Summary: When the Duke of Halstead dies, his second son inherits everything, including the title, house and grounds — plus a whole heap of trouble.

The episode introduces us to Edward, a Border Patrol Agent. He is approached by Ahmed, who works for Edward's father. Ahmed informs Edward that his father's health is rapidly declining, urging Edward to return home before it's too late.

For context, Edward is the second born of the Duke of Halstead, one of the country's wealthiest men. Edward meets his father, who, in his frail voice, asks him to oversee the estate and care for his misfit brother, Freddy.

After his father's passing, Edward inherits everything, including the title, vast estate, and lands. The rest of the family will receive a weekly allowance, the amount of which is to be determined by Edward. This news doesn't sit well with Freddy, the eldest son, who expected to inherit everything.

In a moment of desperation, Freddy asks Edward for 8 million pounds to settle his debt with a Scottish crime family, which could cost him his life if left unpaid. This puts Edward in a tough spot, forcing him to find a way to save his brother. Despite inheriting his father's wealth, Edward is not as rich as one might think. He's asset-rich but cash-poor, leading him to consider selling the Halstead manor.

As the episode unfolds, Susie Glass, a woman with a history of business dealings with Edward's father, approaches him. She reveals that Edward's father was making 5 million pounds a year by allowing people to grow weed in his backyard.

Now that Edward is the owner, he stands to profit as well. However, Edward divulges to Susie that he plans to sell the manor for urgent funds so he can repay his brother's debt. Susie assures him that she can secure a 50 percent discount for him if he changes his mind.

Edward meets Stanley, an aristocrat who is eager to purchase the Halstead manor for what he claims are cultural reasons. Stanley makes Edward an outrageous offer for the manor, but when Edward declines, Stanley offers to buy Edward's wine collection, which Edward reluctantly agrees to sell for some three million pounds.

Unfortunately, Freddy steals the money to bet on an illegal fight in hopes of doubling it. However, he falls victim to a scam, losing all the money in the process. Susie once again steps in to help resolve the issue. However, Freddy's pride is wounded, leading him to shoot Dixon with a double-barrelled shotgun in a fit of humiliation.

Tackle Tommy Woo Woo

Season 1
Episode Number: 2
Season Episode: 2

Originally aired: Thursday March 07, 2024

Show Stars: Theo James (Eddie Horniman), Kaya Scodelario (Susie Glass), Daniel Ings (Freddy Horniman), Joely Richardson (Lady Sabrina), Vinnie Jones (Geoff Seacombe)
Guest Stars: Giancarlo Esposito (Stanley Johnston), Ray Winstone (Bobby Glass), Josh Finan (Jethro), John McGrellis (Errol), Pearce Quigley (Gospel John), Michael Vu (Jimmy Chang), Gaia Weiss (Princess Rosanne), Dar Salim (Felix), Logan Dean (Blanket), Mason Fardowe (Keith), Alexis Rodney (Emory Stevens), Stephane Fichet (Mr. Lawrence), Camilla Røholm (Clarissa Jones), Michael Elkin (George)
Summary: The toffs and their gamekeeper hunt a new kind of prey. Susie enlists some help to clean up the mess, and Halstead Manor is blessed with a holy visitor.

The episode begins with Eddie, Geoff, and Freddy chasing after Dixon's man, Jethro. When they catch Jethro, Freddy suggests killing him, but Edward opposes, stating he won't harm an innocent man.

However, Jethro manages to send an ambiguous text to his colleagues before being caught. Susie informs Tommy that they are in serious trouble. Tommy Dixon might be a low-level mobster, but his brother, Gospel, is a different story.

Gospel is a dangerous man and one of the biggest and most ruthless cocaine dealers in the country. However, as usual

Susie assures Edward that she will handle the situation. Susie contacts her associate Felix and asks him to dispose of Tommy's body discreetly.

Felix plans to bury the body in a place so obscure that even Jesus wouldn't think to look. He also suggests silencing Jethro, but Edward rejects the idea, proposing an alternative that everyone else dismisses as a bad idea.

Gospel, Tommy's brother, arrives at Halstead Manor, seeking information about his brother's whereabouts. Edward lies, claiming that Tommy left their manor after concluding his business without any issues. Gospel suspects there is more to the story than Edward is letting on.

Edward later goes to Jethro's house to retrieve his passport for smuggling him out of the country. Unfortunately, he encounters a bulky mobster, likely one of Gospel's men, and a violent struggle ensues. Using his special forces training, Edward manages to kill the mobster, but he ends up getting stabbed in the waist.

As the episode progresses, Edward attends Stanley's party. Therein, he runs into Susie, who reveals that Stanley isn't interested in the manor itself but in the underground weed business running beneath it.

It's revealed that Stanley is a drug lord who has amassed billions selling meth and now wants to enter the weed business. Stanley proposes a partnership with Susie to profit together and become rich. However, Susie seems unwilling to accept Stanley's offer.

Eventually, Tommy's body is discovered along with his phone, which contains a hilarious video of Freddy dressed as a chicken and dancing to Tommy's tunes. Also, Edward had planted evidence to frame Jethro for the murder and theft. As for Jethro, Edward releases him, giving him a bag of money and hoping he'll leave the country and never return.

As the episode concludes, Edward reveals to his brother the existence of the illegal cannabis farm in their manor's backyard. Edward also meets Susie's father, informing him that they need to renegotiate. Edward offers to make Mr. Glass much more money in exchange for vacating his land by the end of the year.

Where's My Weed At?

Season 1

Director: Nima Nourizadeh
Show Stars: Theo James (Eddie Horniman), Kaya Scodelario (Susie Glass), Daniel Ings (Freddy Horniman), Joely Richardson (Lady Sabrina), Vinnie Jones (Geoff Seacombe)
Guest Stars: Michael Vu (Jimmy), Martha Millan (Mercy), Bethany Wilson (Patty's Waitress), Ruby Sear (Gabrielle), Miki Davis (Sureya), Harry Goodwins (Jack Glass), Cameron Cook (Tonibler), Andi Jashy (King Zog), Chanel Cresswell (Tamasina Horniman), Sean Richards-Latto (Sonny), Hélder Fernandes (Spider), Logan Dean (Blanket), Mason Fardowe (Keith), Stephane Fichet (Mr. Lawrence), Preslav Shipkaliev (Zlatko)
Summary: Jimmy gets distracted on the job. As supply chain issues delay deliveries, the Horniman brothers take a risky ride to placate a dissatisfied customer.

The episode starts with Jimmy on his way to deliver the weed when he stops for a bite to eat and meets a woman named Gabrielle. What Jimmy thinks is a chance encounter turns out to be a trap. Gabrielle and her sister steal his keys and his van. This poses a problem as Tony Blair, Susie's client, is a highly impatient man.

When Susie informs Tony that they need more time to deliver the drugs, he offers her an alternative. Tony asks Susie to steal a super-modified and highly expensive Lamborghini Huracan. Since Susie's men are busy locating the van, she asks Edward to carry out the job, and he agrees.

The theft is to be carried out in two stages. The first stage involves cloning the car key, while the second one involves stealing the car itself. Since the job isn't easy, Edward asks Freddy to pose as a car dealer interested in buying the Lamborghini, and Freddy agrees. When they visit the store, they're told that the Lamborghini isn't for sale. Fortunately, fate smiles their way, and Edward manages to clone the key.

As the episode progresses, Jimmy is found unconscious and naked in the woods. When he wakes up, Jimmy talks about the wild night he had, including his chance encounter with Gabrielle, whom he calls an angel from the sky. Susie wastes no time and orders her men to find Gabrielle so they can fill the massive hole in their supply chain.

Edward manages to steal the Lamborghini and also saves a man whom Mercy has been keeping captive. This is where we learn why Tony Blair wanted the car. In reality, Tony never wanted the car; he wanted the 150 kilos of cocaine that had been sitting inside the car's trunk.

Unfortunately, trouble escalates when Mercy captures Freddy and asks Edward to return the car and the cocaine if he wants to see his brother again. Thus, Edward has no choice but to comply.

Mercy plans to make an example out of Freddy so no one double-crosses her. Susie Glass comes to the rescue and offers Mercy to Tony Blair if she lets Freddy leave unscathed. Mercy kills Tony in front of everyone and allows Edward, Susie, and Freddy to leave.

But what about the stolen van? Towards the end, Jimmy receives a call from Gabrielle, and they agree to meet again for a dinner date. As for the weed, Gabrielle and her sister torch the van with the weed in it.

An Unsympathetic Gentleman

Director: Nima Nourizadeh
Show Stars: Theo James (Eddie Horniman), Kaya Scodelario (Susie Glass), Daniel Ings (Freddy Horniman), Joely Richardson (Lady Sabrina), Vinnie Jones (Geoff Seacombe)
Guest Stars: Freddie Fox (Max Bassington), Ross Hatt (Tour Guide), David Gant (Lord Bassington Smythe), Michael Vu (Jimmy), Camilla Rutherford (Hilda), Gaia Weiss (Princess Rosanne), Ruby Sear (Gabrielle), Harry Goodwins (Jack Glass), John Thomson (Frank), Jane Lu (Wong Kei Waitress), Hon Ping Tang (Sandy), Oriana Rodrigues-Cova (Alice), Logan Dean (Blanket), Mason Fardowe (Keith), Guy Robbins (Armed Border Guard)
Summary: Susie is keen to expand the business. Eddie is determined that it won't be on his estate, so the Hornimans search for alternative locations.

The episode opens with Freddy and Jimmy on a fishing trip. Freddy confides in Jimmy, expressing that he is an asset, not a liability, to Susie and Edward and should be treated as such. Meanwhile, Susie is exploring ways to expand her weed business. She plans to open a new underground weed farm, and Edward promises to support her efforts to increase their earnings if they vacate his land by the end of their deadline.

As the episode unfolds, Edward attends the funeral of a family friend who was also a Duke and owned a luxurious mansion. Seeing an opportunity, Edward decides to approach Max, a potential heir to the estate. Max, known for his role in a shampoo advertisement, once had his face plastered on leaflets throughout the town. Edward sees a chance to strike a deal with Max that benefits them both.

Max reluctantly agrees to help Edward, but only if Edward can assist him with a major problem he is facing. You see, Max's family is being blackmailed by a mysterious man who claims to possess documents that could ruin their reputation. With an important Hollywood audition looming, Max cannot afford any risks.

On the other side of town, Jimmy meets up with Gabrielle and shares details about his job. Intrigued, Gabrielle asks to see where Jimmy works. Jimmy hesitates, knowing it could be tricky, but eventually caves to Gabrielle's persuasion and leads her to the secret weed lab. It is clear that Jimmy still can't see that it was Gabrielle who stole his van that morning.

Additionally, in the same episode, it is revealed that Geoff and Mrs. Halstead are working tirelessly to find an alternative location where Susie can conduct her illegal business activities.

Edward and Susie manage to track down the blackmailer, Francis, who used to be a renowned journalist whose career had taken a nosedive. Francis hands over the documents as promised, and Edward insists that Francis accompany him to Max's estate for the ransom amount. Despite his curiosity, Edward doesn't peek at the contents of the documents.

It's revealed that Francis wasn't blackmailing Max's father but Max himself. Under pressure, Max leads them to an underground chamber filled with paintings of Adolf Hitler. Shockingly, Max is a fervent supporter of Hitler, even going as far as preserving Hitler's testicle.

This is the secret he's been desperately hiding, as it would ruin his career if exposed. Things take a bizarre turn when a scuffle breaks out between Max and Francis, resulting in a German shepherd swallowing Hitler's preserved testicle. Eventually, Susie intervenes and, through her forceful methods, compels Max to comply with her demands.

As the episode draws to a close, Edward returns to his estate, where his mother, Sabrina, gives him the exciting news. Sabrina has managed to secure a location for Susie's weed farm — their neighbor had agreed to lease his 2000 acres of land to them for a generous amount.

I've Hundreds of Cousins

Season 1

Episode Number: 5

Season Episode: 5

Originally aired: Thursday March 07, 2024

Show Stars: Theo James (Eddie Horniman), Kaya Scodelario (Susie Glass), Daniel Ings (Freddy Horniman), Joely Richardson (Lady Sabrina), Vinnie Jones (Geoff Seacombe)
Guest Stars: Kristofer Hivju (Florian de Groot), Laurence O'Fuarain (JP), Ray Winstone (Bobby Glass), Karen Bartholomew (Prison Warden), Stephane Fichet (Mr. Lawrence), Logan Dean (Blanket), Mason Fardowe (Keith), Chanel Cresswell (Tamasina Horniman), Michael Vu (Jimmy), Will Backer (Martin Ward), Leah McNamara (Kellie Ann Ward), Hughie Blacker (Jordan Ward), John Connors (Car Keys Chris), Amanda Minihan (Maria Ward), Forrest Bothwell (Francie Ward), Liran Nathan (Belgian Waiter), Harry Goodwins (Jack Glass), Josh Finan (Jethro)
Summary: Distribution issues in Europe and a theft on the farm cause a headache for Eddie and Susie — until they make a new acquaintance who can help them out.

The episode opens with Susie Glass visiting her father in his specialized prison, which resembles more of a mansion with abundant facilities than a typical jail. Susie reveals to Bobby that since Edward has helped them find two more locations to expand their business, he believes he has fulfilled his end of the bargain, and all that's left is for them to relocate their labs.

However, Susie's father insists they cannot let Edward go, considering him too valuable a catch. Mr. Glass even suggests that Edward has gotten the taste of their illegal business and might be planning to stay. However, when Susie asks Edward about this, he vehemently denies it.

Since Edward has military training, Susan thinks he can help her with her current problem. Susan smuggles around 80 million pounds worth of weed every year from the port of Zeebrugge. However, they've hit a roadblock recently, with several shipments seized by the Belgian Federal Police.

Florian de Groot, the man in charge at Zeebrugge port, is now demanding an extra 1.5 million pounds to ensure smooth operations. During the meeting, Susan tries to negotiate the bribe down to 1.2 million pounds, but Edward suggests finding an alternative approach, as Florian is not trustworthy.

Before they can come to an agreement, someone cuts the power to the lab and tries to steal the generator. To their surprise, the thieves turn out to be a group of kids and a woman from the Ward family. The woman explains that they had to steal the generator to keep the kids warm as they were sleeping in the cold. Edward, being sympathetic, decides to let the Wards keep one of the generators as a charitable gesture.

The next morning, Susie and Edward visit JP Ward, who happens to be aware of their illegal underground weed lab. JP agrees to keep quiet about it if they allow him to join their operation. Susie agrees to consider his proposal on the condition that he helps them smuggle their products to Europe.

JP agrees, and as a gesture of goodwill, Edward allows the Wards to use their land to park their caravans. True to their word, JP and his cousins get to work immediately and successfully smuggle millions of pounds worth of weed by hiding it inside a statue of the Virgin Mary. However, Florian eventually catches on to Susie's smuggling methods and figures out how she has been moving her weed across Europe.

Trouble escalates when someone breaks into the lab and steals four million pounds. Suspicion falls on the Wards, and when Edward confronts JP Ward, he becomes defensive and leaves the estate. Edward puts two and two together and concludes that Florian is the real crook. Edward and Susie arrange a meeting with Florian, where they poison his food. In exchange for the antidote, they demand to know who really stole the money.

The thief is revealed to be Keith, the bald mobster who previously tried to frame Edward. As the episode nears its end, Edward reconciles with JP. As for Keith, he is shot at point-blank range by JP. Before dying, Keith warns Edward not to trust Susie and reveals that Jethro never left the country; he was killed on Susie's orders.

Summary:	Eddie's doubts about Susie continue to grow. But there's 15 million pounds of dirty money to be laundered before she'll consider leaving the estate.

The episode opens with Edward visiting Geoff in his cottage. Edward admits to Geoff that the latter was right about Susie Glass all along, and now, if Edward tries to walk away, he could end up like Jethro. Geoff advises Edward to be patient and see how things unfold but also warns him to be prepared for any situation that may arise.

As the episode progresses, Susan presents Edward with a new problem that requires his help. She asks for a three-month extension because they need to launder 15 million pounds before they can leave the estate. Susan takes Edward to meet Chucky, the man responsible for laundering their money. Chucky is proud of his skills, especially when it comes to turning money into legitimate funds, claiming that nobody does it better than him.

Trouble escalates when Chucky catches Jack, Susie's brother, having an affair with his wife in the washroom. To make matters worse, Jack punches Chucky in the face when confronted. Enraged, Chucky refuses to help Susie Glass and even puts a hit out on Jack. With no other options, Susie calls in a favor to have Jack stay at the Halstead Manor until the night of his big fight.

Henry comes to Edward's rescue and offers to introduce him to someone who can solve his problem. Henry takes Edward to meet Thick Rick, whom he describes as the most boring man on the planet. During their first meeting, Rick delivers a lengthy lecture on how he plans to launder the money, covering everything from offshore accounts to onshore investments. Edward is impressed by Rick's plan and agrees to work with him. However, Susie prefers that Edward use Chucky for the money laundering, but Edward refuses Eventually, Edward realizes that Susie and Bobby have no intention of leaving his estate... ever! When confronted, Susie reveals her true colors, suggesting that Edward is too deeply involved to escape. However, Edward warns her not to mistake his kindness for weakness. He declares that if necessary, he is prepared to go to war with the Glass Family.

Edward meets with Stanley, seeking his help to resolve a rather complicated situation. He asks Stanley to handle the problem delicately so that the Glass Family can emerge from it unharmed. Meanwhile, Henry summons Susie to his office and reveals that he knows about the weed lab, and declares that he is taking over the business.

He gives Susie an ultimatum: if she agrees without resistance, her brother Jack will not be harmed. Susie warns Henry that he is treading into dangerous territory and is planning to wage a war he is not intellectually equipped to see through.

Not Without Danger

Show Stars: Theo James (Eddie Horniman), Kaya Scodelario (Susie Glass), Daniel Ings (Freddy Horniman), Joely Richardson (Lady Sabrina), Vinnie Jones (Geoff Seacombe)
Guest Stars: Ray Winstone (Bobby Glass), Giancarlo Esposito (Stanley Johnston), Harry Goodwins (Jack Glass), Michael Vu (Jimmy), Logan Dean (Blanket), Gary Beadle (Thick Rick), Jasmine Blackborow (Charlotte Horniman), Alexis Rodney (Emory Stevens), Chanel Cresswell (Tamasina Horniman), Stephane Fichet (Mr. Lawrence), Nigel Havers (Lord Whitecroft), Jasper Ryan-Cater (S), Max Beesley (Collins), Mark Rhino Smith (Mo Rahim), Ruby Sear (Gabrielle), Miki Davis (Sureya), John McGrellis (Errol), Pearce Quigley (Gospel John)
Summary: Bent on vengeance, Susie goes against her father's orders. Eddie offers to help her but is less certain than ever about where his allegiances lie.

The episode begins with Jimmy visiting Edward and updating him on the events of the previous night. Jimmy informs him that Jack lost the fight and sustained life-threatening injuries. Thanks to Jimmy, Edward manages to track Susie at her house and offers his condolences for Jack's situation.

He also clarified that he had no involvement in the incident. Edward offers to help Susie take down Henry, but she refuses, insisting she can handle the situation herself. It's clear that Susie is planning something significant.

Susie visits her father and informs him that Jack's prognosis is looking positive. During their conversation, it is revealed that Susie has already eliminated two of Henry's men but has been unable to locate Henry himself.

Bobby, her father, urges Susie to stop and allow him to handle the situation. However, Susie's determined expression suggests that she has no intention of backing down.

Meanwhile, Edward meets Stevens, an associate of Stanley's, who tries to convince Edward that Stanley has nothing to do with the attack on Jack. Stevens then asks Edward for a list of the manors used by Bobby Glass for his weed lab operations. Stanley plans to use this list to gain leverage over Bobby Glass.

Edward consults his mother about the same, who reveals that years ago, Archibald attended a dinner at Fairbourne along with 11 other lords. Since the Fairbourne estate now belongs to Tibsy, the Horniman brothers decide to visit him.

At the manor, Edward discovers the names of the other Dukes from Tibsy's diary. However, the situation takes a turn for the worse, and Freddy ends up losing his trousers while Edward loses his watch.

Henry figures he can't wait for Susie to come to him and decides to take the fight to her. He warns Susie that if she comes near any of his men again, he will have her killed. Susie realizes that she can no longer stay at her apartment now that Henry knows where she lives. She also suspects that there is a rat among their ranks who has been feeding information to the enemy.

When asked about it, Jimmy confesses that he may have accidentally revealed Susie's whereabouts to Gabrielle. Edward asks Jimmy to arrange a meeting with Gabrielle. Therein, Gabrielle admits that she doesn't know anyone named Henry Collins and was actually hired by Stanley Johnston.

It turns out that Stanley not only ordered Gabrielle to steal Jimmy's van but also sabotaged Susie's smuggling operations across Europe. All this time, Stanley has been manipulating events from behind the scenes to gain an advantage. Henry was also working for Stanley, but his restlessness landed Jack in comatose.

Now, Susie plans to use Gabrielle, threatening to shoot her if she even thinks about double-crossing her. As the episode nears its end, Edward hands the list to Stevens. Stevens immediately orders Henry to murder Jack, but he is captured by Susie. It is then that Henry reveals that Stanley has been working with Edward all along.

The Gospel According to Bobby Glass

Season 1
Episode Number: 8
Season Episode: 8

Originally aired: Thursday March 07, 2024
Writer: Matthew Read
Director: David Caffrey
Show Stars: Theo James (Eddie Horniman), Kaya Scodelario (Susie Glass), Daniel Ings (Freddy Horniman), Joely Richardson (Lady Sabrina), Vinnie Jones (Geoff Seacombe)
Guest Stars: Joshua McGuire (Pete Spencer), Laurence O’Fuarain (JP), Ray Winstone (Bobby Glass), Giancarlo Esposito (Stanley Johnston), Alexis Rodney (Emory Stevens), Harry Goodwins (Jack Glass), Jasmine Blackborow (Charlotte Horniman), Pearce Quigley (Gospel John), Chanel Cresswell (Tamasina Horniman), John McGrellis (Errol), Shane Walker (Joey), Michael Vu (Jimmy Chang), Ruby Sear (Gabrielle), Stephane Fichet (Mr. Lawrence), Martha Millan (Mercy), Ranjit Krishnamma (Ahmed Iqbal), Nigel Havers (Lord Whitecroft), Max Beesley (Collins), Logan Dean (Blanket), Gary Beadle (Thick Rick), Po Wong (Mr. Kawasaki), Will Rowlands (Vlad / Stinky Petes Heavy)
Summary: A familiar face returns to settle a score with Freddy. Bobby decides it’s time to retire and wants Eddie and Susie to make the necessary arrangements.

The episode begins with a captivating monologue from Stanley Johnston, who discusses his beliefs. He argues that there’s nothing wrong with conformity as long as one is aware that they are conforming.

In simpler terms, Stanley may appear to be a kind and harmless businessman, but in reality, he is quite the opposite. He is a wolf in sheep’s clothing.

Gospel John returns to Halstead Manor, seeking revenge after discovering that it was Freddy who killed his brother and lied about it. He surrounds the manor with his men and demands that Freddy surrender, or there’ll be a blood-bat. John gives Freddy five minutes to decide, putting him in a very difficult position.

Realizing that surrendering is the only way to protect his family, Freddy agrees to give himself up. However, Edward disagrees with this decision. Just as Gospel John is preparing to storm the mansion, he receives a call from Bobby Glass.

Bobby offers to make it worth his while if John agrees to leave without any bloodshed. Gospel John accepts the offer and departs from the manor.

Bobby Glass calls Susie and Edward together and urges them to reconcile and become friends again, explaining that their actions were motivated by concern for their loved ones.

Bobby also reveals his decision to retire, intending to sell the business to the highest bidder. He asks Edward to assist Susie in securing the best offer possible.

"You’re playing right into Stanley’s hand," Edward tells Bobby, warning him against his decision. However, Bobby is firm in his decision and refuses to change his mind.

The duo then visits potential clients, including Stanley, and informs them that if they are interested in acquiring the weed business, they must submit their bids by the end of the week.

From the beginning, Eddie wanted to get out of the weed business he inherited. But as the series nears its end, something changes, and Edward decides to bid as well. The problem is, he doesn't have the money for it. So, he strikes a deal with the 11 Dukes and even JP, who has made millions smuggling drugs across Europe, to gather a few million.

Sabrina, the Duchess, also loans Edward ten million pounds by selling her assets and expensive paintings. Edward also approaches Henry Collins and offers to make all his problems disappear if he lends him 15 million pounds in exchange for a fair ownership stake.

Edward even convinces Susie to pour in 35 million and become his partner. In the end, Edward manages to gather around 200 million dollars for his bid.

Edward is determined to take over the business, no matter what. Besides putting in a bid, he hatches a plan to ensure things go his way. Even though he has managed to raise millions, it's clear that he could never outbid Stanley, one of the richest men in the country.

So, with the help of his new friend Henry Collins, Edward has Stanley arrested for tax evasion. With Stanley out of the picture, Edward moves on to deal with Mercy, Peter, and Collins. But in a twist, Bobby reveals that he lied about selling the business.

Bobby has planned it all to test Edward's leadership abilities. Convinced of Edward's intellectual prowess, Bobby accepts Edward's 235 million offer and makes him his partner.
