelby confesses that she went back in the field and is making headway. Alex is being pulled from the mission, she failed. Miranda was supposed to be the one to tell her in a few days.

Meanwhile, Ryan is on a mission. The AIC has him running around in the woods and is contacting him via text messages. They are testing him. He receives a text message and it tells him to take down a man, he ties him up and leaves him inside the office.

A few minutes later Leon arrives, he was recruited by the AIC too. He receives a text message telling him to kill the man that Ryan tied up in the chair. Afterwards, Leon shows up on Shelby's doorstep with blood on his hands, he confesses to her that he just had to kill someone.

Present Time — Alex and Sebastian find the bomb. They were played by the terrorists, the bomb isn't going to kill everyone in the city. It's set off to kill everyone in the building that they are holding hostage.

Alex and Sebastian rush back to the bunker to call the FBI and tell them what they found. On the way, they meet up with Doyle, Leon, and Dayana. Chaos ensues, they are all surrounded by the terrorists and forced to drop their weapons.

Flashback — Alex and Ryan meet up at the safe house. Ryan doesn't want this mission to come between them, he gets down on one knee and takes out a ring and proposes to her. Alex is thrilled, and says "yes."

Lydia packs up to leave the farm. Before she goes, she finally gives her dad Owen what he has been looking for — the reason he got dropped by the CIA and they won't put him back in the field.

Miranda finally shows up to tell Alex that she is off the job, she made arrangements for alex to go back to work in NYC. Alex informs her that she is not leaving, she is staying at the CIA training camp and she is going to find the AIC herself without the FBI's help.

Ryan receives another text, he's ordered to go to a barn in the middle of the night. Leon and Dayana are waiting for him, they all realize that they were all recruited by the AIC. All three of them receive a text showing each of them participating in killing the innocent man earlier in a video. The message says that if they break the AIC's trust, they will destroy them with the video.

Present Time — One of the men dressed in black drags Alex down the alley and throws her in a room. He pushes a button and lasers cover the doorway, the terrorist tells Alex that if she crosses the lasers, the bomb will go off and kill everyone inside. He takes his helmet off before he walks away, it's Ryan...

Summary:	The recruits are taught the art of seduction, which Alex utilizes to get closer to Owen; and, in the future, she learns who the terrorists are.

The episode picks up where we left off in the fall finale — Alex Parrish was released from the hostage center in NYC (actually thrown out by Ryan). There are still over 100 people still being held in the building though.

Alex is being held in an interrogation room — and is shocked when Hannah arrives to question her. Hannah points out that it is a little ironic that Alex has found herself in the middle of a huge conspiracy, two years in a row. Hannah demands answers, before the government fires a missile in NYC and takes out the Citizen Liberation Front and remaining hostages.

Alex explains that the FBI sent her undercover at the CIA training camp with Ryan. Hannah happens to be Ryan's ex-wife.

Alex explains the Citizens Liberation Front, how Ryan infiltrated them but she failed the mission and stayed at the CIA.

Flashback 10 Months Ago — Ryan fills Miranda in on being recruited by the AIC, and getting the mysterious texts and having to help kill a man. Ryan was recruited with Dayana and Leon, who was dating Shelby Wyatt and had no idea she was undercover FBI. Ryan reassures Miranda that Alex has no idea he has been recruited or was given a secret phone.

Present Time — Alex continues to fill Hannah in on her other classmates, Sebastian Chen and Harry Doyle. She explains that their teacher Owen had an issue with his daughter Lydia, and she left half way through the training camp.

Hannah isn't buying Alex's crazy theory about a hidden terrorist. She needs a name of one of the terrorists. Alex reluctantly reveals that Ryan is one of the terrorists.

Flashback 10 Months Ago — Alex and the CIA students are sent on their next mission — they all head to a bar and have to befriend as many people as possible and get their phone numbers.

Alex and Dayana excel at the mission. Sebastian on the other hand is having a tough time, so is Leon.

Leon is a mess after he and Dayana and Ryan had to kill someone for the AIC. Dayana tries to get him to snap out of it before he exposes all of them.

Ryan takes Alex aside at the bar and confronts her — she wants to know if he is still going after the AIC. He makes her promise to stop digging for more dirt. Ryan is concerned that she is going to upset the FBI.

Present Time — Apparently Owen Hall is now in prison for something. But, Alex insists to Hannah that he is a missing piece of the puzzle.

Shelby interrupts Alex's interrogation. Shelby has a theory — it's a bit confusing, but makes sense. Shelby thinks that the terrorists are not the AIC, they are actually hunting the AIC. And, that's why they are interrogating everyone in the building and then releasing them or executing them — the terrorists are trying to find the AIC too.

Flashback — Alex and Ryan head on their next CIA mission. All of the students are sent to a wedding reception — they are each given the name of someone at the wedding that they have to seduce and try to get to spend the night with them. Leon is starting to get suspicious, all this talk about seducing someone for information has him wondering if Shelby is using him for info.

Alex is more focused on seducing Owen than her mark though. Lucky for her, Owen is spending the night at the bar and becoming drunk and vulnerable. Alex decides to speed up the process and slips something in to Owen's drink, then she takes him up to his hotel room.

Dayana heads in to the hotel room with her mark — but she snaps when things get hot and heavy and knocks the guy out. She calls Leon for help to clean up the mess. The next day they all head back to class and Owen gives them a speech on crossing lines that they don't feel comfortable crossing for the good of their country.

Leon meets up with Shelby and confronts her — he is on to her and knows that she is using him for information. He grabs Shelby and demands to know who she is and what she is hiding. Shelby insists that her feelings are real. Present

Present Time — Alex is sitting alone in the interrogation room and Miranda marches in with a gun — she says that she and Alex need to talk. Shelby and Hannah return to the interrogation room and Alex is gone. She seems to have slipped away with Miranda.

The episode begins with Miranda and a very confused Alex riding in the car through the city. Miranda basically kidnapped Alex from the FBI after informing she announced that she is one of the terrorists.

Apparently, Miranda and the terrorists are not the AIC group. Instead, they set up the entire hostage situation to weed out members of the AIC and stop them before they take over the world. In the

In the car Miranda explains that they are headed back to the terrorist location. Alex is shocked that there is a secret entrance in to the building where the hostages have been held this entire time. Flashback 10 months

Flashback 10 months — Alex and Ryan are not in a good place, especially now that Ryan hid that he had been recruited from the AIC. Meanwhile, Alex received a phone too. She gets an ominous text message on the mystery phone, it reads, "Your patience will be rewarded."

Meanwhile, Harry is on to both of them. Harry steals Alex's phone from her and accuses her of faking getting recruited to throw off Ryan.

The CIA students head to class and Owen teaches them a lecture about planting seeds of doubt. At the end of his lecture he states, "Your patience will be rewarded," which definitely catches Alex's attention.

After class Ryan receives a phone call from Rayna. She tells him that they have direct orders from Miranda to remove Alex from the CIA training camp before she screws up his mission. Present Time

Present Time — Shelby is trying to hold down the FBI offices, Claire Haas arrives and kicks everyone out. Once they are alone, Claire tell Shelby that she needs her help stopping the air strike. Then, she drops a bomb on Shelby and reveals that she helped form the rogue CIA group.
Flashback 10 Months Ago

Flashback 10 Months Ago — Owen gives the CIA students their new mission — they are trying to take down a Venezuelan delegate named Gabriel, and get access to his confidential financial records. After giving them a few hours to do research, Owen announces that he is sending the class to Venezuela. Present Time

Present Time — Miranda and Alex arrive at the secret entrance to the hostages, Rayna is there waiting for them. Miranda thinks that Rayna is on her side and is going to help them get the prisoners out before the air strike, but she pulls a gun on Miranda instead.

Up in the FBI office, Claire explains to Shelby how she got involved in the AIC. She recalls that it was her first year as Senator, and she met a drunk DOD agent that shared with her the black-list FBI budget. Claire helped him pass a bill and 10% of the money went to a secret training group, which she had no idea would turn out to be the AIC. Claire doesn't want news to get out that she helped fund the AIC, even though it was not intentional because she could lose the Presidency.

Flashback 10 Months Ago — Alex, Ryan, and the CIA agents head to Venezuela on their mission. Ryan and Sebastian go under cover as investors and meet with Gabriel. But, Gabriel knows that Alex and Sebastian are not who they say they are and he kicks them out of his office.

Meanwhile, Alex and Harry decide to use another tactic. They have a more personal approach, and they decide to go after Gabriel's husband and his daughter. They tell his husband that Gabriel has fled the country with their daughter, and he may never see her again unless he helps them get Gabriel's files. Their plan seems to be going smoothly, but Ryan is determined to sabotage them.

Present Time — Rayna rants to Alex that Miranda lied to her — and she told her when they took hostages that no one would get killed, and that was not the case. All Miranda cares about is getting the drives from Lydia, she doesn't care about the innocent hostages. In a flash, Miranda grabs Rayna's gun and takes Alex hostage with it. Alex fights Miranda off and leaves Rayna to watch her, then she rushes inside to save the hostages.

Flashback 10 Months Ago — Dayana and Leon have officially kidnapped Gabriel's daughter — Alex and Harry use her as leverage to get the files from Gabriel's office.

Alex knocks out the guard while they are upstairs and then lures Ryan in to the room and handcuffs him to the passed out guard. There's no way the CIA will let him continue training after he gets arrested. It looks like Alex has officially chose the mission over her fiancé Ryan. Ryan shouts at her that she's crazy, but Alex believes that Ryan would have done the same thing to her to get her out of the CIA. Alex realizes she is making a mistake and Harry manipulated her and she sets Ryan free.

Harry isn't thrilled when they get back to the CIA camp and sees that Ryan and Alex are reunited. He warns Alex that it is only a matter of time before Ryan turns on her and chooses the mission over her.

Present Time — Claire is still begging Shelby to help her cover her tracks with the AIC. Shelby doesn't want to get involved, she tells Claire that she needs to own up to what she did and stop stalling and call off the air strikes before more innocent people die.

Flashback 10 Months Ago — Leon marches in to the safe house and tells Rayna that he knows that she and Shelby are FBI and they are investigating the CIA and the AIC. Leon says he will help the FBI and tell them everything he knows, he wants out of the secret rogue group.

Owen marches in to Alex's room and demands she hand over her secret phone. Alex does as she is ordered, and thinks that Owen is the leader of the secret group. But, it turns out that he is not, and he wants to take down the group. Owen orders Alex to tell him everything that she knows or else he will have her arrested for espionage.

Meanwhile, Dayana, Leon, and Ryan head to their first official AIC meeting — and the leader is none other than Owen's daughter Lydia.

The episode ends with Claire Haas finally doing the right thing and calling off the air strike with just a few seconds to spare as Alex slips back in to the building to save the hostages.

The episode kicks off in the crisis zone — the terrorists are injecting the prisoners with truth serum to ensure that they are answering correctly. We just found out that the "terrorists" are actually FBI agents and they are killing off members of the AIC. The man in the interrogation room apparently has failed the test, the FBI shoots and kills him where he is standing.

Flashback — At training camp, Alex is determined to prove to Owen that his daughter Lydia is running the AIC and recruiting students from his classes for the organization. But, Owen refuses to listen to her. Alex sneaks in to Owen's house, he warns her that she is obsessed, and she needs to just take a deep breath and walk away.

At a nearby bar, Harry Doyle meets with Pip, one of his MI6 contacts. He wants Pip to steal some ledgers for him. Sebastian interrupts their breakfast and Pip runs out. Harry is not a happy camper.

Meanwhile, Leon is working with the FBI now. He meets with his handler Rayna, and signs some documents, she reassures him that he will be immune of any crimes that he has committed.

Alex tracks down Shelby, even though they aren't on good terms, she fills her on what she discovered about Lydia. Shelby tells Alex that she is going to have to prove it to Owen and get him on their side. She gives Shelby a picture of a map that she stole from Lydia.

The students head to class and Owen tells them about one of his assets, a woman named Helen Sharp that worked at a bank in Russia. He recruited her to track the Russian's laundered money, but then she was discovered. It was Owen's job to get her out safely, but he failed, and the Russians killed Helen Sharp.

Present Time — It's time for Harry Doyle to be injected with truth serum and interviewed. The FBI gives Ryan a gun and tells him that if he is a true member of the FBI, then he will kill Harry is he is in the AIC.

Flashback — Owen gives the students their next assignment. The CIA has an asset in Germany that is in danger, and they need to get him out of the country. Owen gives the students 24 hours to extract Marcus from Germany.

Meanwhile, Lydia has given the AIC members their own job to do while they are in Germany, behind Owen's back. They have to run surveillance on a man named Elsa Schmidt.

While the students are strategizing, Alex takes Owen aside and gives him some info that she and Shelby discovered. Apparently, Lydia was in 5 cities where suspicious deaths occurred.

The students arrive in Germany, and Owen has a shock for them. He announces that he is Marcus Weber, and its their job to get him out of the country. Germany knows him, and they are already running surveillance on him. It will be nearly impossible to get Owen back through customs.

Present Time — It's time for Harry Doyle's interrogation. Ryan suits up and hold Harry at gunpoint. Both men are a hot mess. Luckily, Harry passes the questions and is deemed not a member of the AIC, so Ryan doesn't have to shoot him.

Flashback — In Germany, Dayana, Ryan, and Leon abandon the mission to go carry out Lydia's dirty work. Alex is all by herself. She tries to sneak Owen out of the back entrance to a coffee shop, but the German police are following them. They knock Alex out and stun Owen with a taser. Luckily, Ryan returns at the last minute and is able to save Alex and Owen.

Alex takes Owen back to the safe house while they work on getting him a fake ID to leave the country.

But, apparently the safe house isn't too safe, someone is waiting there for them with a gun and he has every intention of killing Owen. The man introduces himself as Daniel Sharp, Owen got his mother killed by the Russians when he was just 14 years old.

Leon and Dayana get an update from Lydia, they learn that they have to shoot and kill the woman that they are watching. Dayana has no problem carrying out Lydia's order. She puts her silencer on her gun and lines up to take the shot. At the last minute, Leon panics and takes the gun away from her.

The guilt about Helen Sharp is eating Owen up. He want Daniel to kill him and make things right. He screams at Daniel to shoot him, but Alex steps in and takes the gun and tells Daniel to leave.

Present Time — It's Leon's turn to be interrogated, and he is failing miserably. The FBI agent in charge wants to shoot and kill Leon, but Ryan tackles him at the last minute and saves Leon. Alex arrives in the nick of time. She tells Ryan that no one else is going to die today, and it's time for them to get everyone out of the building and to safety. Ironically, they are protecting everyone from the FBI.

Flashback — Dayana calls Lydia and tells her that they failed their mission, and it was all Leon's fault. Lydia tells Dayana that Leon will be gone by the end of the week.

Meanwhile, Alex finally makes some progress with Owen and he accepts the fact that Lydia is a radical.

He meets with Alex and Shelby to help the FBI build a case against Lydia.

Present — Alex and Rayna lead the people out of the building, but they realize that the terrorists must have taken off their suits and are blending in with the prisoners. They have no idea who is good and who is bad.

The episode kicks off where we left off last week — Alex, Ryan, Harry and the rest of the CIA students are leading everyone out of the building where they were being held hostage. The only problem is, they don't know what hostages are innocent and what hostages are members of the AIC. Flashback

Alex and Owen are working together now to bring down Lydia and the AIC. He's furious that his daughter betrayed him, and the country. Ryan isn't thrilled about Alex and Owen digging for information.

The CIA students head to class, Owen teaches a lesson on "making a mark look the other way." This week they will be required to break in to the NSA and break out without ever getting caught. Owen has an ulterior motive. After reading Lydia's emails, Owen learned that the AIC is after something in NSA, and he wants to find whatever it is first.

Owen calls Harry up to the front of the class and has him do a demonstration on pick-pocketing, which is all about getting your mark to look the other way and distract them. After class, they head to the local bar to practice their pick-pocketing skills.

The next day Lydia shows up unexpectedly back at the class, apparently she heard that Owen is sneaking his class in to the NSA. Lydia has a secret meeting with her AIC members, Dayana, Leon, and Ryan, and gives them a mission. While Owen has everyone in the NSA, she wants them to tap the organization so that they can access all of the emails and phone calls that they have ever intercepted.

Meanwhile, Alex recruits Harry Doyle to help her while they are in the NSA. She tells him to keep an eye on the AIC members and see what they are up to. Present Time

Present Time — Alex and Ryan are leading the hostages out of the tunnel under the building. Suddenly, they realize that 2 people are missing. It looks like the FBI is still carrying out their mission and picking off members of the AIC while the nearly 200 plus people travel through the dark tunnels. The problem is — they have no idea who the killers are, they are blending in. Flashback

Flashback — The CIA students embark on their mission to break in to NSA. Owen and Lydia hang back and jam the security cameras from another location while the students head in to the building. Alex makes her way to the main frame control room and deletes the students' information and phone calls. Then, she follows Ryan to see what the AIC is up to. It's not long before she discovers the wire tap that Ryan hid in the control room.

The CIA students make it out of the building, all of them except for Leon. Dayana set him up so that his cover would be blown. Dayana and Lydia decided that Leon was too weak to be in the AIC and wanted him out. Their plan worked, Owen announces that Leo is leaving the training camp.

Present Time — Someone kills the power in the tunnels, when it goes dark, chaos ensues. When the lights come back on, Alex realizes that someone grabbed her gun — Sebastian's wife Carly. Carly takes Harry Doyle hostage. She demands that Sebastian and his CIA friends hand over Will, or else she will kill Harry. Sebastian and Carly face off, a shoot out occurs, and Sebastian is forced to shoot his wife and kill her. Sebastian is badly wounded.

Harry and Alex begin herding the group towards the end of the tunnel. When they finally see light, the FBI is waiting for them and orders everyone to come out in an orderly fashion with their hands up. As the hostages are finally making it to safety, Alex and Ryan make a startling discovery, they lost Will in the commotion. Apparently, Carly was just a distraction, while she was taking Harry hostage, the AIC grabbed Will. Flashback

Flashback — Ryan meets with Lydia, he demands to know what the purpose of planting the tap in the NSA was Lydia explains that the AIC is the good guys That tap they placed earlier in the day helped stop a bombing at a Syrian refuge camp. Ryan reminds her that they all had to kill a innocent man to get in the AIC. Lydia scoffs that they never actually killed the man, he's very much alive, it was all a set-up to test their loyalty. Apparently, there is no AIC, Lydia is just running a black-ops for the president.

Meanwhile, Owen and Alex take a little field trip. In the middle of the night they decide to go check out the building where Lydia was having information from the NSA tapped and sent to. They arrive at the abandoned building and thousands of photos of everyone at the CIA taped to the wall, including photos of Lydia. Something isn't right, this isn't the lair of the AIC, it's the lair of some sort of stalker. Present

Present Time — Alex gets out of the building and demands to speak to someone in charge — the person in charge is Lydia. Lydia tells Alex that a terrorist got the hard-drives and kidnapped Will Olson. She needs Alex to go back inside the building to take down the remaining terrorist ... Dayana.

Summary:	The recruits learn what to do if they're ever exposed; and a death leads to an FBI investigation at the Farm. In the future, Alex returns to the crisis zone and exposes the traitor.

The episode kicks off where we left off last week — everyone is freed from the hostage crisis, but it's far from over. While the medics and police are tending to the injured, Alex and Lydia track down Ryan. They explain to Ryan that they need to go back inside — Dayana is missing, and so is Will, along with the drives that Lydia hid from the AIC. Flashback

Flashback — Alex and Owen just made a shocking discovery — they thought they were tracking the AIC, but instead they found the lair of someone who has been stalking everyone at the training camp. When they left the building, it exploded, and they a man was inside, but they didn't get a look at the victim's face. Alex is freaking out, she thinks they should go to the police because a man could have just died. Owen tells her they should just go back to the training camp and wait, whoever set the bomb and is stalking them will make a move soon.

The next day, Alex corners Ryan about the lair that she and Owen found. Ryan tells Alex to drop it, there is no AIC. Miranda called and told him to pull out of the mission.

Present Time — Alex, Ryan, Lydia, Harry, and Leon get suited up and back in to the crisis zone to try and find Dayana and Will. They have to keep a low profile, the last thing they want is for the FBI or police to know what they are up to. They split up to cover the area faster.

Meanwhile, Shelby is interrogating Rayna and Miranda — she shouts at them that she should arrest them for treason. Rayna insists that they were trying to do good, and they had no idea that the Citizens Liberation Front would spill so much blood.

Flashback — In class, the CIA students are learning what to do if their cover is ever exposed and they need to be extracted from their mission ASAP. Meanwhile, the police keep pulling the students out of class one at a time to question them about Jeremy Miller's death. They seem to be honing in on Owen, they know that he had the students break in to the NSA. Apparently, Owen had ulterior motives.

Present Time — Alex and Lydia spot Dayana and Will slipping in to a door and they chase after them. Interestingly, it certainly doesn't look like Will is being held hostage by Dayana, like everyone expected.

Flashback — After class, the CIA students head to the local bar for some drinks to blow off some steam. Harry pounds some drinks and gets a bit emotional. He's leaving the far soon, and totally cracking up over his own personal demons. Harry reveals that he is an under cover agent from MI6, and that England sent him there to get dirt on all of the new CIA students so that they can use it against them in the future if need be.

Meanwhile, Alex gets a call from Shelby — she gives her a heads up that Owen is taking the fall for planting a bug at the NSA, and it's a federal crime. He's going to prison. Alex isn't happy, she knows that Owen didn't plant the bug and he's just taking the fall for her his daughter Lydia. Shelby warns her to stay out of it. But, we all know that isn't Alex's strong suit.

Owen and Lydia share an emotional goodbye before he heads off to prison. Lydia begs him to reconsider taking the fall, but Owen won't hear it.

In the morning, Harry sobers up and packs his bags, and says goodbye to the other students and Sebastian.

Present Time — Miranda explains to Shelby that Jeremy Miller contacted her after his death was faked. He revealed to Miranda that she was right all along, there was an AIC, it was called the Citizens Liberation Front. The CIA staged the kidnapping to sniff out the members of the Liberation Front. Miranda had no idea they were going to kill so many people, or this would go so far. She thought that she was just helping the CIA located members of the rogue group.

Alex finds Dayana and Will and pulls her gun on them. Dayana is confused, she explains that she didn't take Will hostage, Lydia told her to hide in the tunnel with Will and the drives so that they could destroy the drives. That's definitely not the story that Lydia told Alex. While Alex is talking to Dayana, someone sneaks up behind her and shoots her in the back.

Alex wakes up on the floor a few minutes later, she was wearing a bullet proof vest and the shot just knocked her out. She rushes to the drives, but it's too late, Lydia has already uploaded them to the main frame. Will gets to work trying to stop the uploading, but he's too late. Alex and Lydia brawl through the building, beating the living crap out of each other until Ryan and the guys finally arrive and handcuff Lydia and take her away.

Back at the FBI, Shelby returns to the interrogation room. She reveals that a cell of the Islamic front has taken credit for the terrorist attack, which means that neither the CIA or FBI will be held responsible for what happened and all of the blood that was shed.

After everything has died down, Alex and Ryan have a tough conversation about their relationship. Alex thinks that drifting apart after they left the camp was probably best for both of them because their lives are so tangled. They say goodbye and Alex promises that she will always love him.

President Haas summons Shelby, Alex, Dayana, Rayna, and Ryan to her chambers. Alex and Ryan are shocked to bump in to each other so soon. Haas announces that they are all members of her new covert task force, and it will be their mission to stop the windfall from the drives that Lydia uploaded, they are going to take down the leaders of the AIC. And, Caleb Haas will be leading them.

Summary: In the wake of the G20 hostage crisis, President Claire Haas assembles an illegal and clandestine joint task force, bringing together Alex and her friends from both the FBI and CIA to unmask a global conspiracy.

Unfortunately, a top super secret task force doesn't come with any perks. So the federal agents all had to travel several hours just to make it to the Farm and they didn't even get reimbursed for their gas. But the job offered them untold adventure and excitement so no one truly regretted saying yes however they didn't know how hard it would be working for Claire Haas. Claire Haas had told them that they were pillars that held up the defense of the country and she said that if all the pillars were to collapse that it would create a perfect storm. Much like 9/11 or what recently happened at the G20 Summit.

However, what Claire wanted the agents to investigate tonight may or may not lead to another perfect storm. She told the team that recently someone had hacked the government's. The cache was data going back years about the country's defenses yet the cache being accessed wasn't the one thing that happened. There was also a RNX cargo plane that crashed and so what Claire as well as Keys wanted was for the team to investigate whether or not the two events were somehow connected. So she thought that everyone that had been put together for the team would be able to work together. And it turns out she was wrong.

Claire's other son Clayton or Clay as he likes to be called had had a problem with working with Shelby because she had slept with both his father and his brother. Yet, Shelby also had a problem with working with Nimah. She thought that Nimah had proven to them once already that she was capable of becoming a terrorist and so she didn't want to trust Nimah with sensitive information though Nimah in fact had a problem with working with Dayana. Dayana had wanted to be friends or at least friendly with Nomah and Nimah had shunned her because she doesn't want to trust someone new. So the team that was supposed to save the world had also fallen apart on Day 1.

So Clay whose job it was to watch over them all and make sure that everything was coming together along, had called in for some help with his unruly bunch. He had gotten Owen Hall to come in and Owen had given the team purpose. He said if they wanted to find out who had sabotaged the plane then they needed to follow the money and it seems that Nimah had the same idea as well. She hadn't said anything before he arrived because she was afraid to put herself forward what with Shelby's comments all the time, but Nimah had looked into who would make a profit from the plane crash and she had found out that someone had been manipulating the stock market.

Nimah had found evidence that someone used insider trading to make a profit on the crash and she said she got the idea to look it up because that's what happened on 9/10. But Owen had had a name for everyone. He had found out that the guy that made a 112 million dollars recently was Shaun Gregory. Gregory, ran an investment group and it was his job to make rich people even richer. So the team knew that Gregory got the tip from somewhere however the guys' job was to find the collaborators behind the actual plane crash and so they went to a party that Gregory's group was funding.

The party was apparently a bid to collect more clients and so everyone had gotten a role to play. The guys were supposed to be making a pitch to potential clients as well as to Gregory himself for cyber-security. However, some of their covers hadn't been easy to carry out. Shelby for instance had attended the party as herself therefore she was an heiress considering her options yet some of the party-goers had remembered that Shelby joined the FBI so Clay had been forced to rescue her before he cover was blown and that didn't mean that they were suddenly friends. Clay still didn't like Shelby because of what she did to his family and he had made his feelings clear.

Clay had told Shelby that he had taken on the job to act his mother's top political strategist and to be her eyes on their organization because he had been promised that Shelby wouldn't be part of the team. Yet, mother had apparently explained to him that she had no other choice. Claire had told Clay that she had to make Shelby part of what they were doing because she had been there at the summit and knew too much. So Clay had rubbed that fact in Shelby's face. He told her that she was surrounded by agents that were a lot better than her because she wasn't supposed to be and, to add salt to the wound, Clay had called her deadweight.

Clay didn't believe that Shelby offered anything to the team and that she was holding them back with all of her mistakes. Though Nimah had sympathized with Shelby. She thought they shouldn't be defined by their biggest mistake and so she understood Shelby a lot more than Shelby wanted to admit, but their mission to investigate GIP Investments had taken an unexpected turn. Alex had later run into Harry and he had helped her cover what she was doing in the building. So Harry being around had gotten Alex thinking. Alex thought that Harry would make a great addition to the team and so she had vouched for him.

Alex knew that Harry had been let go from MI6 and that he couldn't get back into the organization unless he proved himself. But Keyes didn't want Harry back despite what Harry and Alex found. The duo had found out the GIP weren't terrorist and instead were running a Ponzi Scheme. So they kept digging until they came across ENGIN Industries. ENGIN was this seemingly harmless aviator start-up and it made the most money out of the crash because the cargo plane had been carrying one of a kind aviation technology that could identify where a plane would crash. And therefore they had the most motive to crashing the plane however the collaborator's name was Christian Kelly.

Kelly was one spoke on the wheel and there were still many others they needed to find. However, the team was slowly coming together towards the end. Shelby had reached out to both Nimah and Clay and they were trying to figure out how to work together without snapping at each other. So after Owen decided to finally put his trust in the team, Alex and Dayana had snuck off to meet up with Leon. Leon had said that someone was hunting all of them and he had claimed that Alex and Dayana weren't safe either yet the women had checked out his theory and they had thought that he was just jittery. And so they dismissed Leon's theories.

Summary: Clay is forced to use his fiancée to carry out an operation, which causes the team to reexamine their personal connections or, more accurately, the lack thereof. Alex, meanwhile, forges an unexpected bond with an asset at the center of a conspiracy; and Harry struggles to find his place on the task force.

The task force was always going to come first for those involved. But Clay hadn't known how much it would affect his relationship with Max. Max had wanted to know where he went at all hours of the day and whether or not he even a stagiest still however Clay had made a promise to her that he had hoped would be enough. He had promised that he would tell her everything once the job was done. So Max tried to be content. She still didn't care for the lying or the evading in Clay's case though she thought that everything would turn out alright.

However, Clay had gone into the office after Nimah and Ryan found some great intel on the missing cache. So he put a little too much faith into what they found. They found out that the cache had been accessed by Rebecca Sherman and she wasn't just anyone. She was practically the socialite of all socialites and her parties were legendary because of the way she was able to bring people together after all other avenues have been closed. And so there was a question put to the table about her — was she a collaborator or she was the mastermind?

Rebecca's friends and acquaintances were all across the globe and so she had the power to arrange meetings between collaborators that no one would suspect. Though to get an answer about the part she played in the great conspiracy — the team looked to Clay and had asked him to do something he hated. They had asked him to get his fiancée Max involved because Rebecca was also known to be someone that could arrange high-profile weddings. So Clay had been hesitate at first and it had taken him some time before he ultimately came around yet he still hated the plan.

Clay had said that he doesn't like to lie to Max or get her in any involved with what they were doing. Yet, the mission required it and it didn't help that Harry needed him. Harry was new to the team, but he was often the most vocal and so he hadn't held anything back when he told Clay that he should put up as much as they all did. So Clay agreed to the meeting and he had been brought Max to meet Rebecca about possibly arranging their wedding. And the plan that had seemed so good had started to fall apart almost instantly.

Alex had played the part of Clay's security detail and she was supposed to come across as someone that didn't feel too comfortable in her job. But Rebecca had talked to Alex and she had realized within moments that Alex was meant to distract her while Clay and Max did something else. So the guys had needed another distraction and Ryan had come through for them. He had gotten his personal contact Sasha Barinov to work both ways and therefore Sasha made a timely call to Rebecca before she could race upstairs.

However, Rebecca was able to remove herself fairly quickly from that conversation and she did catch Clay on her computer. So she figured everything out and had then said "Thank God". Rebecca had admitted that she was being blackmailed into helping with the conspiracy and that she needed their help to get her and her family to safety. And so Rebecca told them everything. She told them that her personal contact was Thomas Roth. Roth was a high-priced attorney that the collaborators were using to take down their enemies and Rebecca knew she could arrange a meeting with him.

Roth was technically acting as her handler in a way and so it was job to monitor Rebecca as well as deal with any problems that might occur. So he had been all top willing to meet her when Rebecca fed him a half-truth. She told him that she had been compromised and thought that someone might be on to all of them yet some of Rebecca's nerves must have come across because he thought she was little hysterical when they later met up. Though he had had no problem with talking to her and had almost admitted on tape that there was a conspiracy.

So what stopped him had been the shooter. Someone must have gotten worried that either Rebecca or Roth weren't capable of dealing with the latest problem on their own so shots were fired in the park. Yet, the team had been close enough to Rebecca to save her life and they hadn't. They had been told that it would risk their covers and the mission at large so they stayed put as she bled to death, but Alex for one hadn't been happy about it. She had thought that they should honor their promises to Rebecca by keeping her safe and it had been a physical blow when Rebecca died anyways. And so the mission and Clay being in a fight with Max was for nothing.

The team's leads had died alongside both Roth and Rebecca. But Clay was taking it the hardest because it was his job to lead the others and didn't know if that was worth his marriage. His fiancée was refusing to take his calls because she was mad at him and one of his agents had actually disappeared in the field. So the whole mission with Rebecca had been a bust and only Alex was worried about the missing Harry. Harry had sort of forced his way onto their latest mission and she had wanted to know if he was in trouble or if he had wandered off again.

However, the answer to that question was neither. Harry had found the shooter and he had tried apprehending Sebastian Chen when Chen got the better of him. So Harry had been forced to call Alex and tell her that he realized the team wasn't for him though she had believed the lie because of Harry's own past behavior and had said bye without knowing the truth. And so Harry was in danger while everyone else were busy trying to find a real connection in their world if that even still possible for the lot of them.

So Owen went to visit his daughter, Ryan visited Sasha and had tried to find information on her to keep her from blowing his cover, Shelby had talked Max into understanding Clay's position because she knew that Clay needed Max in order to stop him from becoming like the rest of them, And Nimah had decided to visit her sister. Nimah had been told that she never would have allowed Raina to ignore for her long and so that had convinced her to park herself on Raina's door. Though unfortunately, Raina had been attacked in her apartment and it seems like someone is setting her up for another terrorist attack.

Summary: One of Alex's friends is framed for a domestic terror attack that was timed to coincide with a vote in the House on a Muslim registry bill. The collaborators, meanwhile, are actively stirring fear to pass the registry; and Alex and Owen hunt an assassin.

The Collaborators made another move when they decided to plant a bomb in the Heartland however blowing up a shopping mall in middle of America right before an important vote didn't go unnoticed. Clay and the others quickly realized what they were planning and they looked into various way into stopping it. But the bill they were fighting was unlike anything they've ever done before. The bill was a nicely worded registry for Muslims in America and it was entirely unethical. So fighting the bill couldn't be done with missions or bullets. It had to be done with the House.

However, Ryan for one had had a problem with actively interfering with the democratic process. He thought that they could fight the bill some way else and hadn't wanted to look into changing several congressmen' mere opinion yet Clay had said there wasn't any other way. He believed they needed to sink the bill on the House floor and he had even reassured everyone that he had a connection that could help. Clay said that his friend Felix (who worked for one of their collaborators) could give them the names of the congressmen sitting on the bench and that they could each talk to them. So he had gone to Felix in good faith and Felix had betrayed them.

Felix had pretended to be torn over the vote because he was an immigrant himself and he had given Clay the names he supposedly needed. Yet, Clay and the others did their best to talk to the congressmen and women that Felix had given and they had struck out. So they had gotten worried and were considering why everyone had been so stringent on voting for the bill when some of them came from blue states though the answer appeared before very long when several security guards asked Clay to leave the building after a complaint had been made against him and Felix told him as he left why.

Felix had unfortunately had given Clay the wrong names because he had wanted the people that were actual benchwarmers to see how desperate Clay was and that way they would vote for the bill just to spite him, but all the same Felix wasn't really a bad person. He had acted like a jerk and had been for the bill. Though Felix believed in this bill because his own sister had died after a suicide bombing. So Shelby and Nimah understood where Felix was coming from and they saw how much fear could push someone into compromising everything they were supposed to stand for. And so no one was surprised when the bill passed.

They knew that the Collaborators wanted to prove a point and that point was that Claire Haas didn't have their best interest at heart. The president had vetoed the bill the second it landed on her desk because she knew that it was wrong to monitor people purely based on their faith. But Clay who had figured out things in time had tried to warn her. He told her that she needed to sign the bill or lose credibility however she ignored his advice and that had Speaker of the House Henry Roarke all but accuse her of being too soft-hearted for the job and saying whatever happens next was on her. So Clay told everyone back at the house what Roarke really wanted.

Roarke wanted to become president and without an acting Vice President there was just him next in the line of success if Claire was forced out of office. However, the idea of a Collaborator as president had made Shelby sick. She didn't think him or any of the other people responsible should be allowed to hurt people on a whim and that went especially for Raina. Raina had been knocked out and had woken up to an apartment staged to make her look like the recent bomber. So she had called Alex in a panic and the team had taken her to farm where she could be safe yet Alex had had a few questions for Raina.

She wanted to know why they'd pick Raina of all people to frame and so Raina mentioned what she had been doing since the G20 incident. She said that she had started looking into the people that planned the attack and how Léon Velez had been helping her until he abruptly disappeared one day. Yet, Alex and Nimah had been disappointed. They hadn't wanted Raina to task such risks with her life and they had told her so though what else could she do. Raina said that she hadn't felt comfortable with covering everything up and that people deserved justice. So Raina believed that what she was doing was right and she didn't want to stop looking into the matter.

Though Raina also didn't want to remain prisoner at the farm and afraid to leave. So Nimah offered to switch with her sister. She said that everything was her fault anyways so why not switch like they used and that way Nimah would turn herself in and Raina could continue to walk around freely pretending to be Nimah, but for the plan to work they couldn't afford to tell anyone. It had to be their secret until Raina's name was cleared and so that meant even Alex was left in the dark. Which was unfortunate because Alex knew too much. Alex had looked into Leon and she learned that he had been murdered although his killers had made look like suicide.

So Alex had needed someone else in the know besides Oliver to help her investigate what happened to Leon because Oliver had had a moment in the field when they came close to taking down the real bomber and he choked as people were firing at them. But that wasn't the only thing concerning.

Ryan's new girlfriend Sacha was apparently a Russian asset and she claimed that she was only doing what they told her because the government were threatening her family however she had kept that to herself and so Ryan didn't trust her as much as he used to. And he continued looking through her laptop for information on her.

And so the elite unit kept getting on with their pants down and that ensured they weren't getting closer to finding out more about the Collaborators!

Summary: A despondent Clay meets with the President to discuss the future of the task force, but he's interrupted by the arrival of his brother. Meanwhile, Alex leads an operation to expose the collaborators' plans to sink the President's reputation, and she teaches Owen to trust his instincts.

Owen had lost some of his instincts in the field. However, he had asked Alex to help him regain them without anyone else on the task force knowing. So Alex had been training during their off hours and she had been trying to teach him the way she herself had been taught yet Owen wasn't responding that well to it. He wasn't young anymore and he didn't have the same resilience that he used to. And so Owen worked best when he was assisting others out of the field than when he was carrying out a mission outside with a gun.

So as it happens Owen later came through for everyone when the task force received five pings. The pings had come from five cities on high alert across the nation because there were just the right environment for a riot. A riot as the president vetoed the Muslim registration would indicate that her government as well as her leadership was weak. Yet, Clay for once hadn't cared about the pings because he thought the task force should be disbanded. He thought that they were losing and so he had wanted to focus on his mother's presidency.

Clay was looking at his mother's presidency and he saw that Claire Haas was losing credibility on the hill so he naturally came to the conclusion that fighting the Collaborators was only making things worse. Though everybody else on the task force had thought that Clay was overreacting. They thought that they could stop whatever the Collaborators were planning on and they figured they were half there by looking at the cities rife for a riot. So Alex had more or less taken charge when she saw that Clay was no longer fit to.

But Clay had still gone to his mother because he thought that he could at least convince her to drop the task force and so he had been surprised when he ran into Caleb. Caleb had gotten back from vacation and had apparently been filled in on everything. So Caleb had had plenty ideas on what his brother was doing wrong and he hadn't been afraid to say so. He thought that Clay was stuck to playing by the rules and didn't know when to change tactics to stay one step ahead of the Collaborators however Caleb had had a solution.

Caleb thought that he could join the task force and that he could even be of some help because most of the members were friends of his. However, Clay had been against the idea. He thought that Caleb would bring nothing but trouble and he had felt demoralized when his mother had surprisingly sided with Caleb over him. So Clay had done the one the thing no one had expected. He had gone to see Roarke after talking to his mother and brother yet he hadn't exactly been ready to make a truce with a man he knew was intentionally hurting Americans to benefit himself.

Clay has gone to see Roarke in order to get a reading on the other man and that was just the right thinking outside of the box that Caleb and Claire had wanted from him. So Clay had gotten some information out of Roarke and he had used that to preempt Roarke's move by going to Cleveland with his mother. It had apparently been one of her executive decisions that was working against a young man who he had walked in on his wife's assault and had killed her assailant with an unregistered gun.

So the Collaborators had worked on the judge to push the case through and have the man found guilty because they wanted to reflect badly on the president, but their plan sort of fell apart when the president arrived in the city to talk to the press. Claire had explained that she went pushed the executive order through because she believed that it would save lies and keep families together. Though Claire had also said that she had never thought that the order would hurt innocent people like the defendant and that she had been wrong to go ahead with her order without fully examining all the possible consequences. And so Claire had owned up to her mistake.

But by doing that she had cut off Roarke at the knees and had stopped him from making himself the hero of the piece. So Clay's plan had worked and it turned out to be a good thing that he had made his move because the others hadn't fared so well. Alex, Shelby, and Raina had thought they could influence the trial and had joined the local FBI watch group there because they thought that would give them access however they ran into Miranda who refused to let them go off half-cocked again and hadn't wanted them to hurt her second chance at her career. And therefore, Miranda had been an obstacle nearly all the towards the end when she finally came to her senses too late.

Miranda had realized that they needed to help the defendant and so she had helped the others realize that the judge had been forced to take the bribe. However, by time they did that, it had been too late because the jury had come back with a guilty verdict. So Miranda did impede them yet she now knew that they were working on something they couldn't tell anyone and so she knew now when to step away. And she also knew that they hadn't known that Raina and Nimah had switched places.

The twins had thought that Nimah could handle prison and interrogation better than Raina though they forgot that Raina hasn't been with the FBI in a long time. So Raina was trying to regain most of her training along with Owen. Yet, Owen appeared to be doing better when he tackled Sebastian who had broken into the farm and had interrogated the other man to point in which he learned what Sebastian was truly doing. Sebastian, it seems was investigating the Collaborators as well and so he hadn't killed Harry. He had just told him that he shouldn't become involve.

So Sebastian was on the same side and more importantly he had figured out the rest of the collaborators, but there was a problem. Owen had been giving Ryan the names of the others when Ryan figured out his new girlfriend had bugged him so Ryan had tried to talk to Sasha. Though she told him that she could be helpful and had already started to investigate the names before Ryan had tracked her. And so Sasha had gone ahead with her own investigation and she had unfortunately showed her hand to one of the Collaborators.

And so Sasha's car was bombed just as she was entering it!

But to complicate matters, Caleb was back and he was quickly making threats before long!

Summary: A flood of new proposals shines a light on the final stages of the Collaborators' plan. Fractured but not defeated, the task force, aided by some old friends, works to put the pieces together before the Collaborators launch a terrorist attack.

The episode begins with Roarke signing an executive order. He is interviewed and told he has signed more executive orders than any other president in history. Why is that? He blames President Haas and then defends his Muslim order. It is needed to keep America safe. The team watches the interview and can't believe what they are hearing. Roarke wants to call a constitutional convention. Owen gets on his computer and realizes all of his information is gone. He goes to the team and asks for their help but they are too angry.

Alex meets with Roarke and he thanks her for her help. He wants her to be a part of the reshaping of the country. He tells her not to leave town. Alex meets with Owen and Shelby. He tells her all of their computer information is gone. They need her help. Miranda Shaw comes to the bunker to meet with the team and they ask her to help find the cache that is missing from their computer. She gets to work immediately.

Will also helps the team look for the cache. Will thinks the collaborators are planning to take control of a plane or planes to use in a terrorist attack. Ryan returns to the bunker and gets to work. They realize the collaborators are going to use people's cell phones to stage an attack with airplanes. Shelby calls Clay and tells him they need his help. He suggests that Roarke is going to stage an attack and frame Muslims to help get support for his policies.

Alex decides to use her connections to figure out which planes are going to be targeted. Raina turns herself into the FBI thinking it will help lead her to her sister and to create a distraction. As Raina is taken away the rest of the team leaves the bunker without being seen. Alex meets with Alice in an attempt to figure out the flight numbers. Shelby goes to Clay to see if he can get the codes they will need from his mother. She should know the codes they will need to tell the FDA to ground the targeted flights.

Clay tells Shelby his fiancé left him and she tries to kiss her. She insists he needs to get the codes NOW. Alice confirms that the team is correct about the plan but she won't show Alex the plane numbers. Alex knocks her out and starts to access the list but Alice comes to and they fight.

Will discovers that someone has taken over the communication system and the FDA can't communicate with the planes in the air. Owen and Miranda find the perps and retake the communication system. Clay makes the call and gets the needed codes. Alex gets the plane numbers and all flights are grounded. Alice tells Alex it isn't over and once President Rourke learns of her betrayal she will be sorry for her actions. The team has been successful but no one will ever know what they have done. The team still has to figure out how to defeat the collaborators.

Shelby tries to convince Clay to return to the bunker and rejoin the team. Clay tries to kiss Shelby again but they are interrupted by the FBI pounding at the door. Miranda and Owen talk and she encourages him to stop hating himself. He needs to move on from his past. Miranda gets a call. Ryan and Alex reconnect and she worries that the collaborators will come for her. The FBI comes and takes the whole team to meet with the president. The president holds a press conference to tell America that a terrorist attack was stopped by a team of dedicated CIA and FBI agents. He then introduces the team to the world. He uses them to push his agenda of gutting both the FBI and the CIA. With this announcement, most of the country unites in support of Roarke's plan for a constitutional convention. The team only has 100 days to stop him. They plan to make him think they are on his side and wait for the opportunity to strike.

Summary:	Alex and the team make a last stand against the Collaborators at the Constitutional Convention, where a new amendment to the Constitution threatens every American's freedom.

Roarke had wanted to strip the American people of their civil liberties. But that wasn't something he could just do on his own because there was still a system of checks and balances in place. So he and the other remaining Collaborators had come up with the idea to change the constitution and stop all detractors from voicing an opinion or rising up against them however first Roarke had to get past Alex and her friends. The agents knew that they had to stop Roarke while they still had the chance and so they initially thought it was possible to merely stop the vote altogether at the convention. Except they had gotten careless.

The agents all met at the same place, they had all looked for bugs, and they thought that they had managed to fool everyone into believing that they actual believed in DISA. However, they made the mistake of ignoring the new Smart TVs that were recently installed at their bar and so they hadn't known that anyone was listening in until Maxell decided to burst their bubble. He had walked in on them and had even commended them on keeping up their stories for months on end though as it turns out he never thought that they were on the Collaborators' side and he had simply been playing around them as a way to find out what their grand plan was.

Though knowing that they were willing to blackmail their way into stopping Roarke from getting his vote just meant they could counteract it. So the rogue agents were eventually let got once Maxell realized that they had nothing left to offer him and they had thought that that was it yet Clay had had an idea. Clay had suggested that they betray their country by handing over whatever information they had on Roarke to the Russians. He explained that the Russians could manipulate Roarke into doing anything they asked and that it could buy them time as they looked into Peter Theo. Theo had mistakenly revealed to them that he had no problem with spying on them.

So if that's something he could do to a bunch of rogue agents that he once thought was working with him then he probably had information on his "partners". Yet, the agents had needed to recruit some new members to get close to Theo and so Alex called in Will and Iris. Iris had come in for an interview back when Alex was working for the DISA, but she had only gone in to question why Alex would suddenly be defending stripping everyone of their rights. So Iris was the first person that came to Alex's mind when she needed an agent to cross some boundaries and Iris had later proven to be quite good at seducing Theo with Will's help.

Especially as both hadn't had a problem with an unorthodox threesome. But in the end, their plan worked. They had gotten the information to the Russians and the Russians had done as Alex suggested. They had forced the president into changing the wording of his new platform and the agents had even gotten a recording of the whole encounter thanks to Peter Theo. So the video of the whole thing was released at the convention and Alex proved to the world that the president was not only compromised, but that he was willing to do anything as long as his group of elitist got what they wanted in the end. And so that should have been a victory.

The group had proven that there was shadow government and that the president was corrupt. However, there had been a shooter waiting in the wings and Alex had gotten shot just moments after unraveling everything the Collaborators built. So that unraveled Ryan. He had run to Alex's side and hadn't left her even as she was taken to an ambulance though thankfully Iris had told Alex that she couldn't stand to see Ryan cry anymore so Alex revealed the truth. She hadn't actually gotten shot. She had simply pretended like she did so that she could fake her death and get out of dodge before the Russians came looking for her.

Though that was the price she was willing to pay to stop her country from being used by either the Russians or the Collaborators. So the only one that truly went down for what happened was Roarke. He knew that the other Collaborators were all too rich to be punished as he was bound to be and so he chose to kill himself rather than be arrested or face the press. And that had admittedly been hard on Clay. He had suspected that Roarke would kill himself except it had still been surprising that he went ahead with it and that had merely been the start of it. Clay had later talked to Shelby about how he had distance himself from Maxine and why he did.

Clay had told her that Maxine had ended things, but the truth was that he had distance himself her because he hadn't wanted her to become tainted with all that he was doing. Yet, Shelby told Clay about how she had taken so much time thinking about what others thought about her and she never wondered if she deserved better. So Shelby ended what could have been a relationship with Clay because she realized that he hadn't cared about her good name even as he took precautions to protect Maxine and her putting a stop to things allowed him to realize their end of their world romance wasn't real. It was merely two people being together because they were desperate.

So in the end Clay went back to Maxine because he knew she was the one for him however he didn't turn his back on the rogue band of agents. He had gotten both Nimah and Raina out of prison and the whole team had gotten together again to put the case to rest while Ryan decided to go into hiding with Alex seeing as the American people didn't know if they should thank her or arrest her for what she did.

Owen and the team go to pick up Charlie, the witness. He doesn't want to go. Alex asks him if he wants to see Culebra go down or not? He did spend two years undercover. He grabs his bags. On their way traffic comes to a stop. Men on street bikes come out of nowhere and start shooting. They all get out and fire. Alex grabs Charlie and hops on one of the dead guy's bikes and leaves.

The team all meet near a carnival. They need to change up their plans. Charlie gives them an idea — an old safe house with a stocked bar. Someone on the inside is dirty. Jagdeep, Celine, and Jocelyn do some research. They find a suspect who could have leaked information about the case and Charlie. They track him down and bring him into the office. He finally breaks and admits the cartel threatened his family.

At the safe house, Charlie finds a bottle. Mike is ready for a sip. Alex tells him no. Shelby asks her why she is on edge. She tells her she isn't. Meanwhile, Owen and Jocelyn talk. He is sad to see Charlie. He is older, grey and not the same man he was.

Charlie asks Alex what she is hiding from Shelby. A camera goes on the fritz. They all stand. Charlie warns them that someone is coming. They ready their guns. Charlie knows about a trap door. They run. The men come in. The gang leaves the safe house, blowing it up behind them.

They head to Alex's. They get word from Jocelyn that they have a mole who says a man named Dolfo is behind the leaks. They ask Charlie if he knows a man named Dolfo. He does. Owen and the others need to find Dolfo so the leaks stop. They realize he likes the gay dating online circuit.

Charlie is fixing one of Alex's clocks. She comes in. They talk. He asks her what she is hiding from Shelby who is secretly standing outside the room. She changes the subject. She talks about missing Andrea and his daughter. He eats as they talk. He begins to have trouble breathing. He is allergic to nuts. They rush to get his epi pen.

Celine tells Owen and Jagdeep that they have used their shirtless profiles to lure Dolfo. They head to an underground club where he hangs out. Ryan goes in. He gets hit on. Owen and Harry laugh on the outside as they listen in.

Shelby gets Alex alone and asks her what she is keeping from her. She tells her nothing. Alex admits that things are weird for the 3 of them right now but the two of them will always be friends. They hug.

Ryan attracts Dolfo. They head outside. Ryan tells him to wait when he comes on to him. Ryan tells him he has an apartment down the street. Dolfo starts to wonder who he is. He stabs him and runs. Owen and Harry come after him. They stop him with guns aimed and try to talk to him. Shots are fired from somewhere. Dolfo goes down.

Mike and Alex say goodbye to Charlie as he leaves with Shelby in a truck. Something Charlie says to Alex about her clock gets her thinking. They head to her apartment. She checks the back of the clock. There is a zip drive in there. Charlie was lovers with the cartel leader's sister who was killed by her brother. They see Dolfo in some photos and a man, Aker. Charlie wants revenge. They race to the courthouse. Charlie is going to kill the cartel leader. They alert the team.

Charlie takes the stand. An FBI agent, Aker, sets up a sniper rifle on the roof. Mike comes out. The agent comes at him from behind. Alex shoots the agent. Inside the courtroom, Charlie has rigged his epi-pen to shoot at the cartel leader. Owen comes in last minute and shoots at Charlie.

Alex goes to see Charlie in jail. Shelby picks Ryan up at the hospital.

Jocelyn's old handler has been taken, which stirs up memories for Jocelyn. We see her time undercover with The Widow where Frank was her handler. We see the accident that took away Jocelyn's hearing.

Frank was taken by Dante. Thanks to one of Dante's men, Leon, that the FBI picked up, the FBI is able to get into one of Dante's underground casinos.

Celine convinces the team that she is experienced enough to go undercover with Alex and Mike. Celine handles herself pretty well until she and Alex are taken by Dante. Dante also kidnaps Jocelyn by pretending to be Frank via text to lure them out.

It turns out that Dante has a fight club where the fighters have a knife duct-taped to their hand, and they have bags over their heads. This is why Jocelyn doesn't realize that she's fighting Celine and that she kills her.

Celine's dead.

Meanwhile, the rest of the team is frantically searching for Alex and Jocelyn. Deep and Shelby find Frank's case notes in a storage unit, and they uncover that Dante moves his money with ambulances.

Everyone immediately grabs their nearest family member and brings them to Shelby's mansion in Westchester for protection. Ryan brings his dad; Alex brings her mom, and Harry brings his sister.

No one gets along with their family member, but that's not all that surprising.

Mike and an MI5 agent uncover a cell phone in Devlin's prison cell, and the team is able to track the one number that Devlin has called. Harry, Owen, and Jocelyn check it out, and they find a booby-trapped house with dozens of surveillance photos and information on Shelby's mansion.

At the house, an assassin poses as a neighbor to gain entrance into the house. He knocks out Shelby, and he tries to kill all of the family members. Thankfully, Ryan's dad manages to hold him off until Ryan can show up.

Devlin uses Garret King to continue his attacks against our favorite group of FBI agents. King kidnaps Harry's sister, Maisie, and he shoots Owen.

Devlin plays both sides, and he offers up a deal to the team. Grant him extradition to Ireland, and he will give them King. The team declines his offer, but Devlin tells them a helpful hint.

Devlin gives them the location of a truck that King's moving. When the team apprehends the truck, they find that they have stumbled into a human trafficking operation.

The team pieces together witness statements to track down where King's men were holding the girls. When they get to the warehouse, they are too late. Everyone has been moved, including Maisie.

After Owen's severely injured, the team decides to accept Devlin's offer. He tells them that they better hurry if they want to catch King before he slips away on a boat.

The team does manage to capture King and free some women, but Maisie is not on the ship. To make matters worse, King tells Alex that this is all Devlin's operation, not his. The team got played, and Devlin's extradition order has already been approved.

On the way down, Mike gets separated from the rest of the team, and he lands on the other side of a lake. It doesn't take long before Devlin's guys find him, and he ends up in a prison run by Devlin's people. Devlin even pays him a visit and roughs him up.

Harry, Owen, and Jocelyn rejoin the time (sans Mike) in Ireland. Fiona manages to help the team rescue Mike from police custody. Meanwhile, Owen, Harry, and Jocelyn have been following Devlin's brother, Eamon, and his crew. They find a dead drop, and they coerce the recipient to hand over what he picked up.

It's a tablet that's coded to open to the recipient's fingerprints. On the tablet is a catalog of women for the auction. Maisie is on it.

Fiona is brought in on the recon mission, and she offers up MI5 backup on the raid of the auction, which Mike and Owen approve. Harry and Ryan go undercover as buyers in the auction, where they meet up with Maisie.

While escorting the girls out, Alex and Mike realize that Fiona set them up. Fiona, as it turns out, is intimate with Devlin and owes him her life. Once all the girls, including Maisie, are safe, Alex doubles back to find Fiona. She and Fiona fight, and Fiona ends up dead.

Devlin kills his brother while the team is rescuing the girls, so it looks like he died at the hands of the FBI. Devlin still wants revenge for his son's death; he wants Ryan Booth. Devlin kidnaps Isabella and Andrea to use them for leverage.
