Summary: Harrow is drawn into reopening a closed case after quitting his job, even as he tries to re-connect with his estranged daughter. When a body is found in the river he finds himself drawn back to the Coroner's office.

As the episode begins, we see someone dumping a body into the water. After the intro, Dr. Daniel Harrow is shown watching a western. His boss Maxine Pavich interrupts and tells him to get to work. Harrow refuses to perform an autopsy on a dead clown. He gives Maxine a quick rundown of how the man died while doing yoga. Later, Harrow tells Maxine that she should fire him. She threatens to stop his pay, if he doesn't do his work. She also tells him to apologize to Dr. Fairly. Daniel does so. Then, Harrow gets a phone call and rushes to the hospital. He learns that his daughter, Fern, took something. When he arrives, she is already gone. She watches her escape in a taxi.

He gets in touch with his ex Stephanie. Stephanie hasn't heard from Fern. That night, Daniel finds Bruce Reimers in his boat. Bruce wants him to reopen the case into his daughter's death. Bruce is adamant that Olivia didn't kill herself. Daniel insists he could only change the system from the outside. Daniel finds some of his items missing. He manages to track down Fern at the nearest pawn shop. Daniel promises Fern that he'll quit his job and take her to Bora Bora. In the morning, Daniel gives Maxine his resignation letter. Then, he runs into Fairly. Fairly is excited to get Daniel's office. Simon waits for Daniel outside. He wants to know why he is leaving. He doesn't believe that he can learn anything from Fairly. Daniel doesn't give an answer, but he promises that Simon is smart and will be fine.

Then, Daniel begins preparing his boat. Fern watches from a distance. Daniel visits Bruce. Since he has quit his job, he agrees to help. Bruce explains that he believes Olivia was killed by her boyfriend Kurt Calanna. He also lets Daniel look at Olivia's apartment, which he has been renting. Daniel checks out the crime scene. Bruce shows him that Olivia carved KU on the cabinet near the ground. He also insists that Olivia was off booze and drugs. Stephanie finds Fern at home. She learns about the planned Bora Bora trip. Fairly finds Harrow at work. He is performing an autopsy on Olivia's body. Fairly admits that nothing was found under her nails. Simon enters. Fairly reminds him that he is still his assistant. Soon, Maxine finds out and ridicules Harrow. Olivia's body is scheduled to be destroyed in three days, so Harrow has very little time. Maxine admits that Bruce has been a pest about reopening the case.

Eventually, Maxine caves and gives Harrow three days. With help from Simon, Harrow manages to log into Fairly's account. He learns that Bryan Nichols investigated Olivia's case. Harrow tracks him down right away. He is also introduced to Soroya Dass. Nichols isn't willing to give up much information. However, Daniel seems to get along well with Dass. Daniel speaks with Kurt and his new girlfriend. Kurt maintains his innocence. He doesn't say why he didn't arrange to pick up the body. Later, Harrow continues investigating the case. He learns from Fairly that there was a suicide note. He checks it out and it blames Bruce. Daniel immediately believes that Bruce might have sexually abused his daughter. He speaks with Bruce, who admits that Olivia was on antidepressants because of him.

Daniel is no longer willing to help Bruce. Stephanie tracks down Daniel. She tells him that he better not mess up the Bora Bora trip. The following day, Daniel learns that Kurt has arranged to take the body. This makes him suspicious. He heads to the police station and speaks with Nichols. He learns that Kurt's alibi was his mother. Daniel speaks with a neighbor. Then, he speaks with Kurt's mother. He is convinced that Kurt wasn't home when Olivia died. Daniel revisits the crime scene. He finds a cellphone hidden in a vent. It shows paperwork. Kurt sold his worthless properties to Olivia to unload his debts. They believe that Kurt must have killed Olivia after she found the paperwork. Bruce finally explains why he was responsible for Olivia being on antidepressants. He worked all the time when she was little and didn't spend much time with her.

Harrow inspects the body again. He calls Fern and speaks with her briefly. Then, he finds that Olivia suffered from a chipped tooth recently. He and Simon work together to unravel the mystery. When they arrive for Olivia's body, Maxine learns that it has gone missing. Daniel tracks down Kurt. He smashes Kurt's hand. Maxine bails him out. Daniel learns that the x-ray of Kurt's hand discovered a tooth chip. He is arrested. Maxine reveals that they finally found Olivia's body. Bruce is allowed to see the body. Later, Daniel takes the body out. Then, he is confronted by Soroya. She shows him a body found in the water. Daniel speaks with Simon about the body. He returns to the boat that night and tells Fern that he cannot go to Bora Bora. He returns and throws a pair of scissors of sort into the water. Then, we see the first scene again, It is Daniel, who is tossing the body into the water.

Summary: Harrow tracks his daughter, Fern, who is squatting with her boyfriend. A murder case leads him into the world of ancient weaponry, and he finds himself in an ethics dilemma in the "River Bones" case regarding evidence.

As the episode begins, several young girls find the body of a dead woman. After the intro, Dr. Daniel Harrow inspects the severed finger. He tries calling Fern, but she doesn't answer. Then, Daniel is ridiculed by Maxine for resigning and un-resigning. She agrees to put Daniel on the case of the bones. Daniel speaks with Soroya and Nichols about the body. He estimates that the body was in the water for two to six years. After they leave, Daniel tells Simon that they'll need the femur to identify the body. Simon begins working to extract it.

Daniel gets a call from Soroya. He meets with her and learns about the new body. Nichols tells them that the woman is 40-year-old Phillipa Wedburg. She worked for a ride-sharing service.

Soroya and Daniel look in the wooded area. They eventually find footprints and one with a flat indentation. It is suspected that Phillipa was likely chased. After the victim's phone is unlocked, her last client is tracked down. He is taken in for questioning. The man insists that his phone was stolen at a pub. Meanwhile, Fern and her boyfriend are forced to flee the house that they're squatting in. Daniel and Simon inspect Phillipa's body. She has a small cut on her chin, which leads them to believe she was held at knifepoint. After the autopsy is complete, Daniel gets a call from Soroya. She invites him to a pub. When he arrives, he discovers that it is police business. Nichols and Soroya speak with the bartender, Charlotte Cumerford. She allows them to watch the surveillance video. Sure enough, the man's wallet was stolen just like he said.

Charlotte tells Daniel that he is screwed, because he is under Soroya's spell. Back at the office, Daniel gets a visit from Phillipa's daughter, Caterina. She wants to see her mother. Daniel talks her out of it. Fern and her boyfriend find another place to squat. That night, Daniel finds Stephanie in his boat. His guitar has been smashed. Stephanie is not happy. She makes it clear that she doesn't want to see Daniel for a while. Daniel examines a doll nearby. This gives him an idea. He believes that Phillipa might have been killed with an arrow. He checks her heart and finds a piece of wood. Simon is instructed to hunt for someone in the area who sales European ash arrows. Daniel visits Jack Twine. They speak about Jack's time as a medical examiner. He is asked about fabricating evidence. He admits that he should have once, but didn't.

During the visit, Daniel is briefly introduced to Hovard. Daniel spots a picture of Jack riding a horse. It gives him another idea. He returns to the crime scene and checks out the footprint once again. The following day, he and Soroya go for a ride. He explains that the killer might have used a crossbow. They visit a man, who sells such items. They visit the dealer, Lufton. He insists that he reports all of his sales. They soon find out that he is lying. He is taken to the station. There, we see that Lufton is in a sex tape with two people. He gave them a crossbow in exchange for sex. The video shows the man's face. Soon, Blake Poyner and his girlfriend, Anna, are arrested, but set free. Daniel notices a scar on Blake's hand. Daniel doesn't believe that Anna was involved in the sex tape. That night, Daniel contacts Nichols and learns that Blake's wound stems from a suicide attempt when he was younger.

The following day, Daniel visits Blake's home. He speaks with Anna and snoops around. He finds weird candles, before being run off by Blake. At the office, Daniel learns that the candle's wick contains human skin. He speaks with Carol at the school and learns that the bartender Charlotte was suspended for stealing cadavers. Daniel visits her house after notifying Soroya. He finds all kinds of weird stuff. He is soon confronted by Blake and Charlotte. Daniel talks to Charlotte about the murder. They prepare to shoot Daniel. He insists that Blake should take the shot. His hand fails him again. Daniel manages to escape death. Soroya and the others arrive in time to arrest the murderers. Phillipa's daughter is allowed to see the body. Later, Daniel visits Lewison. He pays the man to track Fern's phone. Daniel visits the place where she is staying and pleads his case through the door.

When Daniel returns, he learns that Simon has extracted DNA from the bone. He waits for Simon and Soroya to leave. Then, he visits Hovard and gets his DNA. Jack catches him. Daniel returns and swaps out the DNA with Hovard's.

Summary: Harrow and Dass head north on a crocodile hunt, Harrow is afraid of reptiles. He needs information on a boat and sends Simon to his yacht, where he surprises Fern. Simon discovers a new clue in the River Bones case.

As the episode begins, an old man runs over an alligator in his driveway. The alligator is cut open and an arm is found inside. Dr. Daniel Harrow calls Jack Twine. Twine comes up with an excuse, so he doesn't have to speak with Daniel. Daniel tracks down Fern's phone. He finds it in the trash with a note on the back. When Daniel returns to work, he speaks with Simon and Soroya. He learns that the DNA from the body didn't match anyone. His Hovard plan worked. Daniel gets into an argument with Fairly about their work. The team learns about the arm. Daniel checks it out and realizes that it smells like garlic. Daniel and Simon also notice a precise cut on the arm.

Daniel speaks with Maxine. He tells her that it appears the victim had a tattoo cut from his arm. Maxine forces Daniel to go to North Queensland with Soroya. Stephanie learns that the school will be laying off. She immediately suspects that she will be the one let go. Jesse believes he will be the one to go. Step calls Daniel as he lands in North Queensland. He tells her about the phone and tells her that he'll try to be home for Fern's birthday. Daniel and Soroya soon meet Sgt. Gabriel Capello. He tells them about the case. He explains that the harbor has been locked down for the time being. Daniel and Soroya check out the crocodile. A tracking device is found and Daniel takes liquid from the intestines.

They speak with the guy in charge. He shows them the animal's movements over the past few days. Then, they meet with Millicent Bruce. She takes them to the crocodile's meat safe. Soroya eventually convinces Daniel to get into the water. After a little while, they manage to uncover the body. Steph gets in touch with Fern. She tells her about her plans for her birthday. Fern also gets her birth certificate. She doesn't say why she wants it. She promises she isn't going to marry Callan. Daniel and Soroya check out the victim's body. Daniel uses a machine to confirm that the victim was poisoned. Then, they learn from Gabriel that there are three possible suspects. They speak with Alister and Lena Penn first.

They also chat with a young boy. Then, they speak with Mr. Abalard. He brings them inside for a drink. Daniel is fascinated with the man's boat. Soroya seems suspicious of the man, but Daniel doesn't. Gabriel invites the couple to a birthday party. Soroya convinces Daniel to go by promising to wear something nice. We jump to the party. Daniel continues contemplating the murder. He wonders how the man was poisoned. Soroya dances with the locals, while Daniel speaks with Bruce. Bruce believes that Daniel is in love with Soroya. He denies it. Daniel prepares to leave, but Soroya stops him. He tells her about his daughter's birthday. Eventually, Soroya gives Daniel a kiss. Fern stays in Daniel's boat. She finds birthday cards he tried to write to her. Daniel returns to the body.

He calls Simon and tells him to visit his boat and look for a magazine about boats. Simon reveals that he found a medical plate on the river body. Daniel encourages him not to do anything about it, until he returns. Daniel watches at Abalard gets rid of dead rats. Simon runs into Fern. He tells her that Daniel misses her. Daniel gets the boat information. He suspects that Abalard killed the real owner and took the boat. They visit Abalard. He refuses to let them search his boat. Gabriel goes for a warrant. During this time, Abalard tries to flee. Soroya manages to stop him, but she gets wounded. Daniel and Gabriel check the boat. They find exotic reptiles inside. Gabriel explains that the man was smuggling reptiles out of Australia. Daniel visits Soroya at the hospital. Jack calls Daniel and tells him that Hovard has died. Daniel refuses to tell him what he is hiding.

Daniel finds Lena in the hospital. She has been poisoned. He visits the Alister and Lena's boat. He finds poison residue inside, before being attacked by Alister. Alister transports Daniel out on a boat. He admits that Lena poisoned the boat's real owner, so they could take it and sell it. Daniel manages to get out of his restraints and knock out Alister. He takes him back to land. Daniel and Soroya return home. Later that night, Daniel calls Stephanie. She invites him over, but changes her mind. In the morning, Daniel learns that Simon got the medical plate and it has a serial number on it.

Summary: Two boys find the body of a woman, involved in a child abduction case. Harrow and Dass vie to find out about the River Bones clue. Harrow gets there first. After her boyfriend is mugged Fern makes an agreement with a drug dealer.

As the episode begins, two young boys prepare to climb into a tree. When they do, they find a human skull. The drunken property owner, Connelly, quickly becomes the main suspect in the murder. Daniel checks out the medical brace. Simon interrupts him and prevents him from getting rid of it. Soroya Dass learns about the brace and the serial number right away. She challenges Harrow to see who can uncover the brace's owner first. Daniel speaks with Fairly. He learns that the company that made the brace went bankruptcy. Fairly tells him to check St. Catherine's hospital. Daniel visits the facility and is shown the massive trove of documents. Soroya arrives soon. They agree that it will take them forever to go through the documents. Soroya drags Harrow away to the new crime scene.

Harrow believes that the victim has been there for a few years. Nichols and the team search Connelly's house. The man's wife has been missing for quite some time, but her never reported her missing. They break open a cupboard and find a bunch of knives inside. That night, Harrow visits Jack. Harrow admits that he isn't ready to talk about it just yet. He also asks him about the surgeons that got in trouble while working with the medical brace company. Fern and Callan agree to work hard, so they can afford to rent a place. For the night, they plan to sleep in another vacant building. The following day, Harrow tells Dass that he doesn't believe the victim was Connelly's wife. The body was in poor shape similar to a homeless person. Simon and Harrow find blade marks on the bones. Dass is convinced that Connelly is responsible.

Harrow believes that the victim was stabbed with a double-bladed knife. However, one wasn't discovered in Connelly's collection. Harrow reports the information to Nichols right away. Then, Harrow visits Connelly. He finds the man hanging in his wife's room. He manages to cut him down and save his life. Next, Harrow learns that the victim was 31-year-old Sally Chenery. She had been homeless for a long time. She got in trouble for kidnapping a child, but gave it back the following day. They speak with a filmmaker, who works with Sally. They watch an interview with Sally and discover a rude man ordering her away from the camera. The filmmaker explains that Sally thought the child was hers, but DNA proved otherwise. They set out to track the man down. The knife is finally found. Stephanie gets a visit from a debt collector. She has no choice, but to call Harrow and ask for money.

When they meet, they also run into Dass. Jesse Walsh joins them moments later. The group shares a drink together. Dass and Stephanie chat about Harrow for awhile, before they split up. Harrow tells Dass that he didn't think it was over with Stephanie until that night. She is forced to leave when she gets a call from her sister. When Harrow returns home, he has a conversation with his homeless friend, Lindsay. He puts Lindsay on the man's trail. Fern gets a call from her father. She ignores it. Then, she and her boyfriend are run off by a security guard. She tells Callan that she can't keep sleeping in vacant buildings. When Stephanie returns home, she finds Fern and Callan sleeping in her shed. Lindsay wakes up Harrow in the middle of the night. He tells him that the man is Phil Ritson. Harrow meets with Phil the following day. He admits to being the man in the video, but explains that he was only concerned about Sally's health.

Sally had a disease of sorts and needed medical attention. Phil also admits he doesn't know whether he was the child's father. Harrow gets in touch with Fairly. Fairly explains that the woman might have had ovarian cancer. Harrow returns to the scene and climbs into the tree. When he does, he finds the camera and the victim's hand. Dass arrives and photographs the evidence. They visit the neighbor Cassandra. She insists she didn't know the victim. However, she has a young son, Noah. After their conversation with Cassandra, Harrow and Dass suspect that Noah might have been Sally's son. Callan tells Fern that he took their money to buy drugs from Billie. He wanted to sell them. Instead, Callan was beaten by Billie's men and the money was stolen. Fern promises to speak with Billie.

Dass and Harrow check out the photographs from the camera. It is pictures of Noah and Cassandra. They check out Cassandra's old house. They find blood under the floors. Cassandra is arrested. She promises that she is innocent. Fern visits Billie. She gets 1,000 dollars worth of drugs and promises to give Billie 1,500 dollars. Harrow speaks with Dass. He explains that Sally's was supposed to be a twin and that threw off her DNA. She was actually Noah's mother. Harrow also begins to suspect that Noah might be the killer. He speaks with him the following day. Noah admits that he stabbed her when trying to protect himself and Cassandra. Harrow receives a package containing photographs and items belonging to Noah and Sally. Harrow and Simon learn that Maxine is in a relationship with Nichols. They're both weirded out.

Dass calls Harrow and tells him that she has a whole team on the search for the owner of the medical brace. He uses Jack's information to track down Dr. Whittemore. He gets the documents and escapes, before Dass and the police arrive. Daniel burns the documents.

Summary: After a woman dies from a drug overdose Fern becomes a suspect. Pavich orders the River Bones be cremated. A second body leads to the supplier.

As the episode begins, Fern attends a party. We see that she is selling Billie's drugs. Xantia Couttas is seen exiting the party. Grace Mulgrew buys drugs from Fern. Xantia visits a locker and continues on. Then, she is attacked from behind. Grace goes bonkers and jumps out of the window. After the intro, Daniel gets a call from Soroya. He meets with her at the club. Daniel's old pal Jill McCloud and Nichols are there as well. Daniel learns about the woman's overdose. He goes against Nichols' wishes and cuts the body open without permission in hopes of saving another victim. Meanwhile, Fern tells Callan about her troubles. Daniel speaks with Pete at the hospital. He learns that the other victim isn't doing so well.

Daniel suggests that she might be suffering from long QT syndrome. Pete promises to look into it. Nichols shows Daniel a picture taken from outside of the club. It shows his vehicle at the club. Daniel denies it. Meanwhile, Fern flushes the rest of the pills. She receives a call from Daniel. She mentions the dead girl. Fern promises that she okay. Fern tells Callan that they need to speak with Billie. Stephanie's vehicle gets repossessed. Simon and Daniel check out Xantia's body. They find soil lodged in her throat. Fern visits Billie. She finds him overdosed on the ground. She calls for help, takes the pills and disappears. Maxine reprimands Harrow for cutting on the body outside of the club. Then, she suggests cremating the river bones. Daniel speaks with Soroya about their mistake.

Then, Daniel speaks with McCloud. She tells him that she wants to speak with Fern. He then meets Fern. She gives him the drugs. Daniel takes Fairly's vehicle. He calls Steph and tells her not to give the cops Fern's number. He takes some of the pills to Pete and gives the rest to Nichols and McCloud. They visit Billie at the hospital. They agree to check out his recent calls. Daniel speaks with Steph about Fern's current situation. He insists that it is a big misunderstanding. Fairly tells Soroya that he would have waited for the corner. He also tells Soroya that Daniel dropped out of school. Hannah is saved thanks to Fern turning in the drugs. Soroya visits Daniel.

They chat about their pasts. One thing leads to another and they wind up sleeping together. McCloud and Nichols manage to track the phone to Callan. When they visit his house, they take Fern into custody. Simon calls Daniel in the morning and tells him about the river bones. Then, Soroya calls and tells him about Fern. Daniel speaks with Nichols, but doesn't get anywhere. Then, he speaks with Fern. He promises that he'll get her out of jail. Simon speaks with Daniel about it at the office. They turn their attention to Xantia. Daniel thinks it is weird that she had lubricant on her hands. Soroya checks out the scene again. She finds a glass with lipstick on it discarded outside. Simon and Harrow visit the spot where Xantia was found. They look around and find the lockers. Lubricant has been used on it recently.

Daniel learns about the glass as well. The police arrive and open the locker. Tons of drugs are found inside of a purse. The same red drugs are found as well. They find a voicemail on Xantia's phone. It is from Billie complaining about the pills and threatening to kill her. They rush to the hospital, but Billie makes a run for it. He is eventually run down by a truck. Fern is released from jail. When Daniel returns home, he finds his vehicle returned. Steph calls and asks about the old sleeping bag. Soroya is waiting for Daniel. They sleep together again. Fairly's car is returned, but he does get a hefty ticket. We see that Maxine is thinking about taking a job elsewhere. She gives Daniel permission to finish the autopsy. Fairly calls Soroya and tells her that Harrow might be wrong about the river bones. She looks through pictures of the potential victim.

During this same time, Steph looks for the sleeping bag. Steph finds a picture of herself with the victim, Robert Vincent Quinn. Soroya opens Quinn's profile.

Summary: Two young travelers are dead and Harrow suspects the involvement of a prominent international businessman, but vested bureaucratic forces confound him at every turn.

As the episode begins, a woman's decapitated body is discovered on the railroad tracks. After the intro, Soroya Dass continues investigating Robin Quinn. She discovers that Quinn was reported missing by his spouse Stephanie Tolson. She receives a call from Daniel. He asks her out, but she insists she is going to keep going on the case. Harrow sees something on the television about the Chinese mining giant Xiagreen making a deal in Australia. Dass stops the river bones from being cremated. The following day, Daniel arrives at the railroad track. He learns about the victim, 22-year-old Lotte Bentsen. She was a Danish media student. Dass notes that the scene doesn't have much blood. A short time later, Sue Latchford arrives and rushes the investigation, because the trains are being delayed.

Daniel tries to call Fern, but she doesn't answer. Dass asks Bryan Nichols about Robert Quinn. He admits that Quinn was hated by everyone especially Daniel. Stephanie learns that her hours are being cut at work. Dass joins Harrow and Simon at the lab. They begin inspecting Lotte's body. They discover weird marks on her knees. They agree that suicide was unlikely. Dass explains that Lotte's parents said she was happy. A nightclub stamp is found on her arm and a hand of sorts is found under Lotte's nails. The victim had unprotected sex. A swab is taken. In private, Dass asks Simon about Harrow's divorce. Simon admits he wasn't around, but was there when Steph got remarried. He admits Harrow was angry at the time. Harrow and Simon visit the crime scene to look for blood. They're unable to find any.

Steph's finances continue to worsen. She gets a visit from Dass, who tells her about Quinn possibly being dead. Harrow takes his information to Nichols. Callan scares Fern. He tells her that his uncle died and they can take his house. The house is three hours away. The river bones are returned. Harrow takes the credit and is belittled by Maxine. Steph calls Harrow and asks about Quinn. She wants to get his insurance money. That night, Harrow finds Dass on his boat. She asks him if he killed Quinn. He denies it. Fern watches them kiss from a distance. She leaves without speaking to Daniel. Nichols shows Daniel and Dass video from Lotte's social media accounts. This introduces them to her friend Janik Hartmann. Unfortunately, Hartmann is missing and won't answer his phone. Steph goes through Quinn's old belongings. She is interrupted by Fern. When Jesse arrives outside, Fern leaves.

Daniel calls a friend and learns about anise myrtle, which is used in moisturizers. This leads them to a single company. This eventually leads them to an expensive motel. When they enter, lawyers are already waiting. After a warrant is obtained, the team watches surveillance video. Steph takes Quinn's toothbrush to Simon. Sue tries to get Nichols to slow the investigation. He refuses. They find video of Lotte entering with Hartmann. They pair went to the penthouse. They check out the penthouse and it is clear that it has been cleaned thoroughly. The video never shows them leaving. They're led to a parking garage with no cameras. A grate on the ground that matches the marks on Lotte's knees. Harrow believes that blood could be inside. Hartmann's body is discovered. He has cling wrap on a portion of his teeth. When the body is transported to the morgue, Maxine won't let them perform the autopsy.

The German Embassy is stopping it from happening. Maxine shows them a video of a rented vehicle leaving the motel. After a little back and forth, Harrow and Dass conclude that Harry Wei, who is involved with the Chinese company, was somehow involved and is being protected. Harrow is kidnapped and threatened to stop investigating Wei. Police arrive at Steph's house for protection. Harrow learns about a party celebrating the business deal in Australia. He manages to get inside and speak with Wei. Wei admits to being involved. He explains that he can't face a scandal or thousands would lose their jobs. Harrow is escorted out. Back at the lab, it is confirmed that Wei's semen was found in Lotte. A burned vehicle is discovered. They learn that Wei has already left the country. Fern tries to call Steph, but she doesn't answer. Simon tells Harrow that they weren't able to get DNA from the toothbrush.

Dass tracks Quinn's cellphone activity. She joins Harrow, while Quinn's car is pulled from the water.

Summary: Dass is taken off the River Bones case. She and Harrow attend a country car accident and learn some dark secrets. Quinn's car is found, Steph is questioned, Fern finds out and tells Harrow. Fern breaks up with Cal, needing to learn more.

As the episode begins, Audrey Matheson sits in her vehicle beside of the road. Moments later, a car comes speeding by. It winds up crashing into a tree. Audrey drives right by the crash. After the intro, Daniel Harrow finds a mysterious note from Soroya. Soroya speaks with Nichols, Maxine and Nick. Soroya is removed from the river bones case. The group agrees not to tell Harrow about the discovery. Daniel runs into Fairly. Fairly has a letter from the Geneva Institute to Maxine. He believes that is on the verge of getting a promotion. Daniel takes the letter. The motor vehicle accident arrives and Daniel returns the letter to Maxine.

Fairly and Harrow are forced to work together on the case. Daniel meets with Simon. Together, they show Audrey the bodies of the victims, Kerrie and Glenn. They're her mother and brother. She tells them that Glenn was slow, so her mother drove him everywhere. Dass checks out the crash scene. She gets a call from Harrow. Dass decides to stick around and investigate the scene. Stephanie gets a visit from Nichols. She learns about the vehicle. The autopsies begin. It is discovered that Glenn was once shot in the head. It appears that the bullet has been there for many years.

Steph watches home videos of herself and Robert. Fern and Callan prepare to leave town. Before they do, Fern visits her mother and learns about the car. She calls Callan and tell him that she'll be a little longer. She tries to get ahold of Daniel, but he doesn't answer. Daniel and Dass speak with a local police officer. She tells them about the guns in town. A memorial is held for Glenn and Kerrie. Royce Gannon, who used to be the cop in town, does not attend. Dass and Daniel visit Audrey. She doesn't know anything about Glenn being shot. She does recall him bleeding after a visit to a farm.

She also insists that Glenn didn't have any enemies. Daniel gets a call from Simon. He learns that Kerrie had advanced breast cancer. He asks Audrey about plant spores in Kerrie's lungs. They are show Kerrie's greenhouse. Afterwards, Daniel gets a call from Fern. He learns about the car. Quinn's phone is discovered in the vehicle. Later that night, Daniel asks Dass about the vehicle. He seems impressed that she found it. Nichols pays a visit to Lewison. He learns that there was one person who Quinn ripped off very badly. Jesse finds Steph looking through Quinn's things. She admits that he hurt her worse than anyone knows.

Fern finally returns to Callan. The bus has already left them. Fern promises that they'll catch the next one in the morning. Harrow learns about Soroya's son who passed away. Daniel calls Steph. They contemplate what they're going to do about Quinn's car. In the morning, Daniel returns to town and looks at the bench, which is dedicated to Holly. He brings coffee to Royce. He asks Royce about Holly's disappearance. Royce explains that back then a bunch of animals were killed. It all stopped after Glenn hit his head at the farm. However, it started up again not too long ago. Royce tells Daniel to speak with Holly's best friend, Audrey. He visits her and finds bruises on her neck. Holly threatens to call the police. Then, Daniel meets with Dass at the morgue.

He tells her about Holly. They contemplate if the shooting fixed Glenn and a recent wreck messed him up again. They track down Royce. He admits that he gave Kerrie her gun back if she agreed to use it on Glenn. Daniel learns about the plants from Yellowly. Then, he visits Audrey with Dass. When Soroya leaves, Daniel hears something coming from the greenhouse. He finds a manhole and Audrey inside with Holly's bones. Audrey admits that her mother didn't want them to go near the greenhouse. She finally tells the truth. They knew that Glenn was involved. After the shooting, he changed so they didn't report him to the police. After the crash, Glenn returned to his old self and tried to attack Audrey.

Callan and Fern wait for the bus. When it arrives, Callan gets on, but Fern doesn't. It seems that their relationship is coming to an end. Nichols asks Daniel about Quinn's wedding ring. He wonders why someone would remove it. When Nichols returns to the office, he plays a voicemail from Steph to Quinn. Steph threatens to kill Quinn. At home, Steph looks at the wedding ring.

Summary: A high school student's death investigation is hampered by uncooperative classmates. Steph's home is searched. CCTV footage reveals a new suspect. Harrow is growing suspicious of Dass.

As the episode begins, we see someone rowing on the river. The woman notices a dead body nearby. After the intro, Daniel wakes up. He looks at pictures of his family. When Daniel heads to work, he finds Maxine performing an autopsy. Daniel is surprised. Before too long, Fairly enters and argues with Maxine. We learn that Fairly has already tried to get Maxine's job. Bryan tries to get in touch with Maxine, but she doesn't answer. Then, he learns about Quinn's car. One of the front tires was brand new, but the other one is worn out. Jesse finds Steph on the computer. They get into an argument and Jesse leaves. Next, Daniel meets with Soroya. He learns about the dead high school student. 17-year-old Rhys Weir was a member of the rowing team.

The boy has been dead for five hours or so. They speak with the woman in charge. She tells them that Rhys recently lost the school rowing competition. She also shows them his Instagram activity. Rhys was gay. Some of the students weren't happy with Rhys. Luke Chambers was one of them. The body is taken back to the lab. A CT scan is taken. Simon wonders whether it was indeed an accident. They discover that the boy's throat is swelled up and the windpipe is nearly blocked. Dass and Daniel try to figure out what could cause the allergic reaction. They visit the rowing club and check out the boy's locker. They find a note saying Leave him alone. A call from Simon reveals that the boy has been drinking a little. They speak with the other rowing boys. They admit that they were drinking. They explain that Rhys was the first one to leave. The boys deny knowing anything about the note.

Outside, Daniel learns that Luke is indeed angry with Rhys for losing. He admits it could cost him his scholarship. At the office, Fairly asks Daniel about Maxine and the Geneva job.

Fairly insists he will get the head job, if anyone does. Simon enters and reveals that Rhys was allergic to semen. He was giving oral sex before his death. They plan on testing the semen for DNA. Next, they speak with Julian and Sean. They try to get Sean to give his DNA. His father won't let that happen. A skull is uncovered. Nichols speaks with a mechanic about Quinn. The mechanic admits someone hacked into the sidewall with a screwdriver. Nichols learns about the skull. Fairly is put in charge of it. Maxine tells him to keep it from Harrow. Steph finds Quinn's ring. She notices debt collectors outside. She calls Dass and complains about them. During the visit, Dass finds Quinn's ring.

Back at the office, Dass learns that Steph has been under surveillance. She learns that Steph has become a person of interest. She hears the voicemail of Steph threatening him. Daniel learns that Sean's father is appealing the decision to take Sean's DNA. All of the boys are refusing to give up samples. Daniel visits Sean and pleads with him to give up his DNA anyway. Soroya runs into Fern on Daniel's boat. Fern learns that they believe Steph killed Quinn. She contacts Daniel and tells him right away. Steph's home is searched and Nichols questions her. Steph denies everything. When Daniel gets in touch with her, Steph tells him to ask his girlfriend. Daniel chats with Dass and tells her about the police raid. Daniel forces Dass out of his boat. At work, Simon tries to comfort Daniel. Simon reveals he got the DNA markings from the semen. Daniel thinks it is weird that the boy didn't have algae on his scalp. They take a cast of the boy's head and visit the murder scene.

The wound doesn't match the edge of the step. They find fountain at Sean's home that perfectly matches the head wound. They speak with Sean. They believe that the two were lovers. They encourage Sean to tell the truth. His dad exits and gets angry with him. Julian knew, because he caught the boys together. Sean admits that it is all true. Julian pushed him and he cracked his skull. Julian tries to attack Sean. Instead, Simon gives him a punch in the stomach. Daniel gets him bailed out of jail. Rhys's father is allowed to see his son's body. Daniel encourages Simon to take the night off. He gives him the keys to the Fiat. Steph runs into Dass. Steph doesn't want to talk with her. Dass tells her to be truthful with the police, because they're trying to pin it on her. Nichols tells Dass that Steph was in the hospital that day. They're back to square one. Daniel gets a visit from Dass.

Dass tells him about the alibi. Daniel learns that Quinn's skull has been found. Nichols tries to visit Maxine. Fairly mentions the Geneva gig. Nichols confronts Maxine about it. She admits she hasn't made a decision yet. Nichols suggests getting married. Daniel tells Dass about Jack Twine, who saved his life. He tells her that the antique surgeon's kit was a gift from Jack. Dass tries to look in the kit, but Daniel distracts her. Dass gets up in the middle of the night and thinks about checking it out. She doesn't open it. Nichols watches a press conference featuring Quinn. Then, he learns that video has been found of the night Quinn's tires were stabbed. They zoom in on the suspect. It is Fern.

Summary: A suspicious death at a nursing home causes Harrow to reflect on his own crime, as the investigation into Robert Quinn's murder gains momentum.

As the episode begins, we see a man in the nursing home. He is strapped to his bed. After the intro, Soroya pays a visit to Jack Twine. They speak about Daniel. They chat about Quinn too. Jack reveals that Quinn fleeced Stephanie out of a lot of money. Dass admits she wants to know whether or not Daniel is involved. At the office, Daniel speaks with Simon. Daniel admits they have been hiding Quinn's skull from him. Daniel gets interrupted by a call from Jack. Nichols shows the team the video of Fern stabbing Quinn's tires. They contemplate whether she might have had help. Nichols pinpoints Callan as a potential suspect.

Dass returns to the office and researches Harrow. She is unable to find anything about him and misconduct. She receives a call from Simon. When Daniel visits Jack, he learns that another patient Stan Wagner has died. Jack seems suspicious of it. They manage to check the man's body. Both agree that something odd is going on. They're soon run off by Rallings. Nichols visits Maxine and requests to see the time sheets for the day of Quinn's disappearance. It shows that Daniel was at work at the time. Daniel and Jack speak with the doctor in charge. They learn that the body will be going to the school. Afterwards, Jack tries to convince Daniel to break into the School of Anatomy to get a better look at the body.

Dass meets with Simon. They discuss hiding the skull from Harrow. Maxine calls Simon to her office. She wants to know about the asterisks on Daniel's time sheet. Simon suggests it is nothing, but he seems to suspect otherwise. Fern visits Steph. While she is there, Nichols arrives. Fern manages to escape out of the window after learning that they're searching for her and Callan. Simon contacts tech support to learn about the asterisks. Then, he agrees to join Daniel at the School of Anatomy. They discover a feather in Stan's throat. Fern pays Lewison to investigate a specific telephone number. Dass speaks with Fairly. Fairly admits that Daniel does stupid stuff, but he doesn't believe he is capable of murder. Daniel visits Steph. Daniel admits they're keeping him in the dark about Quinn. She forces him out and insists it is not his business. Nichols and his partner interview Callan.

Daniel visits the nursing home again. He passes by Rallings's vehicle and learns that he is a nationalist of sorts. He also finds Wagner's son in his room. The man was a war hero of sorts. He learns that there was another Eastern European resident at the home. Daniel spots Rallings being mean to the old Jewish lady, Julie Adams. Daniel threatens to go to Jo. However, Rallings threatens to tell on him for giving Jack drugs. Daniel has no choice but to remain quiet. Callan is interviewed again. He is forced to call Fern. When he does, he tells her to get rid of her phone. Callan calls Daniel and tells him about the cops trying to arrest Fern. Daniel visits the police station just as Callan is being released. Video evidence proves that Callan and Fern were at the police station when Quinn disappeared.

Daniel speaks with Callan. He learns that Callan really cares for Fern. Daniel also admits he hurt Fern by not being there for her enough. Fern gets the report from Lewison. She learns that a phone call was made to a phone booth on the day of the murder. Daniel researches Rallings. He tells Simon about the man and his suspicions. Then, he remembers a scar on Wagner. He believes that Wagner burnt off a tattoo. Maxine visits Nichols. She agrees to marry him. They romantic in the office. Daniel visits Jack and helps him in bed. Then, he speaks with Adams. It is revealed that Wagner was a Nazi. Adams killed him. Daniel agrees to do nothing to her. In return, she tells him to have Rallings's truck searched. Jack dies. Dass speaks with Daniel near his bedside. Simon receives a call from tech support. He learns that Harrow phoned in the times on the day of Quinn's murder.

Rallings is arrested. Jo tells Daniel about Dass visiting Jack earlier. Dass watches the video of Fern selling Daniel's antique surgeon kit. She notices the scissors, which were used to cut off Quinn's finger. The video also shows Daniel rebuying the kit from the pawn shop.

Summary: As Harrow deals with his most bizarre autopsy yet, Dass and Simon finally close in on the truth about who killed Robert Quinn.

As the episode begins, we see a man watching an ambulance through his window. We see that the man has killed someone. The man climbs out of the window and jumps. After the intro, Daniel speaks with Jack Twine one more time. Then, Daniel receives the murder-suicide victim. Daniel recognizes the victim, Delvin. Dass continues going over the evidence against Daniel. She pays a visit to Nichols's home. She tells him about all of the evidence against Daniel. Nichols doesn't believe that she has enough. Back at the office, Daniel begins working on the two men. When he turns around, one of the men jumps up and grabs a knife. The man busts the lock so Daniel cannot escape. The man recognizes Harrow's name. Simon speaks with Stephanie about Quinn's ring.

He learns that Steph got the ring two days after Robert went missing. The man, Tom, insists that his suicide attempt has helped him connect with two people who ruined everything. Tom believes that Daniel lied about his wife's death. He thinks that Delvin misdiagnosed her or killed her. Steph tells Simon about being hit by Robert and having to go to the hospital. Once Simon leaves, Steph tries to call Daniel. Daniel manages to recall the woman's name. Tom is mad that Daniel agreed with Delvin. They wind up getting into a fight. Tom tries to kill Daniel. He eventually stops. Fern watches as Dass meets with Simon on the boat. Dass and Simon discuss their theory that Daniel killed Quinn. Tom's leg nearly gives out. Daniel is forced to break the glass to escape and get him help. Daniel gets a voicemail from Simon. He tells Daniel to meet him at the boat and tell him about Quinn.

Simon tries to get the surgeon's kit open. Tom is rushed to the hospital and Dass looks for more evidence. Simon gets it open and finds the clippers missing. Daniel enters and admits he dropped them into the river. Dass learns about Daniel stealing the files pertaining to Quinn's broker hand. Daniel finally tells Simon the truth. He confronted Robert, because Robert was abusing Fern. They got into a fight and Daniel killed him. Simon suggests Daniel could have called the police and got off. Daniel explains that he was afraid of being away from Fern, if he went down. He admits he began cleaning up the mess right away. He tells Simon how he disposed of the body. It seems that Simon is beginning to question Daniel as a person. Simon leaves. With the new evidence, Nichol puts a warrant out on Daniel. Daniel receives a voicemail from Fern asking to meet. Maxine tries to convince Nichols to change his mind. She cannot.

Daniel finds Fern. He is taken into custody, before he can speak with her. In the back of the patrol car, Daniel chats with Harrow briefly. Maxine discovers that Daniel has no autopsies on the 3rd. Daniel's boat is search. When the surgeon's kit is opened, a different pair of scissors is found inside. Daniel is surprised. Nichols admits that those scissors couldn't have made the cut. Maxine receive a box from Twine to Daniel Inside, she finds a letter from Twine to Daniel. It suggests that Daniel was with Twine when Robert died. Despite being cleared, Dass doesn't want to talk with Daniel. Daniel speaks with Steph. He doesn't tell her the truth. Then, Daniel speaks with Maxine. He learns that she is not going to Geneva. Tom has lived, but will likely spend the rest of his days behind bars. Fairly is put in charge of Jack's autopsy. Daniel learns that Jack had been stockpiling his pills and ended up ODing on them. Once Fairly leaves, Simon enters. He confesses to swapping out the scissors.

They agree that they're in on it together now. Fern meets with Daniel that night. Callan watches from a distance. Daniel admits he killed Robert and that he knows about Fern's secret. Daniel invites Dass over, but she refuses. Later that night, Daniel listens to music and drinks. He steps onto the deck of his boat. The glass busts. Daniel realizes that he has been shot in the stomach.

Summary: Harrow recovers from a near-fatal shooting and returns immediately to work, investigating the tragic puzzle of a young mother's psychotic episode while trying to figure out who shot him.

At the start of the episode, we relive the shooting of Daniel Harrow. Daniel is rushed to the hospital. Everything goes well. Before too long, Daniel is awake and speaking to Maxine. Maxine tries to get Daniel to open up about the shooting. It is clear that he isn't sure who actually shot him. Fern visits her father a short time later. Daniel tries to be tough. He pretends that nothing is wrong. Next, Bryan Nichols visits. He interviews Daniel about the shooting, but gets nothing of interest.

One night, Daniel gets a call from Stephanie. She can't sleep because of the rain. He asks her about visiting. She confesses that she isn't ready to see him yet. She admits she knows about the murder. The next day, Simon takes Daniel out for a ride. Daniel is terrified that Simon is going to ruin his vehicle. Daniel is confident he'll be safe back at the boat. Simon tells Daniel that he still has more to learn from him. When Simon leaves, Daniel visits the shooting scene. He looks around from the boat and recalls the moment he realized he had been shot. Later that night, Daniel goes for a drink. He runs into Grace. One thing leads to another and they end up spending the night on Daniel's boat.

The following morning, Sherry Diallo goes to a store for a smoothie. She gets antsy and tries to steal one. She goes after a woman with a knife. Meanwhile, Daniel and Grace learn that they work at the same place. At work, Daniel learns that Grace is Dr. Fairly's niece. Daniel is set to be Grace's supervisor. Maxine isn't willing to let Daniel return to work right away. He needs a psych evaluation first. She tells him to look over his old case files. He does, but gets nothing of interest. Grace gets her own office. Daniel pays her a visit. They speak about Grace's uncle. They agree to end their relationship right then and there. Jacob Diallo arrives. Daniel speaks to him. Sherry has been killed by police. Daniel tells Jacob what to expect.

Fern and Callan move into an apartment. Fern is concerned that her job won't pay for the rent. Callan promises that they'll make it. He has been making money on the side. Harrow attends Sherry's autopsy. He speaks with Lyle Fairly. They spar back and forth before Grace asks Harrow to leave. Simon helps Daniel hack into Lyle's computer. Daniel finds a eulogy for his funeral. He isn't impressed. He cannot find a video of the police shooting Sherry. Simon shows him what has been uploaded online. Daniel wonders why the woman was so adamant to get her drink. He visits Jacob and asks him about Sherry's health at the time. Daniel learns that Sherry got hooked on all types of drinks after giving birth.

Jacob says it took four times to get the epidural in, but everything else went fine. Nichols follows Harrow. He reminds Daniel that he isn't working. He also gives Daniel advice for passing the psych exam. Daniel gives it a try. He is given permission to return to work. Nichols tells Daniel that they've found his shooter. He is allowed to watch an interview with Brendan Skene. Daniel doesn't seem convinced that Skene was responsible. Maxine tells Daniel that he can return to work on Monday. He looks at Sherry's body right away. Grace enters. Daniel confesses he believes Grace might have missed something. They go for a drink and discuss the case together. They believe Sherry might have had polydipsia or an unquenchable thirst.

Daniel suggests Sherry might have had a clot that dissolved. They check her again and confirm it is true. Daniel believes the epidural might have been responsible. Daniel gives Jacob the news. Grace goes to Maxine. She confesses that she only came to her conclusions thanks to Daniel. Maxine tells her that it is up to her whether or not she wants to learn from Daniel. Skene arrives dead. He had diabetes and never told the correctional officers. Daniel checks his eyes. Skene had cataracts. Daniel is more convinced than ever that Skene did not shoot him. Simon gives Daniel a recording of Fairly practicing for the eulogy. Then, he gets a call from an unknown number. It is the guy who shot him.

The stranger tells Daniel that he is going to enjoy bringing down those around him. Fern finds Fentanyl Citrate pills in the closet. Cops burst through the door and the episode ends.

Summary: Two base jumpers die. Harrow investigates while his daughter Fern contends with the fallout of her arrest.

As the episode begins, two men attempt to base jump off of a building. Instead, they end up dead. After the intro, Daniel and Stephanie bail out Fern. They all agree that Fern should stay with Stephanie for the time being. Callan tries to speak with Fern outside. However, she is on bail and cannot be around him. He promises that the drugs did not belong to him. Daniel speaks with Detective Jill McCloud. Jill makes it clear that Fern is in big trouble. Daniel tells Bryan Nichols about the phone call. Bryan insists it is probably just a prank.

Next, they join Simon at the crime scene. Luca and Tomas were YouTube stars. They did crazy stunts to get attention. Now, one of their stunts has killed them. A witness, Ray Gupta, speaks with detectives. Anna Michaud can't believe what happened. She had a relationship with Luca. Fern returns to her old room. She begins rearranging things right away. Daniel finds Grace settling into her office. Daniel chats with her about her past job. They watch the Live Life Now YouTube videos together. Daniel wonders what could have gone wrong. They prepare for the autopsy next.

A tapeworm is found near Luca's spine. The other guy has a rope burn on his hand. It appears that he tried to pull the cord, but something went wrong. Later, Lyle Fairly admits to Daniel that he can't wait for Grace to find her own place to stay. Simon speaks with Daniel in private. He learns that Daniel slept with Grace. He isn't convinced their relationship will end there. Stephanie calls Daniel. She is worried because Fern has gone missing. Daniel calls her. She is just looking for a job. Daniel and the others attempt to figure out when Luca obtained the tapeworm. They watch videos to see when he started experiencing trouble with his right arm.

Next, Daniel watches footage that Anna recorded. Tomas says something to Luca in another language. He is telling Luca not to jump, but it is too late. Bryan discusses things with Anna. She claims that Tomas packed his own parachute. She knew nothing about Luca's problems. Bryan tells Daniel that the call came from an encrypted messaging app. They cannot trace it. He is convinced that Daniel shouldn't be too worried about it. Daniel speaks with Paul. Again, he learns that Fern is in big trouble. Daniel runs into Callan. He believes Callan wasn't responsible for the drugs. He lets Callan stay with him. They watch the videos together in hopes of discovering when Luca's hand problems started. Daniel goes to sleep. Callan finishes watching all of the videos.

Daniel uses that information to determine that his hand was already in trouble before the tapeworm. He was suffering from ALS. They tell Anna about it. She insists she didn't know anything. However, she admits that Luca didn't want to live that way. Daniel speaks with Grace on the rooftop. Daniel confesses that he isn't totally convinced that Luca's death was an accident. Daniel finds out that Anna is going to live stream from the site of the jump. He spots a comment from Ray Gupta and tracks him down. Dash camera footage confirms that Anna packed the parachute. Daniel tells Grace to get Nichols. Daniel confronts her on the rooftop. She pretends she is going to jump and kill herself.

Daniel tries to stop her. Instead, he comes close to dying. Grace arrives just in time to save him. Anna is arrested. Grace patches up Daniel's stitches that night. They agree it is best to keep their relationship professional. Daniel does some research. He remembers the Mr Lincoln roses sent to his hospital room. He visits Maxine. Bryan is asleep. Daniel gives her the evidence and claims Francis Chester is out to get him. After all, Daniel put him away after he murdered several people. Maxine tells him that Francis died in a prison fire several months ago. Fern finds a rose petal in her bad that night.

Summary: A mummified body is found bricked up in the basement of a suburban home leading Harrow and Grace to investigate a crime from the past.

At the start of the episode, a mummified body is discovered behind a brick wall. After the intro, Daniel and Grace arrive at work around the same time. Grace makes fun of Harrow's car. Daniel tells her that the car belonged to his father. Next, Daniel tries to obtain more information about Chester's death. Maxine enters and interrupts his research. Maxine is worried that Daniel might be dwelling on Francis. Daniel promises that he is not. The woman's body is brought in. Simon learns that she had ecstasy on her.

The team suits up to protect themselves from asbestos.

Fern goes to her father's boat. She finds Callan there. She admits she trusts him. They spend a few romantic minutes together. At the lab, Daniel and the others find evidence that the woman was forced behind the wall. She also has a bit of blue paint in her hair. Daniel pokes around and finds a hair belonging to someone else. Daniel, Fern and Stephanie meet with an attorney. They learn that Fern is likely in big trouble. Nevertheless, she doesn't want to plead guilty. She tells her mother about Callan staying with Daniel.

Daniel speaks with Paul Haberecht. They discuss Fern's case. Bryan Nichols speaks with Melissa. She is a friend of the dead woman, Libby Hewitt. Melissa says that they were just watching videos together. Melissa is confronted with the pictures. She still says that she last saw Libby in pajamas. Next, Daniel and Grace learn that the hair is a direct match to an unknown male who sexually assaulted two university students. Bryan interviews the homeowner Ron Evans. He denies raping or killing anyone. He doesn't want to give up his DNA. Daniel asks Evans about CPR. Ron knows very little about it and this convinces Daniel that he didn't try to help Libby.

Daniel tells Simon that he is not convinced Ron is their guy. Daniel receives an envelope containing information about Francis and his death. Simon offers to help. Fern tells Cal that she is going to find out who stole the drugs from the chemist. Daniel tells Simon all about Francis Chester. Daniel reexamines the victim's body. Then, he returns to the spot where she was found. He believes that the stab wound was caused when she was forced into the hole. Grace speaks with Lyle about the office's historical records. She begins looking at case files regarding reported rapes. Daniel enters and tells Grace that Ron had hired a young university student to lay brick in his home.

They look at the evidence and find out that Melissa was the one who was raped. They pay her a visit. She tells them that she went to a party with Libby. She took ecstasy and went to the bedroom with Jamie Northcott. Jamie forced himself onto Melissa and raped her. Melissa left in a hurry and left Libby behind. It was the last time she saw her. Jamie is arrested outside of the courthouse. Next, we learn that Jamie got ill at the party and had to be rushed to the hospital. Daniel speaks with the neighbor. He learns that Paul was the one doing the brickwork. Daniel pays him a visit. He looks around the property and finds out that Paul is good with masonry.

He encourages Paul to tell the truth. Then, he learns that Paul has asbestosis and will likely die soon. He most likely got it by inhaling the asbestos when he hid Libby's body. Paul found Libby dead and decided to hide the body. The detectives arrive to speak with him a short time later. Lyle speaks with Grace on the rooftop. Daniel tells Simon that he is just dwelling on the past. He believes he has been distracting himself from things that he needs to do. Grace offers Daniel out for dinner. He is forced to turn down the offer.

Later that night, Daniel calls Fern. It appears that she is following someone. Daniel notices something in the distance. Someone has burned his car. At the end of the episode, Francis Chester arrives at the restaurant where Callan is working.

Summary: Harrow investigates a case in North Queensland. While he is now convinced that Chester is dead, Simon isn't so sure.

As the episode begins, a runner finds a man's body. He has been killed by sharks. After the intro, Daniel Harrow speaks with a detective about his car. Simon begins digging through the evidence on Francis Chester. Stephanie visits Daniel. They speak about Fern's case. Stephanie admits that they're going to need a lot of money for her defense. Daniel tells her that he will pay, but there are a few more things he wants to look into. Next, Maxine informs Daniel and Grace that they're going to be sent to Port Astor. Laurie Badcoe is injured and needs their help. He is the one who performed the work on Chester's body.

Daniel learns that Simon has been researching the Francis case. He encourages him to stop. Next, Gabriel Capello greets Daniel and Grace at the airport. They learn that one of the local Parks and Conversation officers has died. The group meets with Laurie at the hospital. They also meet with Janelle Freeman. She worked with the victim, Ben Raza. Freeman tells them about the rare species found nearby. It is their job to monitor the numbers. Meanwhile, Simon returns to Brendan Skene. He checks the man's eyes.

He consults with Lyle about Skene's cause of death. Simon pretends he is sick so he can get out of work. Meanwhile, Fern begins stalking a man, Tim Markides, she believes stole the drugs. She eventually arrives at his house. Fern goes through the man's garbage. Callan speaks with Francis about cooking for his girlfriend. Daniel and Grace start the autopsy. Daniel believes that Capello is interested in Grace. Daniel finds Jellyfish stingers on the man's stomach. The man also has lesions in his throat. It appears that he swallowed a nest full of bees or jellyfish. Daniel discovers that the man has jellyfish in his stomach.

They go to the nearby aquarium. After speaking with Ash outside, they head in and meet with Robert Chaudhari. Robert doesn't want the investor dinner to be disturbed by the investigation. Then, they chat with Vicki Malisano about the jellyfish. She tells them that the jellyfish could kill a person in a few minutes. Daniel has evidence sent back to Simon. They head outside and encounter Mr. and Mrs. Oadir. They have some strange suitcases. The couple is very pleasant. Daniel calls Simon. He learns that he is sick and staying away from work. We see that Simon is actually investigating Skene and Francis.

Simon speaks with Skene's ex-wife. Stephanie meets with Callan. She encourages him to go to the police and tell them that he was responsible for the drugs. Capello and Grace head to the beach. Capello realizes that Grace wants to be with Daniel. They sit down and speak about Daniel. Daniel visits Laurie. Laurie promises that he did a thorough autopsy on Francis. He says something about captivity and that gives Daniel a clue. Grace meets with him at the office in the morning. Daniel is convinced that Ben was alive when he swallowed the jellyfish. He calls Lyle and learns that the stomach contained traces of methylthioninum chloride or methylene blue. The stuff is commonly used in aquariums.

They visit Vicki. She admits to having an affair with Ben. However, he explains that she hasn't used methylene blue in a very long time. She knows who does though. She points them towards Robert Chaudhari. He isn't willing to give them a sample without a warrant. Capello begins working to secure a warrant right away. Daniel and Grace decide to attend the investor dinner that night. They find a way in and begin looking for ways to get a sample. Daniel sneaks off on his own. He finds the suitcases belonging to the Oadir couple. Inside, he finds rare fish. They're poachers. He is confronted by Freeman and Ash. Freeman has been selling rare fish to foreign investors.

They take him outside and prepare to shoot him. Instead, Daniel and Ash fall into the water. A struggle ensues. Grace rushes outside and tackles Freeman. The gun drops into the water. Ash and Freeman are arrested a short time later. Daniel calls Simon and tries to find out what he is really up to. Fern pieces together a letter from the insurance company. She believes that Tim stole the drugs to fund his gambling habit. Harrow visits Laurie before leaving town. Simon meets with Ross Moran. Simon believes Ross wrote Skene's letters for him. When Skene was moved to a new cell, he met with Francis. Francis wrote his letters from that point forward.

Simon is punched in the jaw. Ross tells him to never mentioned this conversation to anyone. Nobody talks about Francis Chester. Simon tries to call Harrow. Unfortunately, the battery is dead. Simon meets with someone on a boat. He turns around it sees Francis approaching him. It appears that Simon is attacked right before the episode ends.

Summary: To distract him, Harrow is assigned a death by electrocution. He's not convinced it was an accident when he seems to find a link to Simon.

At the start of the episode, we see Simon floating in the water. Next, Daniel watches Lyle practice his martial arts. They both receive a phone call from Maxine. They rush to the scene and meet with Bryan Nichols. He tells them that they'll need to prepare themselves. Daniel and Lyle are stunned by what they see. After the intro, Daniel finds the message on his phone. He doesn't understand what Simon is talking about. Daniel speaks with Fern on the phone for a short period.

At the office, Maxine tells Daniel about Simon's sister, Karina. His parents will be flying in later. Daniel learns that Simon has epilepsy. He also split with his boyfriend a few months back. Daniel realizes that he knew very little about Simon. Maxine puts Grace in charge of the autopsy. Lyle is instructed to assist her. Bryan and Maxine agree that it would be wise to keep Daniel busy. They assign him a case of electrocution. We quickly discover that the dead man is Ross Moran.

He meets with Turua. She believes the death was just an accident. Daniel does not. He suspects that Moran was killed by someone. Daniel notices the injuries on the man's hand. Fern follows Tim to the racetrack. This time, Tim wins. It is clear that Lyle is having a tough time dealing with Simon's death. Grace agrees to finish without him. Next, Daniel speaks with Grace about the autopsy. She is convinced that it was just an accident. Daniel lets Simon's sister see his body.

After that, Grace catches Daniel going through her files. She suspects that he believes she might have made a mistake. He explains that he is just trying to understand what happened. They check the heart rate data from Simon's smartwatch. They find that the rate dropped off right after Simon called Daniel. It also raised around 7:30 PM. Grace and Daniel speak with Bryan. He shows them footage of Simon leaving the boat. Then, he returns. They notice that Simon already has bruising on his face. Bryan shows Daniel a map of Simon's cellphone pings.

Daniel follows Simon's footsteps. He goes to The Gunner's Daughter. He speaks with the bartender about Simon and Moran. The woman confirms that Simon was there and got into a fight with Moran. Maxine doesn't like where things are heading. Bryan speaks to Daniel about his theory. Daniel admits that it all sounds crazy since Francis is supposed to be dead. Later that night, Daniel gets a visit from Stephanie. She tells Daniel that Fern needs him. She wants him to focus more on the living and less on the dead. Daniel has a dream. He sees Simon. He is given a few pointers for solving the case.

Daniel meets with Grace at the lab. He believes that Simon was poisoned with a paralytic drug. It is clear that he still suspects Chester. Daniel speaks with Lyle about performing a second autopsy. Lyle agrees that it would be a good idea. He admits he should have removed himself from the first one. Daniel learns about Simon researching Skene's next of kin. Daniel visits her. She gives him the letters. Daniel goes through Chester's paperwork and confirms that the handwriting is the same. He shows Maxine. Grace and Maxine are convinced that Simon was killed by his epilepsy and Modafinil. Simon was using it to keep up with his hectic schedule.

Daniel attends the funeral. Simon's sister gives him the notebook Simon wrote in. It contains writings about Daniel and Lyle. Daniel tells Fern that he believes Simon's death was his fault. He says that he shouldn't be chasing ghosts. Fern returns to Callan. She tells him what she intends to do. She visits Ross Moran's place. Tim is there trying to get in touch with Ross. Francis watches as Fern breaks into the home. Maxine goes through the letters in Daniel's office. Then, she goes to the evidence room and grabs the tests for E. Lafond and several other people.

She burns the evidence.

Summary: When they're sent to the Outback together to investigate a multiple death collision, Harrow learns things about Fairley's past which surprise him.

At the start of the episode, we see the aftermath of a car wreck. One man walks away from. He is bloody and banged up. After the intro, Daniel receives a call from Maxine. He is told that he will be traveling with Fairly to the Euralla Creek. Daniel meets up with her. He lets her know that he doesn't want to go. Daniel and Lyle arrive. Lyle tells Daniel that he should choose his clever marks a little better around here. Lyle gets the car and they drive off moments later.

Soon, Daniel learns that the locals love Lyle. He is from Euralla Creek. They arrive at the crash site. The sergeant in charge is Lyle's little brother. Daniel is introduced to Colin. Lyle and his brother chat about Grace. They learn that the victims include Bob and Diane. They ran the local bakery and everyone knows them. Bob survived. Diane didn't. They find that one of the drivers had been drinking. They also discover a severed fingertip. Lyle catches up with Beverly at the hospital. Beverly isn't too impressed with Daniel.

Daniel likes Edwina because she doesn't know anything about Lyle. They are unable to find a corpse with a missing fingertip. Lyle believes that one victim was scratched with fingernails days before his death. Maxine lets Fern use Daniel's computer. She guesses his password pretty easily. Fern digs into Ross Moran's case. She finds out that her father thought Ross was connected to Simon somehow. Daniel works alongside Edwina and Lyle. Bob isn't missing a fingertip. This leads them to believe that a fourth person was involved in the accident.

The finger has been frozen. Grace speaks with Maxine about Simon's autopsy and Daniel questioning everything. Maxine asks her why she didn't speak with Simon's sister. Maxine reminds her that the autopsies are done for the sake of the living. She says that Harrow was wrong to challenge her. However, it is just the way he was dealing with his grief. Fern tells Callan about Moran and Simon. He pleads with her to not go after the chemist. She agrees not to. Stephanie watches them from a distance.

Colin tells Daniel that they're searching Ethan's house. He believes that Ethan might have hid the body. Daniel checks the bakery van again. Then, we learn that Bob will most likely recover. Lyle offers to tell him about Diane. She doctor agrees to let him do it. Daniel tries to find out why everyone loves Lyle. He can't get answers from Fairly himself. Lyle gets upset and tells Daniel that he ruins people. He is worried about Grace. Daniel gets out of the car and walks off. Stephanie stops Fern from confronting the chemist. Stephanie believes that Daniel might be wrong about things this time.

Daniel heads to the pub. He learns that Fairly rescued some boys from a fire. However, one child died. Fairly hasn't been able to accept that. Daniel discovers something while watching a woman try to warm her hands. He meets with Edwina and checks out the fingertip again. He finds out that the blood was still circulating when the tip was frozen. Daniel tells Colin that the person was alive but suffering from frostbite. It is confirmed that another person was in Bob and Diane's vehicle. Daniel wonders if the person was trying to escape and severed their finger on the broken glass. Daniel checks the seat belt again. He finds blood on the seat and cuts it out.

Daniel decides to test the blood to see if the woman was pregnant. Soon, Beverly brings in an envelope containing contraceptives. Diane wouldn't need them. The other woman must've been taking them. Diane wasn't pregnant. Lyle visits the cemetery. Ruth confronts him. She asks why he didn't come to Diane's service. He wanted to but just couldn't. Daniel calls Lyle and tells him that the woman's water broke during the crash and she must have wandered off. Daniel heads to Bob and Diane's house. He finds a door with many locks on it. He suspects someone was kept there. He finds that the woman had been storing the contraceptives.

She wasn't taking them. Then, he finds an open storage container. The woman was likely kept there. Daniel finds out that the woman cut off her fingertip when trying to escape. Bob sneaks up and attacks Daniel. Then, he locks him inside. Daniel tries to convince him to set him free but Bob refuses. Daniel accuses Bob of keeping the girl locked up and using her as a sex slave. Bob found the woman on the road and picked her up. She caused the wreck. Daniel attempts to escape before he freezes to death. Bob prepares to flee. Daniel shuts down the power. Lyle arrives and lets him out. Bob confronts them with a gun. Lyle brings down Bob very easy.

Colin is called and Bob is taken to jail. Colin needs them. They arrive and find the pregnant woman. The woman's name is Kyra. Lyle is tasked with delivering the baby. Daniel helps. Everything goes well. Kyra tells them about hitchhiking and getting picked up by the couple. Kyra fought back every day in hopes of getting out. Daniel and Lyle say goodbye to everyone. Edwina and Daniel learn they have something in common. They like solving puzzles. Daniel and Lyle wait for the airplane. Lyle apologizes for what he said the following day. Daniel blames himself for Simon's death. Lyle admits he loves and hates this place mainly because of the fire. Lyle tells Daniel what happened and why he blames himself.

They learn that they're going to be required to drive back. Next, we jump over to Tim Markides. Fern confronts him in his house. She accuses him of planting the fentanyl in her apartment. She asks him if he killed Ross. Tim didn't know. He says he needs to get out of here. He didn't know what someone was going to do with the drugs. Daniel finally makes it back to Grace. They chat on the rooftop. He tells her that he hung up on her because Lyle heard everything. Daniel believes he was wrong about Simon's death. Daniel admits he believes he ruins people. He doesn't want to do that to Grace. She says she can take care of herself. Daniel doesn't believe it. Daniel's phone rings.

Maxine tells him to come to his office. She asks how many people he told about Chester. She tells him about Fern looking at the files on Ross and Simon. Maxine encourages him to let it go before someone else gets hurt. Francis takes care of Tim. Francis burns him alive.

Summary: Harrow investigates the death of a proponent of a non-conventional cancer cure, knowing his nemesis has further ensnared his daughter, Fern.

As the episode begins, we see Taylor Ford on television. She speaks about Minerals for Life and how the product helped her beat cancer. A mail courier arrives and steps through the door. She spots Connor Harris standing over Ford's lifeless body. After the intro, Fern Harrow tells Daniel and Stephanie about the chemist. She insists that her father was right all along. The police arrive and take Fern into custody. Daniel tries to calm Stephanie. He insists she'll be fine in the remand. Daniel goes to Maxine. He wants permission to exhume Chester's body.

Maxine refuses to give him the okay. She learns about Fern's arrest. She is adamant that Francis Chester is dead. Daniel finds out that Lyle is going to be put in charge of Tim's autopsy. Daniel argues with Lyle over the cleaning crew and Daniel's dirty office. Maxine encourages Daniel to take a few days off. Daniel pleads with Lyle to check the body for succinylcholine. Lyle doesn't make any promises. Daniel is assigned the case of Ford. He speaks with Bryan about Fern. They head inside and meet with Grace Molyneux.

Daniel learns about Taylor. She became popular after turning from pharmaceuticals and fighting cancer with alternate medicines. Connor Harris was arrested after he fled from the scene. He had been sending Taylor hate mail. Connor's girlfriend is dying. He says Taylor was responsible for his girlfriend turning from traditional medicine. It is believed Taylor fell down the stairs and died as a result. They head upstairs and check out Taylor's studio. They're interrupted by Danica's screams downstairs. Danica was Taylor's manager. She is distraught. Back at work, Daniel spots Lyle working on Tim's corpse.

Daniel is surprised to see Detective Jill McCloud working alongside Lyle. Stephanie goes to Callan. She tells him about Fern. She offers him a ride. He says a friend is there to pick him up. It is Francis Chester. He hides his face when Stephanie drives by. Callan tells him about his girlfriend's arrest. At the morgue, Grace and Daniel learn that Taylor was very sick. She had vomited frequently. Their attention turns to the Minerals For Life supplements. Her liver is in bad shape as well. They do not believe that the injuries were caused by cancer. The Von Hippel-Lindau syndrome wasn't the cause. Grace discovers that Taylor had no brain tumor. If she had VH-L syndrome, she would have had tumors on her brain, spine or even eye.

Bryan is still convinced that Connor is responsible. Daniel goes to the hospital where Taylor was treated. She explains that Taylor feared she had a brain tumor. Her mother and brother died with VH-L. Taylor was scanned multiple times but they never showed any signs of a tumor. Taylor eventually stormed out of a visit and got a second opinion. When the doctor tried to tell her, Danica wouldn't let her. Danica says that Taylor's modeling career was cut short by cancer. She is convinced the MFL supplements really work. She says something about the final scan giving her the all clear. When going through the paperwork, Daniel finds copies of the hate mail Connor sent her.

Taylor thought the hate was the price she paid to get her message out. The paperwork confirms that there were no traces of brain tumor past of present. Daniel says that MFL caused her symptoms. Later, Callan speaks with Daniel about Fern. Daniel promises to make things right. Daniel goes to Lyle. The autopsy has been completed. Lyle tells him that it would be nearly impossible to get succinylcholine from a burned body. He doesn't say whether he actually took the test. Daniel goes over his evidence in the office. He calls Laurie. Daniel asks him if he is positive about Chester's autopsy. Daniel also suggests that corruption might have altered the results. Laurie doesn't want to hear it. He hangs up.

We see that Laurie is having an affair with the receptionists. That night, Daniel goes back over the evidence. He calls Doug about Francis but gets no answer. Fern calls him seconds later. She lets him know that he was right. She tells him about Tim, Ross, and Simon being connected. We see that Fern has been getting beat up in jail. In the morning, Daniel learns from Grace that Connor's girlfriend, Rebbecca, is there. Daniel speaks with her. She has three months. She says Connor isn't the killer. She becomes angry when Daniel tells her to stop using the supplements. She rushes off. Daniel tells Grace about that conversation. Lab results show that Taylor had high levels of heavy metals in her brain and organs.

Daniel finds a cut on Taylor's lip. She might have been asphyxiated. The doctor visits and tells Daniel that Taylor actually returned to the doctor. She was worried about her symptoms. Taylor was told about the original scan. She told the doctor she had never seen them. Daniel blames Danica. He visits her and accuses her. Danica admits that Taylor found out. They kept it going to avoid looking like frauds and going to jail. Danica denies killing Taylor. Daniel tells Bryan about it. He agrees to brief the Fraud squad. He still believes that Connor was responsible. Grace arrives with lab results. Taylor had cannabinoids around her mouth and nose. They confront Connor. He says he never touched the body. They ask him for his blood.

Connor learns that the dope could help find the killer. Connor changes his mind and admits to killing Taylor Ford. Daniel doesn't believe it. Something he hears sends him off in a hurry. He runs into Lyle. Daniel is forced to stop the cleaners from throwing away his items. He finds a glass with a female handprint on it. Then, he confronts Rebecca. He believes she smothered Taylor. The cannabinoids on the glass she used in Daniel's office confirmed she was smoking marijuana. Rebecca says she got into a fight with Connor. She caught Taylor recording the confession that she didn't have a tumor. Rebecca became angry. During their argument, Taylor fell down the stairs. Rebecca didn't call an ambulance. She finished Taylor off by smothering her.

Daniel gets a call from the Deputy Coroner Doug Hinton. Daniel tries to talk him into exhuming Francis. Daniel is told that he would need to get Chester's mother to agree. Daniel tracks down Louise Whitehall. She is actually Louise Chester. Louise admits her son committed horrible acts. Daniel tells her that he wants to dig up the body. Louise got into criminology to find out why Francis did what he did. She is convinced Francis died in a prison fire. Louise refuses to give Daniel permission. Daniel tries to forge the document to exhume the body. He stops and calls Fern's phone. Then, he finishes forging the paperwork. He gives it to Doug with Maxine's forged signature.

Lyle stops him in the hallway to talk about the Markides case. The chemical wasn't found in the body but he died of smoke inhalation while sleeping. The arson squad believes Markides fell asleep while smoking a cigarette. Fern will most likely be released. Daniel tells Stephanie. He tells them to lay low while he exhumes the body. Maxine gets angry and tells Daniel to leave. She learned about the exhumation order. She says that the body will not be dug up. Laurie goes back over his files. He asks Rhon about the prison fire. He remembers another prison death around the same time. It was a heart attack victim on the same day.

Daniel rushes back to the boat. Callan nearly attacks him with a skillet. Callan is told to pick up Fern and get away. Daniel heads for the hardware store. He buys a shovel and heads to Chester's grave. He begins digging as the episode ends.

Summary: The body of an elderly man is discovered in an Egyptian sarcophagus. Grace does the autopsy while Harrow finds himself in a very tight place.

As the episode begins, Daniel Harrow digs up the grave. Francis Chester sneaks up behind him and injects him with drugs. After the intro, we are introduced to Nenet Botro and Ufa Sabry. The mining magnate Howard Hobson has helped the Egyptian government get their mummy back. Clayton Pike is Hobson's lawyer. He believes that Hobson was happy to help. The authorities find out that the body has titanium hip joints. It can't be an ancient's body.

The body arrives at the morgue where Bryan, Lyle, and Grace wait for it. Bryan identifies the body. He tells Maxine and the others about Howard and his wealth. Lyle begins rattling off facts about the Egyptians. He seems repulsed when he is told he sounds like Daniel. Ufa is from the Egyptian Office of Antiquities and he is eager to find out where the real body is. Nenet is his translator. They've been helping Hobson prepare his Egyptian collection for transport. Bryan asks about Harrow.

We see that Harrow has been buried alive. Chester left a cellphone with him. The phone is locked and cannot call out or send messages. Chester is using it to toy with him. Bryan tries to get Maxine to tell him why he suspended Harrow. She won't. Edwina Gharam enters. It appears she will be taking Simon's place. Grace speaks with Lyle about Harrow. She admits to sleeping with him once. She calls says he is irritating. Lyle tells her about the suspension. Edwina is introduced to Grace a few seconds later. Harrow receives a call from Francis.

He lets Daniel know that he is in big trouble. Francis is confident that Daniel will die before he is ever found. Francis confesses that he took care of Simon after he found out the truth. Lyle and Edwina speak about leaving Euralla. Edwina makes a comment about something going wrong for Grace in Euralla. She seems a little too noisy. The work begins. They believe that Howard might have been alive when he was wrapped up and put in the coffin. All three agree that foul play is involved. Lyle explains that Howard would have died quicker if he was panicking and did not conserve oxygen.

Daniel gets another call from Francis. Francis tells him to sit back and enjoy the movies. Daniel is shown a live video of Fern being released from jail. She meets up with Callan. Jill McCloud keeps a close eye on Fern. Stephanie arrives and gets Fern before she can get into trouble. At home, Fern tries to convince her mother that Daniel was right. Stephanie says that Daniel is wrong about people but right about many other things. Meanwhile, Grace the others chat about Howard's wealth and mistresses. Strangulation is quickly ruled out. They discover that something is wrong with Howard's tongue. He must have been dehydrated.

They flip the body over and discover cuts all over his back. Grace goes to the house with Bryan. Grace is introduced to Clayton. He has given the department his will. Nenet says that Clayton is stalling. She wants things moved along quickly. Grace and Bryan discover that Howard was into bondage and BDSM type stuff. They find an 18th century wheat threshing sled in his bed. He obviously used it for sexual gratification. Grace calls Lyle to find out about the blood testing. Edwina annoys everyone for a little bit before Grace gets her answer. The blood contained HS troponin. Grace asks if Sildenafil was found in the blood. Lyle says there was a lot in there. It just happens to be Viagra.

Grace tells Bryan that he had more than 4 times the recommended maximum in his body. They believe he was preparing for kinky sex before he died. Next, they interview the wife and ex-wife. Isabella admits that Alice visited and she wouldn't let her in. She says she was shocked by her husband's death. They don't sleep in the same room or have sex. She says she only gets half of Howard's estate. Next, Alice is interviewed. She claims she did not know about her receiving the second half of the estate.

After the interviews, Grace tells Bryan that she doesn't understand why either woman would want to hide Hobson's death. Then, they discuss the reason behind Harrow's suspension. Bryan takes up for Maxine. Grace tries to call Daniel. Fern meets up with Callan. Callan admits he wants a normal life. He also tells Fern that he needs her too. She refuses to go to with Callan to his uncle's place. Francis continues taunting Daniel. He is stalking Fern. Next, Fern speaks with Bryan. She tells him about her dad's theory. Bryan doesn't tell her about Francis. Fern tells him that he needs to make a decision. He returns to the office and looks through the evidence photos again.

He tries to call Laurie. Rhonda answers and covers for Laurie who is drunk. Nenet and Ufa speak with Maxine and Lyle. It is important to get the artifacts to Egypt with the elections coming. Grace wants to hold onto the body a bit longer. She isn't sure why just yet. She consults with Edwina about it. Grace isn't sure one of the wives did it. She finds something new. Howard left behind a message on the coffin. It says "WIL". Lipstick is found on his lips too. Grace believes it belongs to Nenet. She is interviewed. Nenet admits she convinced Howard to give his fortune to the Youth for Democracy Movement. She is sick of the way the Egyptians treat women.

Some of the money was set to go to Howard's grandson. Nenet says she rewarded him after he signed the will. Once Howard was dead, she left. She didn't put him in the casket. Clayton did. Clayton admits he hid the body so they wouldn't see what Howard was doing. He also didn't want Nenet to get away with it. Clayton didn't want Isabella to be left penniless either. He loved her. She doesn't care for him though. Daniel uses his watch to try to cut through the wood. He receives another call from Francis. Francis wonders why he became a killer in the first place. He believes the wiring was changed by circumstance. Daniel gets another video. Francis lures Fern to Daniel's boat.

He goes after her but she gets away. Grace is forced to speak with Will Hobson about Howard's death. She does poorly. Edwina steps in and helps. Bryan calls the deputy corner Doug and learns about Daniel's attempt to get Francis exhumed. Grace tells Edwina what went wrong in her past. She had a young patient and worked on his brain tumor. She saved him but left him with brain damage. He suggests it would have been better to give the boy the 3 months with his family instead of operating on him. After the surgery, Christopher lost speech, movement, and couldn't feed himself. She tries calling Daniel again. Meanwhile, Daniel is getting weaker and the phone's battery is getting low.

Daniel does it. The coffin crashes through. Fern makes it back to her mother. Stephanie is adamant that they need to tell Nichols. Fern has Daniel's computer. Bryan arrives at the cemetery. Daniel wakes up with Nichols above him. Fern finds a picture of Francis. She recognizes him. She calls Callan and sends him a photo of Francis. Chester shows up at work. He asks Callan what is wrong. Callan checks the picture while Chester cleans a knife. Chester goes after him. Callan makes it outside but gets run over by a motorcycle.

Summary: The body of an elderly man is discovered in an Egyptian sarcophagus. Grace does the autopsy while Harrow finds himself in a very tight place.

As the episode begins, Daniel Harrow tries to explain things to Bryan Nichols. Bryan has a hard time believing the story. More police arrive. Daniel opens the casket and finds a body inside. After the intro, Bryan wants to know why Francis would bury him and dig him back up. Daniel explains that Francis didn't get what he wanted. He was unable to kill Fern. Daniel wants Bryan to speak with Fern. She is already at CIB. They rush there right away. Fern tries to get in touch with Callan. A paramedic grabs the phone before loading Callan into to ambulance.

At the station, Fern tells Bryan that Francis tried to kill her. Bryan decides to speak with her in private. Daniel chats with Stephanie before leaving the hospital. Fern takes Bryan to Daniel's boat. She walks him through the events. Bryan searches the boat and finds drugs and several syringes. This convinces him that Daniel is self medicating. Fern tells Stephanie that Bryan believes Daniel is on drugs. Fern receives a call about Callan. Daniel goes to Grace to get a blood test. He believes that will prove he was drugged by Francis.

Maxine learns about the test. She also tells Daniel about Callan. Maxine tells Grace that she wants to see the results when they come back. At the hospital, Daniel and Fern speak about her conversation with Bryan. Fern tells Daniel about the drugs. He is positive that they were planted. Bryan speaks with Doug and Maxine about Harrow. They plan to do nothing until it is positive that Harrow touched the body. Bryan also agrees to follow through with the exhumation. Bryan goes to Chester's mother. She is not happy with the news that her son's body is going to be exhumed. Still, there is nothing she can do to stop it.

Fern learns that the next 48 hours will be critical for Callan. She is allowed to see him. Stephanie believes they'll be safe at the hospital. Daniel leaves and visits the boat. Meanwhile, Maxine and Bryan speak about Daniel possibly self medicating. The casket arrives. Maxine tells Grace and Lyle that she wants it taken care of as quickly and quietly as possible. Daniel inspects the boat. Fern checks Callan's phone. She notices that the last text he received was the picture of Francis. Edwina, Grace, and Lyle discuss Francis Chester and his past deeds.

Lyle explains that Daniel and Maxine found the evidence to convict Francis. It almost didn't happen. Harrow conducted new tests and found small amounts of propofol in the female victims. Maxine wonders if the shooting messed Daniel up. Bryan isn't sure. Laurie Badcoe learns that Ronnie is quitting. The evidence seems to show that the body from the casket belongs to Francis Chester. Grace doesn't believe it. She begins researching on her own. Maxine enters. She tells Grace that she doesn't believe Daniel can come back from this. Grace just doesn't understand why Daniel would lie and risk his job.

Grace the DNA samples on her computer screen. Maxine says that Daniel's mistake was forging her signature and digging up Chester's body. Daniel has a nightmare that Fern is in the morgue. He wakes up on the boat. Grace pays him a visit. She is surprised to see him holding the flare gun. Grace tells him the bad news. Daniel tries to convince her that he is telling the truth. When she leaves, Daniel goes outside and uses a payphone. He calls Laurie and tells him he needs to get down there. Bryan gets a report on Daniel's phone. Only Daniel's prints were found on the phone. He speaks with Grace about it.

Grace tells him there is one way to determine whether or not the body is Chester's. She wants to test the DNA against the DNA from his arrest swab from 15 years ago. Bryan tells her to do it. Daniel gets a new phone. He calls Fern. They both lie about where they're at. We see that Fern is visiting Callan's place of work. The boss doesn't want to speak with her about Callan or Frank. Before Fern leaves, she steals a document with Frank's address. Laurie admits that the body might not have been Francis Chester's. Daniel encourages him to tell the truth. Laurie doesn't want to. It will ruin your life and they wouldn't believe a drunk anyway.

Daniel makes him leave. Edwina and Grace work together on the body. They speak about Daniel before Lyle enters and joins them. He agrees to help too. Daniel goes to the hospital and asks Stephanie where Fern is. Stephanie believes she is at the motel. Daniel apologizes to Stephanie and admits he should have told her everything from the start. Fern visits the address. She finds that the land is for sale. Grace gets the results from the blood test. She shows Maxine. Daniel had high levels of propofol in his system. Maxine visits Daniel at the hospital. She tells him about the propofol. She takes the blame and suggests she shouldn't have let him return to work so soon. She also accuses Daniel of self medicating.

Maxine tells him he is too good to throw away his career. She wants him to show up to the hearing and tell the truth. Daniel insists he is telling the truth. Fern goes to the restaurant again. She shows the boss a picture of Francis. He confirms that it is Frank. Daniel goes to the bathroom. When he does, an alarm is triggered in the hospital. Daniel finds Francis injecting Callan with drugs. They fight. Francis tells him that he can detain him or save Callan. Daniel begins working on the boy right away. Daniel manages to save Callan. Outside, Francis drugs Fern and the episode ends.

Summary: In a thrilling season climax, Harrow comes face-to-face with his greatest fears as Chester initiates the endgame.

At the start of the episode, we see Louise with her husband Maurice. Francis has lost his final appeal. Louise gives her husband soup. She doesn't eat hers. After the intro, Daniel asks Bryan what happened. Daniel explains that he would have no reason to hurt Callan. Daniel tells him what happened. There is little Bryan can do to help. Daniel flees from the hospital. He runs into Stephanie and tells her that Fern has gone missing. He tells Stephanie to speak with Bryan.

Meanwhile, Grace tries to talk some sense into Maxine. However, Maxine isn't willing to listen. She doesn't believe the evidence would convince a jury. Grace learns that Daniel is in big trouble. Bryan tries to tell his boss what happened. She wants Daniel taken off the streets and brought in. She believes he has gone off the rails. Meanwhile, Daniel goes to the department of health. He obtains older documents regarding Francis Chester and his dental health. He obtains the name of his dentist when he was a young boy.

Maxine and Lyle prepare to defend Daniel during the tribunal. Stephanie goes to Bryan. She urges him to do something but leaves flustered. Bryan visits Louise. She doesn't answer the door. When he leaves, we see that Francis has Fern held captive inside. Daniel visits the dentist. The man tells him about Francis Chester. Louise brought him there when he was very young. He wanted to be called Frank. Chester's father punched him and knocked out his tooth. Frank begged the dentist to not make him return.

There was nothing he could do. Francis was sent back to his parents. Lyle defends Daniel during the tribunal. He confesses that Daniel did things he shouldn't have. If he hadn't killers would have gone free. Daniel sneaks in and meets with Grace. He gives her the dental evidence. The body in the morgue has a pretty healthy tooth where Chester doesn't. After all, Chester's father knocked it out. A staff member becomes suspicious. Glen checks on them. He tells Grace that Daniel saved his pet Fuzznuts. Glen takes care of it. He spots Harrow and says nothing. When they leave, Daniel receives a call from Chester.

Francis tells him that Fern is okay right now. Francis orders him to meet him outside of the institute. Daniel injects himself with BCHE. Then, he meets with Francis outside. They drive to Louise's house. Along the way, Francis tells Daniel that he never used propofol. Grace passes the evidence along to Bryan. He claims someone planned the evidence in the liver. He blames Daniel. Lyle and Maxine learn that the tribunal has ruled against Daniel. He will no longer have a job. They arrive at Louise's house. Daniel mentions the dentist, Harry Briggs.

Francis' relationship with his mother is very awkward. Daniel encourages her to call the police and end it. Louise says it is too late. Daniel spots Fern and gets distracted. Francis injects him with a drug. Maxine goes through the evidence. She finds out that some of the test samples have gone missing. Grace confronts Maxine. She wonders why the brain tissue samples have gone missing. Grace tells her that she needs to admit to what she did. Daniel wakes up. Francis tells him that he gave him propofol. Now, he is going to get succinylcholine.

Francis tells Fern what happens when the drug is administered. Francis prepares to strangle Fern to death. Daniel wakes up and begins talking. He mentions the monkshood he spotted on the way in. He explains that Louise killed Maurice with it. He insists Francis wants to kill his father. He can't because his mom already did. Francis becomes angry. Bryan goes through the surveillance footage from the hospital. He spots someone that catches his eye. Then, he sees cameras on the fire department helmets. He makes a call. While Francis is distracted with his mom, Daniel breaks free and goes for the weapon. He removes the gag from Fern's mouth.

Francis is back in control but his mother has the gun. He claims he needed to kill his father. Francis takes the gun and shoots his mother dead. Daniel nearly frees Fern. The DNA results come back. It is confirmed that the body is not Chester's. Bryan gets the fire department footage. He spots Francis Chester. Francis goes after Fern. She tells him that she knows how it feels for fear to turn into hate. She talks about her desire to kill her step-dad. Daniel took that chance away from her. Fern attacks Francis and gets away. She gets the gun. Daniel convinces her to hand it over to him. He doesn't want to feel like he did after he killed someone. Daniel holds Francis at gunpoint until the police arrive.

Bryan lets Daniel speak with Francis. Daniel is in a tough spot. Francis knows that he has killed too. He says he will spread the word. Daniel pretends he isn't worried. He gives Francis a rose for Simon before walking away. Bryan tries to make peace with Daniel. He isn't worried. He suggests Bryan believed him all the while. Something goes wrong with Chester. We see that Daniel actually injected him while giving him the rose for Simon. Daniel hugs Stephanie before sitting with Fern. She confesses she wanted to kill him. Daniel confirms it is over.

Francis dies in the squad car. Maxine prepares to move out. Daniel enters and tries to stop her. Maxine admits she rigged the samples to ensure Francis went down. She admits she should have believed Daniel. He tries to convince her that Simon's death isn't her fault. Maxine wants to leave. Callan wakes up. Fern gets into bed with him. Grace visits Daniel at the boat. It seems that they're going to get romantic. Grace stops that halfway through. She reminds him that he'll be her supervisor again in weeks. Later, Daniel gets a call from Bryan. He is still suspended but Bryan has something important to show him. It is a young boy. The boy's passport listed Daniel as the next of kin. He might be Daniel's son.

Summary: Confronted by the loss of a son he never knew, Harrow buries himself in his work, investigating the violent stabbing of a homeless man.

As the episode begins, we see a man who has been stabbed to death under the bridge. After the intro, we join Dr. Daniel Harrow and Bryan Nichols at the crime scene of Daniel's supposed son. Bryan agrees to let Daniel look at the note when the fingerprint team has finished with it. They're not sure why the boy was up on the boat or how he fell. The camera was switched off and Daniel finds that weird. Bryan reveals there was a car that was reported stolen nearby. It has been towed to the compound. When asked if he knew he had a son, Daniel admits it is complicated. Grace listens to everyone before Daniel receives the boy's note. Daniel reads the note to Grace and we learn that his son wanted to see him but couldn't find a way to do it.

The boy's body is taken back to the morgue where Grace tells Daniel he can't perform the autopsy and he tells her the same. She suggests she can as long as she isn't supervised by Daniel. Dr. Lyle Fairley arrives in an odd uniform and says he came straight from rehearsals. Lyle and Grace team up on Daniel and try to force him out of the PM before Daniel says Grace wouldn't know because she doesn't have children. Edwina interrupts and lets Daniel know that the Deputy Coroner is there to see him. Daniel meets with him and he wants to make sure Daniel knows why Lyle and Grace will conduct the PM. Daniel admits he knows and his suspension is immediately lifted, but he is ordered not to interfere with Lyle and Grace.

Daniel agrees and the post mortem begins immediately. Bryan meets with Daniel and says he can at least work. Bryan wants to know if Daniel can help him get in touch with his son's mother. Daniel takes Bryan back to his boat and tells him that he met the boy's mother in London when he was in his last year of post-grad. The mother worked part-time in a Tesco around the corner from the teaching hospital. Daniel explains that the mother's name is Tanya. Daniel tells him about Tanya working the checkout and painting until midnight. He says their relationship really worked until he got a job offer under Jack Twine and Tanya came with him. She tried to find work while Daniel tried to prove himself by working 15 and 16 hour days. Tanya has no one including Daniel since he was too busy with work.

About three months in, Tanya said she was pregnant and going home alone. Daniel tries to stay in touch and sending money. He never knew whether she had a boy or girl. He tried to visit and find them but he was told to go back and live his own life. Daniel confesses he never had the courage to tell Steph and Fern that he had another child somewhere so he didn't. Fern overhears and tells him that he should've before storming off angrily. Bryan borrows the address and Daniel goes after Fern. Daniel is forced to admit that his son is in the morgue. In the morning, Daniel returns to the morgue with drinks for Lyle and Grace. Lyle decides to leave and says Grace might walk Daniel through what they found during the PM. They visit the boy's body and Daniel learns there was an acute subdural hematoma and intrusion into the central sulcus by skull fragments.

Grace goes on to say there was a total break between his C3 and C4 vertebra. The boy likely died quickly. There are no signs of a struggle and no explanation as to why the boy fell. Daniel admits he knew very little about his son. After that, Daniel joins Bryan at the new crime scene and finds that rat that was with the man caged. A jogger's dog went nuts and chased the rat down to the corpse of Peter Craig Morrow. The man has been homeless for a long time and usually stayed in the opposite direction. The rat was the man's pet. He was stabbed multiple times and the knife was found nearby, but there are no witnesses. It wasn't a robbery since the man had little money and none of it was stolen. Daniel looks around and spots another homeless man. When he looks around, the man is gone.

Bryan wants to have the rat destroyed. Daniel returns to the morgue and argues Edwina until he decides to keep the rat in his office. They discuss Peter Morrow and Daniel learns that his daughter Emily is on her way. She identifies her father moments later. Daniel tells Emily that she can see him after they've finished with him. She asks about the pet rat Maestro and says they were inseparable. Emily is asked about her relationship with her father and his personality. She admits she had no idea why her father did any of the things he did. She thought her dad was okay until he changed a few years ago.

He was still sweet, but he thought Emily was an impostor. He was the same with his friends including Di. Emily tells them more about Di Baverstock who is in the newspaper with Peter. He wasn't drunk or ill and didn't like being on the streets so she can't understand why he was homeless. Daniel promises her that they'll find out who did it. When Emily leaves, Bryan reminds Daniel it isn't his place to promise to find a kill and Daniel admits it is Bryan's responsibility. Bryan says he didn't promise because they might not find the killer. Next, Grace walks in as Edwina and Daniel perform the post-mortem on the homeless man. She asks to join them and Daniel agrees to let her. They learn that Peter tried to take care of himself, but there are abrasions that go distinctly side to side on his face.

It looks like he was trying to turn his head when he was being held down by someone heavy or strong. He also has a badly healed scar on his head. They check the CT and find lesions on the cerebral cortex. Daniel believes that might've changed his personality. Then, they focus on the knife and Daniel says the stab wounds are consistent with an almost east to west alignment. There is evidence that someone held Peter down while the attacker down the knife into him over and over again. Although Peter was a sweet man who everyone loved, it looks like someone took their hatred and anger out on him. Edwina realizes he was stabbed eight times with another stab wound being on the front of the man's body.

It looks like the victim and attacker were on their feet when Peter was stabbed in the chest. There is only a shallow penetration into the soft tissue. This leads Daniel to believe it is almost like two different people. Daniel and Grace return to the crime scene and Daniel finds a trail of blood. The droplets are before he was pinned down so he likely stumbled around after being stabbed in the chest. They agree it sounds like two different attackers so they agree to swab the blood on the ground. Daniel spots the homeless man in the distance again, but he tries to get away. Daniel stops the man and tells him he wants to find out who killed Peter. They speak under the bridge and Daniel asks the man about carrying something to defend himself when sleeping rough.

Peter carried a knife and the man isn't sure why Peter was so far away from his corner. Daniel asks him about Di but the man says Di didn't have anything to do with Peter's death. He says they need to stop accusing them and start helping them because they're not the problem. He pleads with Daniel to leave Di alone before rushing away. Daniel returns to Bryan and tells him about that conversation. Daniel is shown security footage about 200 meters from where Peter was killed. Di is shown running away in fear. Daniel wonders if she was only responsible for the light jab to Peter's cheek. He doesn't think Di killed her friend, but Bryan believes it might've been a lovers' quarrel. They argue until Bryan admits he has issued a POI for Di.

On his way out, Daniel asks Bryan about Tanya from the UK. Bryan says it is going to take a bit of time. The vehicle found near the boy's body was a company vehicle that belonged to a stockbroking firm in the city. The vehicle had a lot of prints, including some that matched Daniel's son. Daniel leaves and visits the stockyard where his son was found. He tries to retrace his son's moves on the night of his death. Later that night, Daniel tries to call Fern, but she doesn't answer. Daniel tries to visit his daughter and only runs into Callan Prowd. He tells Daniel that Steph is in Toowoomba for a job interview and she is past thinking about moving. Fern is trying out for a new cleaning firm.

She isn't happy with Daniel who admits it is a long story. They discuss Daniel's son and Callan knows he can't be okay with everything that has happened. Callan reveals he had a boy too when he was 17 and his girlfriend was 16. The boy made it to 15 weeks and then there was no heartbeat. Callan admits he should've been there for her but wasn't because he was 17. Before the conversation ends, Daniel asks Callan to ask Fern to call him. He says he'll ask, but a dead brother is a lot to talk about. Daniel returns to his office and finds that Edwina has gotten food for the rat so he feeds it right away. Then, he uses his computer to try to research his son's case. He searches for Tanya Reed in the UK but doesn't find much. He turns to the rat and talks to it about missing its owner.

Then, he notices it is eating something. He joins Edwina who asks about rat-bite fever. Daniel finds blood on the rat and wonders if it is Peter's. They test the blood and find out that it is O positive so it doesn't belong to Peter Morrow. Daniel goes to the hospital and tries to find out if Di has rat-bite fever. He finds there was a 16-year-old boy with flu symptoms with a male friend who revealed he had been bitten by something. They left before treatment but they got the boy's details. Daniel visits the boy and hears the family fighting inside. He asks for Jordy and learns that his mother is likely being abused by her boyfriend. Daniel learns that the boy has been sick. Daniel is given the chance to speak to the boy in private and tells him what he does.

Daniel tells Jordy that his rat bite is infected and he needs to go back to the hospital. Jordy denies it, but Daniel says he knows what he did. He accuses him of killing Peter Morrow who was bleeding when he found him. Daniel believes Jordy had a bad day and decided to hassle Peter. In return, Peter provoked him. Jordy lost it and killed Peter. He understands that Jordy's stepfather hits him and humiliates him. He can't fight back so he took his frustration out on the homeless man. Jordy admits the rat was just there and it bit him. Jordy says Peter shouldn't have waved the knife but Daniel says Jordy should've helped Peter. Then, Daniel says he called the police but wanted Jordy to have enough time to explain things to his family before he is arrested.

Daniel tells Bryan about the murder while Jordy is hauled away by police officers. Daniel admits Jordy wanted to hurt his stepfather, but the human trait means we usually punch down during our worst moments. Di is off the hook but she doesn't know it yet. Daniel is led to Di so he can tell her about it moments later. Peter got worse until he believed Maestro had been switched too. He nearly killed Maestro so Di had to save the rat. She ended up stabbing him in the chest while trying to save the rat. Daniel returns to the morgue and talks to Emily about her father and his death. Daniel says he spoke to Di and learns that Peter had a terrible childhood and was locked in his bedroom every night. He waited for his stepfather to finish with his mother and come in. Peter was embarrassed that he couldn't get over it so he likely never told Emily.

Later, Daniel learns that Edwina had decided to take Maestro with her. He finds a woman using his coffee mug. Lyle returns and wonders what Daniel is doing to his office. After that, the Deputy Coroner tells everyone that they've been searching for someone to replace Maxine Pavich. Fairley isn't happy that the new person isn't a pathologist. Daniel tries to keep him quiet until Fairley learns that new head Renae Warrington is listening right behind him. She apologizes to Lyle and admits she needs him to take on more duties. They think Grace can be released from her probationary period and Lyle will be supervising Dr. Harrow. Daniel doesn't understand that and questions Renae's decision. She says Daniel is eligible for early retirement. Lyle will supervise his actions and she will decide whether or not he will be given that retirement package.

She knows Maxine used to extend Daniel a lot of latitude and she says it ends now. She wants Daniel to know that she won't tolerate any more secrets. Grace goes to the cold storage and finds Daniel checking on his son. He apologizes for being a jerk. She tells him that there were no drugs or alcohol in his system. Both agree that the note read like a suicide note. Daniel says everything comes back to the morgue. It is where his father came and where he met his mentor, whose name was Jack like his son's. Grace offers to cook for Daniel tonight, but he believes he'd be better off alone. Later that night, Daniel drinks and gets a call from Mike from Brisbane Medical Laboratories who is calling for Lyle. Daniel gets Mike to email it to Lyle so he can check it from Lyle's account.

Daniel checks the information and compares his DNA profile with Jack's. Surprisingly, no match is found. When he leaves, a boy who calls himself James asks if the DNA results came in. He tells Daniel he is his son before asking about the DNA results again. James asks Daniel to keep the DNA results secret as long as he can because there are people after him. James is worried they'll come after him if they know he is alive. He runs off from Daniel before the episode ends.

Summary:	Reeling from the discovery that his son is alive, Harrow finds a welcome distraction in one of the most bizarre cases he's ever encountered: the murder of a vampire.

As the episode begins, we see a sleek black coffin surrounded by candles. The coffin lid opens and a young man sleeps inside. Someone places a stake on the man's chest and bashes the other end using a sledgehammer. After the intro, Daniel Harrow reads his son's alleged note in which he tells Daniel how much he wanted to see him but couldn't find a way. Then, he uses Lyle Fairley's username and password to delete the DNA results. He gets a call from Bryan Nichols and meets with him immediately. They chat briefly about Daniel's car and his rough night before Daniel asks Bryan if he recovered any more footage from the shipyard. Bryan says no and he encourages Daniel not to get his hopes up because it is looking unrecoverable.

Then, Daniel's attention turns to the nearby house which he says looks like a haunted house. They go inside and Daniel is impressed by the furniture and other items inside. They soon learn that whoever lived there had a thing for vampires and drank blood. Daniel checks the body and learns that the man had fangs before finding garlic in his mouth. The man has been identified as 29-year-old online antique dealer Sebastian Wells. The body was discovered by a delivery driver who came to pick up a table. None of the neighbors hear anything. Since the coffin lid was hinged, Bryan believes it was opened and closed repeatedly. Daniel checks the man's body again and finds yellow rose petals which are normally stuffed in a vampire's chest to guarantee their demise after the heart was removed.

Then, he learns that the heart is gone and a religious necklace is found instead. They visit the church where they believe the necklace came from and speak to Reverend Joshua Mercado.

Josh is shown a picture of the necklace before they go inside and confirm that the necklace is missing. He says he never locks the doors so everyone has access to the church. They never had any problems before so Joshua wasn't worried about it. Joshua says he was at home in the presbytery the night before, but nobody can confirm that since he was alone. He knows about the murder on Blackburn Street. The Reverend knows about Sebastian being a vampire but he didn't know him well. He suspects that Sebastian was a troubled soul. Bryan says he'll get Scientific to dust the cabinets for prints and he wants a list of parishioners.

Josh agrees to cooperate before he complains about a young boy's dog digging up the church's yard. The young boy gives him the middle finger before fleeing the scene with his dog close behind him. Daniel returns to the office and prepares for Sebastian's postmortem. Dr. Lyle Fairley says he is meeting with a color consultant for his new upstairs office which belonged to Maxine. When Renae enters, Bryan introduces himself, but she isn't very friendly. She says there is no problem and she believes she is replacing the problem. Then, she reminds Daniel that he has work targets he needs to meet and she suspects everyone to stay on top of their quotas. When she leaves, they talk about her being a charmer. Then, Daniel puts on some music before joining Edwina and Grace for Sebastian's postmortem.

Lyle decides to watch the operation for Harrow's performance report. They check the fangs before Daniel requests Grace bring up the CT scan of Sebastian's skull. There are screws in his upper jaw confirming that the fangs are indeed dental implants. They find some type of burn on his neck. After checking his chest wound, Daniel finds multiple scars in the cubital fossa of the man's left arm. He suspects they're needle penetrations. Grace confirms they're on his right arm too and questions whether it was possible drug abuse. Daniel wants to order a full toxicology test to find out. Next, they locate a tattoo on his left calf that translates to eternal life. Daniel wonders if Sebastian was a devoted lifestyle vampire. Lyle's color consultant arrives so he leaves. Daniel asks for blood and urine samples.

He checks Sebastian's ribs and finds cuts directly where the heart had been removed. It isn't consistent with a narrow blade so Edwina says it might've been a stake to the heart. The precise nature of the cut makes Daniel believe the person responsible has worked with bone and tissues before. They check the man's stomach and finds out he has been drinking blood. If Sebastian had been consuming human blood regularly, his liver would've been badly damaged because the liver can't break down the iron in human blood. Sure enough, Sebastian was suffering from severe liver cirrhosis. Nevertheless, Edwina's test confirms that the man was not drinking human blood. Daniel decides to move in for a closer look while Grace gets a call and learns that someone is coming. When the call ends, she tells them there is something she needs to take care of before leaving.

Daniel checks Sebastian's neck and asks for the urine sample. He rushes out of the building and holds the urine up to the sunlight. He says there is only one blood disease that causes acute sensitivity to sunlight and chronic liver disease. When Edwina asks what condition he is talking about, Daniel says it is Erythropoietic Protoporphyrria. It is an extremely rare blood disease that causes the patient's skin to become incredibly sensitive to UV light. When exposed to UV light, their blood will start to boil and it attacks the nerve endings in the skin. It rips them apart causing a sunburn-like mark to appear on their skin. Sufferers of the condition need to spend their entire lives indoors and they require frequent blood transfusions to remove the porphyria toxins. That is why Sebastian had marks on his arms. Many years ago, sufferers drank animal blood and avoided daylight but were often persecuted and killed.

Daniel wants his theory confirmed and wants to check to see if CIB has found a missing heart. When Edwina leaves, Daniel encounters Ben Patterson who introduces himself as Grace's husband. Grace joins them and tries to escort her husband out of the building as quickly as possible. Lyle arrives and Daniel finds out he already knew about Grace's husband. Since Daniel has finished his last autopsy, Lyle wants him to get started on M300176 which is scheduled to be processed today. Daniel gets a call from Bryan who reveals they've found the contact details of Sebastian's mother. She is on her way in. Ursula is allowed to see her son right away and admits she knew something was wrong with him at a young age. She took him to the pool and he started screaming for no reason. He ended up having blisters on his skin and couldn't go outside during the day.

She knew about his coffin and fangs. She says he was a good boy and can't understand why someone would do something like this. Bryan asks her about Sebastian's friends and they track them down immediately. They met Sebastian in an online vampire forum and they don't think anyone from their group would've wanted to harm him. They were protective of him because he had a rough childhood. Unfortunately, the locals thought he was a weirdo and they often harassed him. It is revealed that Sebastian got the blood from his girlfriend Monika. They visit Monika's place of work and find out that she was named employee of the month at the butcher shop. She would know how to handle a knife and met Sebastian when she made deliveries at his place. They were together a couple of months and Monika didn't turn up for work this morning.

Nobody knows where she is and this includes Monika's flatmate. Then, Bryan tells Daniel he has spoken to the Met about the addresses for his son's mother and it will take a bit longer than expected. Daniel is asked if there is anything else he can think of to speed up the process, but Daniel claims there isn't. When Daniel returns to the office, Fern Harrow is waiting for him because he hasn't been answering his phone. Fern wants to see her brother but Daniel explains her brother is still alive. They walk along the street and discuss the boy's claim that he is Daniel's son and Fern wonders if he is telling the truth. Daniel says he didn't want to lie to her again and has to help James if he is telling the truth. Later that night, Daniel drinks and looks through old pictures before calling Grace. Renae asks if she is going to answer it but Grace says it can wait.

Grace tells Renae she needs to take off a few days for personal reasons and she never had to tell Maxine why, but Renae reminds her that Maxine isn't in charge. Grace is told to submit a request for leave form and she'll judge it on merit. Grace knows Renae doesn't remember her before reminding her she used to hire surgical rooms at Sunderland Private. Renae was sent to look for efficiencies several years ago and her audit got the place closed down. Although the place was losing money, Grace argues some of her friends lost their jobs and some haven't worked again. Grace knows Renae is there to find cuts and someone is going to lose their job. She wonders who it will be but Renae isn't willing to tell her. Later, Daniel gets a call letting him know that she is ready and he should bring cash.

Daniel meets the man, pays him, and gets a fancy car. Daniel is impressed that most everything in the vehicle is original but he won't ask the man how he got the items. He is encouraged not to set it on fire again before turning it on and driving away. Monika is found and brought in for questioning. She can't remember where she was two nights ago. She is asked about her bank account details which show a $28,000 transfer two nights ago. She claims it was a gift from Sebastian before Daniel asks about her 18th-century Georgian glass necklace. She says Sebastian was generous before saying they dated for a little while and broke up because she liked to tan. She learns about his death and refuses to answer any more questions until she has a lawyer. Later, Edwina reveals that the lab results have confirmed Daniel's theory. She asks him about Monika before Daniel confesses he doesn't think she killed him.

She doesn't seem like the type who believes in vampires and that doesn't match the killing. They talk about how vampires used to burn, eat, or bury the heart in sanctified grounds. That statement leads Daniel to a startling discovery and he soon finds himself at the church. He tries to find Joshua before running into the boy and his dog. The boy admits that the Reverend doesn't like him or his dog Cannoli. He goes on to say that Joshua doesn't like anyone who doesn't attend church and that includes the vampire guy. Daniel questions that and learns that the boy saw them arguing two nights ago when Sebastian caught him leaving hate mail at his door. The dog digs up a heart. Daniel looks around more and finds a stake that could be the murder weapon. Both items are taken back to the office and it is confirmed that the stake is the murder weapon.

Bryan admits he has seen everything and that Joshua is on his way to CIB now. Lyle confronts Daniel about the autopsies he should've completed by now. He threatens to use the red pen if Daniel doesn't get the autopsy started in five minutes. Daniel performs an autopsy on an older woman while Edwina and Lyle watch and assist. They discover what appears to be a vampire bite mark on the woman's neck, but Lyle says it is a snake bite. Lyle says she would've survived had it been a vampire before the woman jumps up and scares everyone to death. Renae is not happy that a 65-year-old woman was somehow admitted to the morgue alive. Daniel lets Lyle explain. He says Ruth Kovacs was bitten by a snake at her home and her husband called the family physician who was unable to find a pulse so he declared her dead at the scene.

Her pulse was suppressed by snake venom which wasn't sufficient to kill her. Instead, she was in a death-like coma. Lyle reminds her that the examining doctor signed her extinction certificate. When Renae says Ruth needs to be escorted home, Edwina volunteers to take her. Then, Renae tells Daniel and Lyle to get a statement from the doctor because she wants it in writing that QIFM is not responsible. Daniel talks to the doctor and learns that Ruth's husband wouldn't stop yelling at him so he couldn't check her vitals. He kept saying Ruth had been bitten by a Varcolac and that intrigues Harrow. Daniel remembers the book in Sebastian's home that had Varcolac on it and says it means vampire. Then, he learns that Andrei works as a vampire at the local St Hilary's church.

Daniel realizes something is wrong just before Edwina takes Ruth back to Andrei. Edwina tries to leave but Ruth tells him to put the kettle on for her. Daniel rushes to their place so he can save Edwina. Andrei attacks her from behind before going after Ruth too. Daniel tries to get in touch with Bryan but he doesn't answer. Daniel makes it in time to prevent Andrei from jabbing a stake through Ruth's chest. Edwina gets up and admits she won't volunteer for anything again. After that, Daniel talks to Bryan about everything that has happened. Andrei confessed to killing Sebastian because he was upset when a vampire moved in and thought he killed Ruth. Sebastian's mother is allowed to look at her son's body once again. She learns Daniel has children and believes he understands that you love them no matter what.

Later, Daniel runs into Grace and learns she is going to Sydney for a few days before she owns a house there with her husband. She didn't want to drop all of this on Daniel with everything going on with his son and whatnot. Daniel argues it is best for her to sort it out since he can't get involved with a married woman and ruin his reputation. She tells him to call in case he needs to talk before leaving. When Daniel returns, Lyle, Bryan, and Renae want to talk to him about an email. They go inside and talk about the Lyle receives from the DNA office this afternoon. Daniel learns that they might not be able to release the body from the shipyard as quickly as they thought because the boy's DNA doesn't match Daniel's. Then, Daniel denies anyone trying to contact him in the last few days.

Bryan shows him a video of someone jumping a fence at the police compound and searching the stolen vehicle. Bryan suggests more than one person was at the shipyard when the victim fell to his death and says they need to find this guy. He might be involved in the victim's death. Daniel returns to his boat and finds the lights on. He goes inside and finds the young boy down there. He turns around and calls Daniel his dad.

Summary: Harrow proves a suburban suicide is in fact murder, uncovering one family's secrets as he is forced to hide his own.

As the episode begins, we see a woman in a dress tied to a cinder block sinking beneath the water. She begins struggling to remove the ropes and does, but she can't make it to the surface quickly enough. After the intro, Dr. Daniel Harrow talks to his potential son James about music and his mom. Then, he asks James how he can be positive that he is indeed his son so James shows him a bunch of childhood photographs with his mother. They embrace before Daniel learns that his ex and James's mother died from breast cancer. James looked after himself because he didn't know that his father existed. He only found out after she died when he found a photograph in his mother's things. He admits he didn't search for Daniel because he was angry with him for not being there.

Daniel apologizes and says he doesn't understand why she lied about him. James admits he followed Daniel and watched him carefully to make sure he wasn't a bastard before finding out about his family and good life. James couldn't find a place to fit into Daniel's life so he wrote the goodbye note. Daniel quickly shifts the conversation to the dead boy at the shipyard but James claims he doesn't know much about the boy or his name. James borrowed the boy's car and found him dead after returning it to the shipyard. He panicked when he found the car being towed with his phone in it so he had to break into the police compound to retrieve it. James refers to himself as a software programmer but Daniel calls him a hacker and he doesn't deny it.

As a result, he diverted the security cameras at the shipyard to his phone and it can prove he had nothing to do with the boy's death. Daniel encourages his son to go to the police but James says he can't because he made the passport and he could do 15 years for that. Their conversation is interrupted when Bryan Nichols arrives and James quickly ducks into cover. Daniel works covertly to cover up evidence of his son's presence before Bryan pitches the idea that the young man who broke into the police compound could be Daniel's son. Nichols is convinced that the boy will reach out again and he thinks it would be best for both of them to tell him. He offers to help if the boy has done nothing wrong, but James motions to Daniel that he doesn't want it. Daniel tells Bryan he isn't sure if he even has a son so Bryan leaves a few seconds later.

Daniel looks around and finds that James has sneaked from the boat somehow. Next, Grace and Ben visit their old house together and go inside. Ben says they'll need to divide their stuff and Grace needs to sign the application for divorce. Daniel meets with Bryan and jokes about his overweight visitor before turning his attention to the unidentified female who washed ashore. The woman has no shoes, is underweight, and Daniel suspects she wasn't well. He checks her ankles and quickly finds rope burns on her skin, but her hands weren't tied. Daniel finds a ring and confirms the woman was married before the husband arrives and causes a commotion. The woman is identified as Erin Young and Bryan says the husband just got back this morning from a conference at the Gold Coast.

He found the house empty and there was no sign of a break-in, but Bryan says there was something interesting. They go inside and find a dialysis machine. Erin was suffering from end-stage polycystic kidney disease for which there is no real treatment except for a transplant. Although it can be painful, Daniel can't find any medication for pain and only low-dose analgesics. We learn that she had two kids and Daniel finds a picture of the jetty. They go down to the jetty in the picture and learn that the water is about four meters. A cinder block with a rope tied to it is pulled from that water so Bryan wonders if she wanted to end her life at one of her favorite spots. Daniel isn't sure about that before the daughter Izzy arrives and says her mother didn't drown herself.

Dave's son Nate arrives seconds later and confirms that Erin called him yesterday and said she wanted to see them. He learns about his mother's death and says it makes sense but Izzy and Dave can't understand that. Izzy doesn't like that Erin called him because Nate treated her bad, but Nate says Erin treated him bad. Dave and Bryan have to interrupt and defuse the situation. Nate explains Erin called yesterday and said she wanted to talk to them today so Izzy believes that means she didn't kill herself. Bryan consults with Harrow and Izzy and Dave were out of town while Nate claims he slept alone. Daniel approaches Dave and asks if his wife got any bad news from the transplant unit but he finds out that Erin wasn't on the list since she thought she would beat it.

Next, Daniel joins Renae and Edwina for Erin's autopsy. Daniel tells them that her kidney disease did not kill her before turning their attention to the rope burns on Erin's lower legs. They wonder if she threw herself in and Daniel checks her fingernails but they've been chewed down to the quick. He swabs her fingernails and believes the fingernails being chewed means she was stressed. Then, they find rope fibers around one fingernail and Daniel believes she undid the knot. They check Erin's lungs and discover that they've been waterlogged so she drowned alive. They check her stomach and find partially digested capsules leading Daniel to say digestion would've stopped when her heart stopped. Erin likely took the Ramipril capsules shortly before she died.

Daniel explains Ramipril is an enzyme inhibitor that helps lower blood pressure and she took more than she should've. Then, Daniel orders Edwina to order a full toxicology test and get Erin's older medical history. He wants to see if he can find any medication that wasn't on the prescribed list so he visits the couple's house again. When he arrives, he finds Nate arguing with an officer who won't let him inside before Daniel asks why he'd want to go inside. Nate believes Erin never liked him and he isn't sure why. Nate's comments make Daniel believe he is hiding something but Nate isn't willing to tell him yet. Daniel goes inside and checks the Ramipril bottle and finds that they've been mixed with other pills. He calls Edwina and orders her to check for opioids. Daniel calls Bryan while he is trying to get a statement from David to tell him about the oxymorphone tablets he found.

Daniel sits in her chair and says he believes someone brought them to her. He checks the chair carefully and finds a hidden compartment containing Erin's will. David is asked about Erin's will being changed and Bryan reveals she came from a substantial amount of money so David says he thinks the original will divide everything between him and his children. In the new will, Erin left everything to Nate and Nate took Erin to see the family solicitor not long ago.

David acts like he didn't know about Erin being on the painkillers before he is asked about Nate doing community service for dealing speed and oxy. Erin took a large dose of morphine before she drowned and Nate has a history of selling morphine. On top of that, he is the only beneficiary in Erin's will. They can't get in touch with Nate and David doesn't know where he is either.

Bryan and Daniel discuss the new evidence outside of the interrogation room and Bryan makes it clear he suspects Nate. Daniel returns to the office and bothers Edwina until she accidentally swipes right on someone she knows and didn't want to swipe right on. It seems the person in question is Bryan Nichols. Lyle enters, looks at Bryan's pictures, and realizes why Edwina swiped right on him. Bryan surprises them and tells Edwina he needs her but not Daniel. Harrow checks on Edwina seconds later and finds her dealing with the boy's body from the shipyard. Daniel watches as the boy's mother Mila Zoric enters and looks at her son's body. She cries for her son but stops when she looks in Daniel's direction. Bryan tells Daniel about Max Filip Zoric and his mother after that. Since Mila runs a successful company that develops share-trading software, she has brought her in-house attorney with her.

Mila approaches and tells Daniel she would like to talk to his son. Daniel apologizes and says he thought Max was his son for a short time. He says he might have a son, but if he does he lost him a long time ago. When she leaves, Bryan warns Daniel that this isn't going to go away. Then, Fern receives a call learning that her boss has decided to let her go. She enters and expects Callan to be there, but only finds James. She throws stuff at him until he begins calling her by her name and she calms down. Fern complains about James letting them think he was dead so he tries to explain himself. James says he has known about Fern for years and his mom didn't want anything to do with Daniel and claims she didn't know his name. When James was 13, he started looking on the Internet and found Fern.

He says she was doing exceptionally well at school but completely disappeared and went off the grid so he thought he was in trouble. Fern confesses that she was but says she is good now. Now, James is in trouble. Callan enters and interrupts. He says he was handing out his resume before learning about James being Fern's brother. Callan quickly learns about James's exploits before James dumps a bunch of fake passports onto the table and says the pay is really good. Callan realizes it is bad though. Ben and Grace look through some of their items together and decide to drink wine. They discuss Grace's career move and Ben doesn't understand that decision. She claims he failed but Ben says she never told him how. She says she broke that boy and Ben says it broke him as well. Daniel finds James at Fern's place before they discuss Fern and the car belonging to Daniel's father.

Daniel reveals his father was absent and even more so when he was at home. Then, Daniel tells James about his encounter with Mila and James realizes Daniel doesn't know about not knowing Max. He pleads with Daniel to get him the phone from the car so he can prove himself. James says he and Fern are renegades and they have to get that from somewhere. Plus, he has never asked Daniel for anything so he thinks he should help with him the phone situation. Daniel relents and says he'll try to get the phone. He returns to his boat later that night and watches old videos of James's mother. His answer to her question knocks something loose about Nate and his mother. In the morning, Bryan tells Daniel that Nate turned himself in last night and that doesn't surprise Daniel in the least since he doesn't think Nate killed his mother.

Nate is questioned and is quickly asked about the drugs. Daniel believes Nate didn't want his mother to die because he was finally connected with Erin. Then, Nate says Erin asked him to drive her to the solicitor so he did. He goes on to say he wanted to be with her every moment before she died. He denies knowing why she wasn't on the donation list. Daniel and Bryan argue about Nate after the interview concludes. Daniel says regret is a strong force before Bryan says he is going to track down Izzy. Daniel calls Edwina and asks about Erin's old medical records which still haven't arrived. He encourages her to get on the phone and start making a nuisance of herself to speed up the process. She gets them for him immediately after that. It sparks his interest when he learns she had a tonsillectomy in 1986 and asks if Exam Room 1 is free.

In the exam room, Daniel explains that Nate was born in 1996. Before Erin and her husband moved to Brisbane, Erin had a double tubal ligation or had her tubes tied so they aren't sure how they had Izzy in 1999. Daniel checks and confirms that this woman's fallopian tubes have never been touched so she isn't Erin Young. Edwina says one person must've known and Daniel believes it too. Daniel drives to their house once again and looks around for David Young. He walks to the pool area and finds that a few tiles have been removed. Skeletal remains are found inside so Daniel calls Bryan who is busy interviewing the daughter. Daniel is attacked by someone and finds himself tied up when he awakes. David is busy tying Daniel to a cinder block likely the same way he did Erin. Daniel knows he has found the real Erin Young and he wants to know more, but David tells him he doesn't need to know anything more.

David denies killing Nate's mother before blaming Bron for it. Daniel realizes Bron is the mistress and David says he wanted to keep Nate, but Erin was mad and jealous. Erin was rich and Bron wasn't so they decided to replace Erin to keep her money. And of course, that is why Erin wasn't on the transplant list. Bron wanted to confess so Erin had to kill her. David works to push the cinder block closer to the water. Daniel says David gave Bron morphine so she could barely move when he weighed her down and put her into the water. Bron wanted to live and she almost did. David tosses the cinder block over before Nate arrives, attacks him, and pulls the block back up. He attacks his father again and unties Daniel's feet. He says he heard it all and placed the rope around his dad's throat. Daniel tries to talk Nate out of being like his father and murdering someone.

Eventually, he sets the block down and sobs. Before too long, police and Bryan arrive at the scene. Nate looks at his real mother's bones while Bryan tells Daniel they'll have to look at dealing charges for the oxy. Daniel calls him a poor lost body before asking Bryan about the phone he found in the Mercedes at the shipyard. The phone has been sent to cyber crimes and they'll have to wait to see if they can open it. When asked why he is interested, Daniel says he doesn't like loose ends. Daniel encounters James when he returns to the boat and tells him about his workplace incident and that he won't be able to get the phone. James is sure they won't be able to open the phone, but Daniel still won't be able to get it. He believes only Max's mother would be able to get it since it was found in her car and she can claim it belonged to her son.

James doesn't like that idea because he made the false passport for Max and he won't do anything for him. James says he has made it this far without Daniel so he'll be fine without him. Later, the attorney tells Mila he spoke with his contact at police headquarters and the phone has gone to cybercrime, but Max's phone was found in his apartment. Although there likely wasn't anything useful on it, she still wants to see it. She looks through the phone and finds a picture of James and Max that interests her.

Summary: Harrow is reminded why he hates camping on a hiking trip with Fairley and Nichols, but things turn strange when the trio find themselves conducting an impromptu murder investigation and a life-or-death battle.

As the episode begins, we see a man running through the woods and two men with guns following closely behind. After the man falls to the ground and gets back up, he is shot. After the intro, Daniel Harrow performs an examination with Edwina nearby. Daniel explains that the cause of death is always cessation of the heart, but it might be bad luck in this case. Daniel talks about the young man gambling with his life so Edwina wonders if he is feeling old. Harrow quickly changes the subject by asking about Grace but Edwina hasn't heard from her so she encourages Daniel to call her. Dr. Lyle Fairley interrupts because he wants to talk to Daniel for a few seconds. Lyle reminds him of the upcoming trip for his Big Bang with the Gang.

Lyle confirms he has already cleared the upcoming group camping trip with Renaë. When Renaë interrupts, Daniel asks her about the quotas but she reveals that Lyle has been working the hours to make up for both of them and that is why she gave them time off for the camping trip. Later that night, Daniel looks through photos of his ex and his son. It also looks like photos of himself and his father. He contemplates calling Grace but doesn't. In the morning, Daniel goes to Lyle's meeting place and runs into Bryan Nichols. Both are a part of Lyle's plans and Bryan had to participate once his boss Crowley heard about it. They wonder where the others are at but Lyle is the only one who shows up. Meanwhile, Callan wakes up and finds Fern prepare breakfast for them.

He is worried because she has spent half a week of rent on the meal, but she says it is only a little treat and she got a new cleaning job. Callan reminds her that they're feeding three now since James will be joining them. Then, they talk about James and his fake passport business. Seconds later, James enters wearing a suit and tells them he doesn't have time for breakfast since he is going to job interviews. Meanwhile, Lyle and his best friends get into an argument about the songs on the radio before Daniel asks him what all of this is about. Lyle says he thought it would be nice since they know how outdoorsy Bryan is from his "whoot-who" dating profile. Lyle eventually admits he has something to share with them, but he isn't ready to tell them yet. They soon learn that Lyle wants them to walk further into the woods to find their campsite.

While Lyle grabs his belongings, Daniel and Bryan try to figure out what he is going to tell them. They think he might be getting married or coming out of the closet. They eventually conclude that Lyle has cancer before the hike begins. When they find the track closed, Daniel suggests they go back but Lyle climbs over the fence and urges them to continue. While they walk, Bryan talks to Daniel about the passport found on Max Zoric and reveals a false name, Jack Sheppard, was found in it. The name belonged to a notorious young English highwayman and escape artist so the creator likely has a good sense of humor. Bryan says it reminds him of Daniel but Harrow says it is likely a coincidence. Bryan admits he is wondering why Daniel never asked whether the UK police tracked down Tanya Reed. Daniel says he thought Bryan would tell him if he had found anything.

Bryan goes on to say there is pressure to investigate deeper into Max's death. Meanwhile, James visits the police station and watches as people scan their cards to get through. Then he follows a woman outside and steals her card. He goes back inside and passes through the checkpoint. He goes to the evidence floor in hopes of getting his cellphone back. He tells the woman in charge he is from cyber crime and needs to get a cellphone. He gives her information about the car the phone was found in. She uses the information to find the phone, but it has already been checked out by Bryan Nichols. James has no choice but to leave without it. He is upset though. Meanwhile, Daniel and Bryan try to force Lyle to tell them what his secret is. Bryan goes for a whiz and finds a house nearby so he tells Daniel about it. They're approached by a party ranger who reminds them that the track is closed.

The state ranger Vincent asks Lyle for his permit and quickly finds out that everything is in order. Although there have been some slips, Lyle is sure that they'll be okay. Grace tells Ben that they've finished but he doesn't hear her. Then, she gets a call on his phone and answers it. She introduces herself as Ben's wife and learns that the caller is Kirsty Lifton from HR at St. Catherine's. She is surprised to learn about Ben's job offer in Brisbane. Next, Daniel and Bryan learn that they've only made it halfway and they'll have to finish the hike tomorrow. Daniel argues with Lyle who says he wanted a nice place to share his information. Harrow encourages him to tell them now so they can go home, but Lyle takes off his gear and says they're not going anywhere. Lyle thought Bryan was bringing the stove, but he didn't.

And, it doesn't help that Harrow only brought one tent. He says he didn't even know who was coming, but Lyle doesn't understand that since he told them he was inviting his best friends. Bryan gets upset, says it is ridiculous, and he doesn't even like camping. He goes on to say it took him several days to get five pictures of himself outside so he could make a good impression on someone and avoid dying alone. Then, Daniel and Bryan get into an argument about who gets to sleep in the car and Lyle has to step in and break it up. Meanwhile, Grace argues with Ben about his decision to move to Brisbane. He isn't sure why it matters since they're divorcing. That night, Lyle cooks for the boys before they turn to alcohol. Lyle begins talking about the job well done surviving their professions and the dead. He tells Daniel that his father didn't since he saw his share of it in the war and it was too much for him.

He tells Bryan that he survived seeing the worst of what people can do to each other, but Bryan isn't sure since he has had two failed marriages and one estranged daughter. He admits he thought he has someone special but she wasn't what she seemed. Daniel says nobody is and Bryan tells him he is no better. After all, his ex just moved to escape him too. After that, Lyle tells them about the dancer, Titania, he knew and how they were going to elope. She left him with a note. What do they get for the job? Daniel says they get the authority to go where others can't and ask questions of the living and dead. Bryan pulls out his harmonica and sings a song for them. The others join him in song. Daniel sings until a man walks up behind them and says he loved the song. Then, he asks if they want to know how he died.

The man sits down and says he was shot in the back. When Bryan asks who shot him, the man says they did. He hasn't found his body yet so he isn't sure where he was killed and he has been left doomed to wander. The man introduces himself as Branch Goddard and says he was a botanist. Branch believes they're still after him before he mentions Spirit Falls and leaves. Daniel and the others discuss the man's claims. Bryan wonders if it too late to go home but Lyle gives them more alcohol. In the morning, James tells Fern he connected with some people and she says she worked. James says he is working a hard job for little money before they receive a delivery from James. Ella checks the door and denies that James is there. The delivery woman returns to her partner and confirms that they've met with James's sister.

Daniel wakes up with Bryan sleeping oddly close to him. He exits the tent and sees Lyle in his tighty whities. They argue about their visitor from the night before. Bryan wakes up and they continue on their hike. They stop because Bryan tries to take Lyle's alcohol. Lyle stops him and says that is for after their swim in the waterfall although none of them brought tongs. Daniel jumps in front of Lyle and tries to find out what is going on with him. Lyle says he'll tell them at the waterfall so Daniel checks his phone and learns that Branch went missing three years ago. And, customs was after him on suspicion of bringing in illegal plants. Bryan decides to go back but stops when he sees something nearby. He checks the plant in front of him, chews on the leaves, and confirms it is coca. They agree it shouldn't grow here unless it was planted by a botanist.

Daniel checks around the root and finds a human pelvis. They begin working to uncover the bones until Bryan says it has the same clothes and boots as the guy from last night. The guy has been here for several years and the tree has grown through his pelvic bone. Daniel says he either had a seed in his pocket or had ingested one and it passed through his digestive system. Lyle chimes in to say the bowel material would've made excellent fertilizer. Daniel finds evidence that the victim had been shot in the back. Harrow suggests the botanist went to South America and returned with a coca plant seed in his gut. Daniel says he was shot to death around here when gunshots ring out. They take cover and Lyle gets separated from the others. Bryan encourages Lyle to get help since he knows his way around better than anyone else.

He makes a run for it while Daniel and Bryan learn that there is one shooter and he is getting closer. Bryan leaves Daniel and encourages him to stay put. Harrow is soon taken hostage by the man with the gun, but Bryan uses a branch to the back of the man's head to convince him to drop the gun. Then, the state ranger Vincent arrives and admits the other guy is with him and he tried to warn them not to come up here. Bryan and Daniel are taken back to the cabin and the guys contemplate what to do with them. During their discussion, we learn that they've likely killed more. Vincent wants to know about Lyle so Daniel tells him that Lyle is an excellent bushman with the fitness of an Olympian and the stealth of a ninja. Daniel says he is likely briefing a response team to storm in here and save them, but he looks up and sees Lyle hiding above them.

Lyle motions to Daniel that he is going to ignite a fire with the remaining alcohol. Daniel causes a scene by getting into a fake fight with Bryan and headbutting him a few times. Lyle drops the alcohol and it doesn't explode so Bryan screams now. They attack the two men and rush for the rifle. Eventually, Bryan ends up with a rifle and the criminals are arrested. The men are taken away by authorities while Daniel and the others discuss the criminals and the coca plants. They say Branch was wanted for interview by Customs after his trip to Peru. He and his young brother Whitman went missing three years ago. Daniel notices Branch in the woods and approaches him. He tells him that they got the men who killed Whitman and who they smuggled coca seeds for. Branch blames himself and says his brother would've done whatever he wanted.

Daniel reminds him that they were betrayed and we see a flashback of Whitman's shooting. Branch was never the same after he saw his brother murdered. Daniel explains he tried to run but he didn't die. Harrow tells Branch it is time to start looking after himself before leading him back to authorities. Then, he tells Bryan about Cotard's delusion. Daniel approaches Lyle and tries to get him to tell them what he wanted to say. Lyle says he has decided to retire. When they return, Daniel confronts Lyle at the office and tries to talk to him about it, but Grace's arrival interrupts. Grace confirms the divorce papers are as good as done. Edwina is glad to see them because Max is having an autopsy. They learn that Dr. Samuel Bramson is in charge of the autopsy.

Samuel used to work there until he took his silver and left. Lyle wants Renae to tell them what is going on. She wants to talk to Lyle and Grace in her office. Daniel watches as Lyle argues his case to Renae and Mila is with them.

Summary: As Harrow's attempts to reconnect with his son are frustrated, Fern and James grow closer — while the baffling deaths of two teens sharpen Harrow's concern for his own children.

As the episode begins, we hear a news report and watch a tractor roll along the beach until it hits something. The driver gets out and finds something startling. When he goes in for a closer look, he finds a dead body. After the intro, we join Dr. Daniel Harrow as he checks Max's body and believes he might've been in a fight with James before his death. Dr. Lyle Fairley opens the door and interrupts. Lyle believes Daniel is second-guessing his work too, but Daniel denies it and says Bramson is being paid to find faults even if there aren't any. He is just trying to see what he might pick on, but Lyle doesn't understand why Harrow would be interested now. Daniel admits he doesn't want Lyle to be wrong and he wants the boy's death to be misadventure.

He wants to believe he has a son out there who is a long, long way from all of this. Meanwhile, James shows Fern around a nice flat that is closer to several pubs. She realizes he is worried about the people who came looking for him and he admits he is a little. He confirms he is going to move out and he recommends Fern do the same because he'll know she'll be okay there. Fern tells him that they'll never be able to afford this place so James takes her to an electronics store and tells the clerk he is there to collect. The clerk brings back three iPhones but James says he only ordered one and he doesn't have his card with him. Fern lends him her card and the clerk puts $1,900 back on her card. When they leave, James tells her those phones cost nothing to make but she doesn't like being complicit in fraud.

He apologizes for using her and promises to never do it again. Next, Renae walks in on Harrow searching for something and she has it. She reads the label and says it is Sidamo Arabica imported from Ethiopia. She tells him he'll need to pay for his expensive coffee. Then, they learn from Bryan Nichols that there has been two vehicle accidents. One victim is 17-year-old high-school student Kaara Oberg. A cyclist found her in a ditch after dawn and it is believed she was drinking at an end of the year school beach party. She went down the embankment sometime between 1 AM and 3 AM. The next one is 17-year-old Mitchell Vanderhaust who was run over by a tractor on a beach just after sunrise. Daniel likes the unique tractor case so Renae assigns him to the young woman's case.

Seconds later, Bryan has to break up a fight between two men outside. It turns out to be their parents Charlie Oberg and Ian Vanderhaust. Ian says his boy is dead and it is Kaara's fault because his son didn't drink until he met her. Charlie says his daughter didn't drink though. The argument nearly escalates into a fight until Bryan splits them up. Daniel asks Charlie if he'd like to sit down and if he'd like to see his daughter. Daniel tells him how the process will work with the autopsy and everything. He learns that the couple was boyfriend and girlfriend. Charlie says Kaara always ate well and never drank unlike himself. Daniel invites him to come inside to take care of himself, but Charlie says there is no point since everything good is gone. Then, Harrow steps into the autopsy room and learns from Edwina that Kaara was driving her dad's crash.

They look through the pictures and learn that she was barefoot and it looks like she drove straight from the beach. They argue a bit about whether or not she could've been drinking. There isn't much in the form of medical records besides a summary from her bulk-billing medical center. Daniel checks it and finds she visited several times to ask about irritable bowel syndrome before learning she was on a waiting list to see a specialist. The doctor was concerned she might've had an eating disorder, but she denied it. Daniel believes Charlie but Edwina argues parents don't know what their children are like. There are no signs of violence but she had paint on her fingernails. They check the CT scan and find a clear break between C2 and C3. Daniel theorizes that her head slammed into the hard window on impact and the weight of the body snapped the joint.

The pictures confirm she wasn't wearing a seat belt at the time of the accident. There are beer bottles all around the car but that doesn't sit well with Daniel. He orders a full tox before learning the boyfriend's PM is still going. Seconds later, Daniel checks in on Grace and Lyle who are arguing about the autopsy. Grace wonders if Daniel can settle it before asking about heat loss in sand. Mitchell was run over by a tractor and the crime scene team arrived an hour after that. By that time, the body temperature had dropped to ambient. Daniel asks about the conditions before saying there is evidence that alcohol consumption can cause a drop in the set point of the brain's thermoregulatory center. Grace believes it is fishy and he might've died before the tractor ran over his body. Daniel notices something on the boy's leg.

He pinches off a bunch of sand from the boy's leg and they check it out in a microscope. It is compared to the sand found on Kaara's body and they're different so they believe they were at different beaches. Daniel and Grace go to the seaside and try to find out where it happened. Daniel explains the dry sand would be an insulator from heat loss. They don't see any evidence of a beach party so they call Nichols to see if he can tell them. He arrives and takes them to the scene of the party. The kids they went to school with said both attended the party and Daniel confirms it is the same sand found on Kaara. Bryan believes Mitchell's girlfriend drove him to the spot where he was found. Grace admits his body temperature suggests he was dead before he was hit by the tractor and Daniel says he isn't sure Kaara was drinking that night.

Bryan complains about being drug out to there and Grace admits she should return and help Lyle write up the PM. Harrow decides to stay and poke around a bit. He notices a young girl watching him from a distance but she tries to flee when he approaches her. He tells her he is with the coroner's office before asking the girl if she knew the victims. She confirms she knew them and they had a fight. She says Mitchell was a golden boy but Kaara wasn't academic or sporty. She suggests they might've broken up and she didn't see them leave together. Daniel asks about Kaara drinking but the girl doesn't answer his question before she leaves. Later, he gets a call from Edwina confirming Mitchell was only drinking and he had a high enough blood alcohol level to fall asleep on the beach. It wouldn't have been fatal though. As for Kaara, she had a blood level of 0.26 so her dad was wrong.

Daniel returns to the office and finds Charlie waiting for him. He wants to take his daughter home but Daniel says it isn't possible yet. Charlie understands his daughter was drunk and shows Daniel something Mitchell's father sent him. It is a video of Kaara being drunk at school and some of the kids ridiculing Mitch because of it. Charlie admits he thought he knew her but they were right and she was a drunk like him. He leaves shortly after that conversation. Daniel returns to the autopsy room and checks on her fingers again. When Edwina enters, he tells her that her stitching is nice. He says he wanted things to be different. Daniel zips up her bag before returning to his office and finding Renae in there. When he pulls out a bottle of alcohol, she reminds him it is an alcohol-free workplace so he puts it back. When asked, he admits he was upset she didn't give him the tractor case.

She believes he spent the whole day projecting a mystery into the case, but Daniel reminds her that Charlie swore his daughter didn't drink. Then, she turns her attention to his work performance over the years and says he performs just as many PMs as others, but he doesn't do them in order or on time. She makes it clear that QIFM is over budget and will likely be cutting someone soon. She alludes to the fact that Daniel might be that person. Next, he runs into Lyle who is going through boxes of evidence. Lyle shows him a picture of Jack and they discuss him briefly before Lyle says he is looking for mistakes. Lyle admits Bramson has him spooked and he is worried he might've missed something with Max. He was tense because he thought Max was Daniel's son and didn't want to mess anything up. Lyle says he is not going to leave if Bramson finds something because he doesn't want that as his swan song.

Daniel tells Lyle he has nothing to worry about because he is an excellent pathologist. Lyle replies they were very upset for him so he is glad Max wasn't his son. That night, James takes Fern and Callan out to the club for drinks. Fern wants him to tell the truth about the dead boy. James comes clean by admitting the boy's name was Max and working for his mother at a big software company. Max wanted to leave the country and needed a passport so James agreed to help him. He says a 14,000 pound medical bill is a lot for a 14-year-old kid looking after his sick mom. He did some dodgy stuff but didn't kill Max and that is why he needs his phone. He tells them about diverting the security cameras to his phone because Max stabbed him in the back. He gave Max the passport but Max said he didn't have any cash. He returned to the car to get his phone but found it being towed by cops.

He went back to tell Max and he was already dead. Callan tells him to speak to police but James doesn't want to go to jail. Daniel calls Fern who denies being with James. When the call ends, Daniel images Jack Twine is on his boat with alcohol and his musical preferences. Daniel asks how he can love a boy who seems determined to avoid him. Jack says it isn't about being loved in return and it is a job they do because it needs doing. Daniel confesses he isn't sure he believes anything James says, but Jack says he has to believe his son before he disappears. After looking at a picture of himself with Fern, Daniel decides to visit Mr. Oberg. He finds something bad and tries to break down the door. Once he gets inside, he finds Charlie on the floor nearby a bottle of alcohol and calls for help. Harrow watches as the emergency service personnel take him away. Then, Daniel checks Kaara's room.

He looks nearby and finds tubes of artist paint that account for the paint on her fingers. He finds a sketchbook from Kaara with a letter inside about her application to the Royal Australian College of Art. Daniel finds out that she was accepted to the school. He finds an odd sketch of a woman with a snake coming from her stomach. He checks the fridge and finds a note from Kaara asking her dad to try a different cereal. He returns to the office and tells Grace about the bread, crackers, cereal, and rice on the list. He says she was trying to watch her weight by avoiding carbs. Her GP thought she had an eating disorder and she thought he had IBS. Daniel thinks it was something else so they dive in for a closer look. They find that she ate pizza although she was trying to avoid carbohydrates. He checks the undigested food and confirms it does not have traces of alcohol.

Daniel confirms she wasn't drinking and theorizes that she had auto-brewery syndrome. As a result, her digestive system would've converted carbs into ethanol. When she ate carbs, her body created alcohol and she got drunk. She was so drunk she could barely stand and couldn't lift Mitchell's body into a car. Grace says someone had to do it so Daniel remembers the girl he talked to earlier and her M key chain. Daniel visits the girl's house and finds that she has been cleaning her car. He approaches Madison and she gives him permission to enter the gate. He asks if there is sand in her vacuum from moving Mitchell's body. She admits it wouldn't clean out his blood before Daniel says he saw her note to Kaara and knows they were friends. She encouraged Kaara to apply to the art school. Madison says Mitchell broke her before we see a flashback of them fighting.

He didn't know what to do so he sat down behind Kaara's car. When she thought he left, she went to console Kaara but he had fallen asleep behind the car and Kaara accidentally rolled over his body. Then, she went forward. Kaara didn't know but Madison knew she would be charged with manslaughter. Madison moved the body to the main beach so the tractor would run over the body in hopes of saving Kaara. Madison shows Daniel a video in which Kaara says she can't go to college because she has to look after her father. Daniel meets with Charlie and tells him everything as he looks at his daughter's body. When he returns to his office, Renae scolds him for being out for most of the day again. She says Inspector Crowley called her and told her Madison presented herself to police. Renae pulls out the alcohol and pours them a drink. She says well done. Once they drink the shots, she confiscates the rest of the alcohol. Daniel runs into Grace and tells her about his whiskey. He invites her to go with him to buy some before Ben interrupts. Lyle arrives and Ben talks to him in Japanese. Then, Ben explains Lyle is letting him store some things in his garage. Lyle and Ben decide to join the couple for a drink but Renae interrupts and asks Lyle to attend the meeting with the Department of Justice. Daniel and Grace are forced to tag along as well.

Mila Zoric is there and Bramson says he is going through his results. Bramson agrees that the cause of death was a fall from the ship. Lyle asks why they're there before Bramson turns their attention to the damage on Max's right hand. Lyle believes it happened when Max hit the ground, but Bramson suggests otherwise. He goes on to call the injury a boxer's fracture and says it happened when Max hit someone. Daniel remembers James having a mark on his face. Bramson believes it happened just before his death and he was carried over the rail with significant forward momentum. When that ends, Bryan consults with Daniel who admits there might've been someone else on the boat. Nichols wonders if that person wrote Daniel's name on the back of Max's passport and left a letter for him. Daniel asks him about the security cameras being off in the hour when Max died and wonders if the phone had anything to do with it.

Bryan admits cybercrime couldn't unlock it. When asked, Daniel says he hasn't heard from his son. He leaves before Bryan tells his colleague to get in touch with the fingerprint bureau. Seconds later, he learns they found a partial print on the ship rail and a smudged thumbprint on the glove box of the Mercedes. A solid index print was on the phone in the glove box and it matches the print from the letter. These prints belong to someone else. Bryan realizes someone was with Max when he died. James walks around the couch while Fern and Callan sleep. He picks up her phone and Callan wakes up so he puts it back and makes an excuse.

Summary: While pressure mounts on Harrow to stop defending his son James, two baffling deaths demand all his wit and courage to solve before another life is lost.

As the episode begins, a woman checks on her dog, Winston, and finds a dead man in the nearby swimming pool. After the intro, we see the digital recreation of Max's fall. Bryan Nichols tells his team that Dr. Bramson believes Max had a physical altercation with another person just moments before he fell to his death. He admits that Dr. Lyle Fairley might've got it wrong when he said it was a misadventure. He tells his bosses he wants the case reopened as a homicide investigation but is told that the evidence is thin. He goes on to say that they found prints on Max's vehicle and those prints belong to an unknown individual. Those prints match the ones found on the phone in the glove box as well as the note written to Daniel Harrow.

Bryan is convinced that Daniel's son is alive and somehow involved in Max Zoric's death. He wants to tap Daniel's phone so he can see if he contacts his son. Daniel goes searching for Fern but she isn't home and she isn't answering her phone. As he leaves, the package carrier asks him about Fern and when she could return. He doesn't have any answers for her. Her partner watches from across the street. Lyle talks to Grace about his new hobby and hanging out with Ben. Daniel joins them and learns about Lyle taking up yoga, meditation, and Zen relaxing tea. Lyle admits it was hard to deal with Bramson scrutinizing his work. As a result, he is creating a new Lyle and he intends to put his stress and anxiety behind him.

The body of Myles Finney arrives at the morgue seconds later and Bryan explains he was a 19-year-old resident of Wickham Apartments. He was found after dawn in the complex's swimming pool by one of his neighbors. Myles was liked and often helped with odd jobs around the apartment complex to help pay for rent and to top up his disability allowance. Myles had been diagnosed with moderate intellectual and physical disabilities but he could swim like a fish. When Daniel asks about the next of kin, he learns that Myles was a foster and was in and out of different homes all his life. While they prepare for the autopsy, Grace ignores Ben's calls. Daniel asks her about that so she says she thinks Ben moves back to Brisbane to try to get back together with her. She couldn't sign the divorce papers because they didn't have a witness.

She says she doesn't want to stay married to him though. Edwina interrupts to let them know that Myles is ready to go. Grace checks the boy's wallet and finds a bus pass and some coins, but no ID or bank cards. He also had a bag of sweets in the front pocket of his jeans and amethyst, obsidian, and rose quartz rocks. Daniel admits he used to have a rock collection when he was a child. Then, their conversation turns to Myles's disability which meant he had a mental age of 11. They find a possible pressure contusion from a thumb or the pool ladder from a fall on his arm. Daniel admits it could be either of those, but it might've happened hours before he died too. He says there is no way to be sure before finding that the boy's eyes are bloodshot and there is some swelling on his eyelids. They check with the Endocam and find chemical burns.

Daniel says it certainly wasn't from the pool water so they open him up for a closer look. Then, he says his respiratory tract is badly ulcerated and the burns continue into his lungs and bronchial tract. Daniel concluded that he asphyxiated but not in water. He wonders if Myles inhaled some type of corrosive gas right before he died. Grace suggests it might've been pool chemicals. They try to confirm it. Daniel says chlorine gas reacts to the moisture in a person's eyes, mouth, and lungs and forms hydrochloric acid. They use a Litmus strip and confirm that it is acid. Due to the severity of the burns, Daniel believes the gas must've been extremely concentrated. He wonders how it happened. Next, Bryan and Daniel go to the pool and talk to the man in charge. They learn that Myles took care of the pool and mixed the chemicals.

The man explains that Myles was a hard worker and didn't make mistakes once someone showed him how to do something. He also admits he is going to miss him while Daniel confirms that the PH levels are fine. The man, Terry Penn, agrees to show them the shed. Once the doors are opened, Daniel finds a lot of chemicals inside, but no signs of a spill or accident. Daniel doesn't understand why Myles would suddenly make a mistake after six months and Terry says he never made a mistake. Then, they're allowed to look through the boy's flat. Daniel finds some cleaning chemicals but nothing to make chlorine gas. We learn that Myles had a collection of rocks and reviewed them on his YouTube channel which only had 12 followers and most from the apartment complex.

Daniel doesn't understand how Myles died from chlorine gas but ended up in the pool. Bryan wonders if he was trying to wash his face with the water and fell in. Daniel says he died before he fell in and someone put him in the water. They talk to another resident who says Myles asked how she could get his cards back. He wanted to get his bank cards back from the manager Terry. Myles was forced to give Terry his bank cards and PIN numbers when he moved in. Terry promised he'd take the rent out and make sure Myles got paid for the odd jobs. She claims Terry took his disability allowance and she encourages Myles to go to the police but he went to Terry instead. Myles threatened to go to the police if Terry didn't get his cards back and she says you can imagine how that went over.

They're surprised that this happened yesterday afternoon out by the pool. They try to talk to Terry once again but he escapes in his vehicle. A police cruiser goes after him. Daniel and Bryan are convinced they've found their man. When Daniel returns to his boat, he is approached by two men in suits before being taken to Mila Zoric. He jokes about the disgruntled workers coming for her before she gives him a drink. When Mila mentions Daniel's son, he asks what she wants from him. She thinks Daniel knows something about Max's death and she says they both know that James was in the shipyard when he died. Daniel denies knowing anything before Mila says James isn't the person Daniel thinks he is. She reveals that James stole $22 million from her company. She goes on to say she paid for all of this by understanding that everyone wants something and you can use that to get them to pay.

She admits she thought she could stop Max's extravagant behavior if he worked with her. He is dead and she failed to understand her son. She looked into Daniel and believes he is like her. She claims he wants to reconnect with a lost boy. Daniel says he would never put his child in danger and she says she doesn't want to hurt James. She only wants to know what happened and why. She claims they can move on past the stolen money. Daniel tries to call Fern again but she doesn't answer. He leaves a message encouraging her to tell James to call him. Matthias argues that Daniel will never give up his son, but Mila believes he might to protect his daughter. Fern and Callan move boxes while ignoring another call from Daniel. Callan wants to answer his phone but Fern says he can't because Daniel will lead the two people to them and James.

Callan wonders what James has done and whether it'll put Fern in danger too. Fern thinks they'll be okay as long as nobody knows where they are. Callan is still concerned about trusting James so Fern says he only needs to trust her. James enters with champagne so they can celebrate the move. Callan doesn't understand how he can afford it at $200 a bottle. Fern is happy though. Then, James says he applied for a new credit card but forgot to give them the new address. It has been dropped off at Fern's mom's house so he'll need to go there and get it. Fern offers to go since nobody is looking for her. When they step out of the room, James checks Fern's phone and looks through the contacts list. When Fern goes for the mail, Bryan confronts her and says the text message said 9.

She seems confused says she wanted to ask him about something. She has been thinking about what Daniel said to him on the Bettie. James watches from a hiding place as Fern asks Bryan about having a half-brother. She goes on to tell him the rest of the things Daniel told her while James uses his phone to break into Bryan's vehicle. Fern keeps Bryan busy while James works to steal files from Bryan's computer. Nichols asks Fern to call him if she hears from James so she asks what he has done. Bryan won't tell her though. James is gone by the time Bryan returns to his car. When James returns home, Fern asks why he would use her phone to text Bryan Nichols. James admits he needed to make sure Bryan wasn't at his office so he could go there and try to get his phone back. He confesses it didn't work and Fern is upset that James used her again. Callan hears them arguing and makes sure everything is fine. Cal is worried about Fern because she is cutting James too much slack.

Daniel runs into Lyle at the office and finds he is still drinking the smelly tea and conducting a yoga session every morning at sunrise. Daniel turns down his offer to join them before getting a call from Bryan Nichols. Harrow meets with Nichols who tells him about his conversation with Fern who asked about her brother. Then, Daniel learns about schoolteacher Leonard Thompson who has been dead for 24 to 36 hours. The history teacher was recently suspended from the local high school after a physical altercation with a male student. Although they haven't confirmed the allegation, they found a resignation letter. Leonard's body is found near the door and Daniel finds he has symptoms similar to Myles. Bryan shows Daniel an artillery shell which Bryan says is a World War I gas shell. Leonard bought it illegally as well as a bunch of other items. Daniel says the green cross on the shell means it contained a pulmonary agent.

He says diphosgene and Bryan says chlorine. They believe Leonard dropped the shell causing it to crack. The gas leaked out and turned into chlorine gas. Daniel returns to the office and compares the lung tissues from Leonard and Myles. The damage is almost identical so they both inhaled chlorine gas in the same suburb. Grace wonders if Myles attended school and met Leonard there, but Daniel soon learns that he didn't attend the same school. Daniel talks to a colleague of Leonard who knew him for 30 years. She is concerned that Leonard did this to himself due to recent circumstances. She says the boy who made the complaint has always been difficult and was expelled from another school for his violent behavior. His mother thought he could do no wrong. Then, Daniel tries to get the boy's name and address. Daniel visits Alex Bryant and talks to the boy's brother and mother.

Amanda and Alex Bryant have no sympathy for Leonard Thompson. He also learns that Alex knew Myles who he refers to as mental. Alex denies having anything to do with Myles's death while saying he went to kickboxing and stayed there until he spent the night at his girlfriend's place. Daniel returns to the office and watches Myles's YouTube videos. He checks on the body before Lyle joins him. Lyle offers Daniel some of the tea he is now eating and refers to them as forest lollies. That triggers something for Daniel. He checks the picture of Myles's candy on his computer before going to Brenda's Market where they're selling the same candy. He talks to the clerk and learns that Myles was there two days ago, bought a bag of lollies, and left. They look through the CCTV footage together and watch Myles check out at the register.

His friend Cooper Bryant stops him outside so Daniel returns to the Bryant house and looks for Cooper. He finds the boy sitting under a tree and confirms Myles was his only friend and they went to the teacher's house together. Cooper says they wanted to get back at Thompson by trashing his house. When they broke in, they got distracted by his weapon collect and Myles picked up the shell before Thompson walked in and caught them. Myles freaked out and dropped the bomb. He picked it up and the gas spewed everywhere. Thompson tried to save Myles's life. Cooper helped Myles run to the pool. He stopped breathing and Cooper didn't know what to do. He pushed Myles into the pool. He admits he made Myles go to Thompson's place. Daniel encourages him to tell the police but Cooper says he doesn't want to go to jail.

The boy pulls a grenade out of his backpack and the pin has been pulled. Cooper blames himself but Daniel tries to convince him otherwise. He relents and gives Daniel the grenade before hiding behind the tree. Daniel tosses the grenade and covers Cooper until it explodes. After that, Daniel meets with Bryan who says they've found Terry hiding in a caravan park. He is being charged with embezzlement. As for Cooper, he will likely be charged with B&E and interfering with a corpse. Bryan hopes the child's court will go easy on him. Daniel learns that Edwina combed Myles's hair even though he is being cremated by the state. Daniel returns his rocks to his pocket before the body is taken away. Ben tracks down Grace and she wants to ask about his move to Brisbane but he is eager to get the papers signed.

A solicitor, Sage, has joined him and she soon finds out that Sage is Ben's fiancée. Seconds later, Lyle gives Daniel some of the tea he has been drinking. Daniel reads the ingredients and tells Lyle he has been taking a very potent psychedelic. Lyle can't believe he has been eating magic mushrooms and importing Class A drugs into the country. He gets upset when he remembers who he has given some of it to. Renae enters and finds a box from Lyle on her desk. Daniel tracks down Callan and says he needs to speak to James who comes down the stairs. They argue about Daniel not helping his son before Daniel says he spoke to Mila. James is asked about the $22 million he stole from Mila but he claims Mila is playing Daniel. He says she is lying because she is a criminal just like her son.

He claims Max stole the money and that is why he needed the fake passport. Then, Daniel tells his son about the new autopsy and how it says Max got into a fight before his fall. They argue about the phone and James putting Fern in danger. James says he told Fern everything and she still wants to help him. Moments later, James goes out and uses his computer to check the camera feed. It is a video feed of Bryan in his office. His computer messes up until a colleague enters and tells him about a call being intercepted from Daniel's phone. It is the call telling Fern he needs to speak to her brother.

Summary: The mysterious death of a hotel maid draws Harrow into a dark world of espionage and assassination, while Nichols edges closer to catching Harrow's wayward son James.

As the episode begins, we see a woman with a bloody mouth outside of a motel. She is fiddling with her phone as she stumbles toward her vehicle. She manages to get into her vehicle and drives away only to crash into a garbage can moments later. After the intro, James checks on Bryan Nichols while pretending to be with tech support. Nichols agrees to give him as much time as he needs since he is going to be out of the office for most of the day. Bryan's colleague enters so he can give her something to take to the evidence room. James watches carefully as Bryan unlocks his safe. It is the phone and James uses the computer to snap a picture of the evidence bag.

Bryan learns there might be another lead on Harrow's son since they've found a study visa for James Reed. When asked by Bryan, James checks his email and finds a picture of his visa so he pretends immigration hasn't sent anything. James makes up an excuse to leave while Bryan's colleague makes sure he is okay with the case since he has known Daniel for so long. Bryan says that is why he gave Daniel every chance. Meanwhile, Daniel finds Grace looking at pictures of Ben and his new girlfriend, but she denies she is stalking her ex. Daniel learns about Ben's fiancé before Edwina enters and asks Daniel about speaking Spanish. They step into the hallway and find Renaë trying to talk to Carl from Venezuela.

His wife had a heart attack at the wheel and he doesn't want to leave until he sees her. Dr. Lyle Fairley has been put in charge of doing her autopsy. Carl wants to know how his wife Gabriella died. He doesn't believe it was a heart attack since she was 28 and says they first thought it was a car accident. He goes on to say that her great-grandmother still posts photos of her tomatoes on Instagram. Daniel promises to do everything he can to find out what happened, but it is going to take a few hours. Carl is okay with that. He refuses to leave Gabriella since they've been together since she was in school. The autopsy begins and a CT scan shows no sign of a stroke or aneurysm. Daniel finds injuries on her mouth and nose but they could be from the vehicle collision. There was no damage to the vehicle though since it was barely moving when it hit the trash bins.

They agree to take a sample of the blood since it is an odd color. Daniel goes in for a closer look and finds more cuts and bruising on the inner lips. Plus, her tongue and throat are swollen. Then, he finds some sort of fruit in her mouth. He uses the endocam and finds that her larynx was swollen to the point that it was almost completely closed. She could barely get air and Grace realizes that there is excess mucus. Daniel pulls a raspberry from the woman's throat and finds more inside. They were swallowed whole. He believes the red liquid on the woman's mouth is raspberry juice and not blood. Since there is mucus, they know she didn't choke on them, and the raspberries aren't large enough to block her airway. Grace suspects anaphylaxis and Daniel agrees with that assumption. Daniel concludes that Gabriella was allergic to raspberries.

Daniel tells Carl about it, but Carl says she would eat them all of the time when they could afford them. She never had a reaction before so Daniel asks where she would get the raspberries. Seconds later, they head to the motel where Gabriella worked since she might've got the raspberries there. Daniel admits that the toxicology will confirm if something is wrong with the raspberries, but not fast enough to stop someone else from eating them. They talk to the manager who doesn't want to discuss Gabriella's case in front of everyone. Daniel notices the security room with multiple camera feeds before the manager leads him to the kitchen. Along the way, he tells them he doesn't know why Gabriella left when she did since she didn't clock off or fill out her timesheet.

Once they arrive, the manager complains to two workers about not adhering to rosters and break times. They run into Fiona who was friends with Gabriella. Fiona says she didn't see her last night because they had different shifts before she is told the manager wants to see her before she leaves. Mr. Moore tells her she knows why and she admits she does, but Daniel finds the conversation interesting. He also notices she has a band-aid or bandage on her arm. Next, they talk to the head chef who says the raspberries are $80 a kilo and are flown in from Tasmania. She is sure there is nothing wrong with them since they're the best. She quickly pops one in her mouth and says they're only good for fruit platters because they're so expensive.

Derek Moore explains they're a part of the welcome packs which only go out to the facility's VIPs. Only one went out yesterday and that went out to Room 1503. Derek quickly interrupts to keep her quiet. Derek claims there is nothing wrong with the raspberries and Gabriella couldn't access them since room staff isn't allowed in the kitchen. Daniel suggests she came in contact with them up on level 15, but Derek says no because she didn't work VIP levels. He goes on to say that the VIP floor has top security and even the maids would need card access. Daniel asks to look at the security footage but Derek doesn't want that to happen. Derek reminds them that the guests pay a lot of money for their privacy and he isn't going to violate that without a warrant.

Daniel asks what happens to the leftover fruit platter before going outside and searching through the garbage can belonging to Oxley + Stirling. Daniel finds a receipt from room 1509 which shows they purchased champagne and abalone, but there is nothing about raspberries. Daniel says there was only one fruit platter yesterday and it should be in the trash can but it isn't and Gabriella couldn't have taken it home since it would've been in her vehicle. Daniel wants to go to the 15th floor, but Grace claims it doesn't matter since the chef ate one and they weren't poisonous. She wants to go back to work and she isn't going to ride with Harrow who smells like trash. Then, Daniel notices the trash cans Gabriella ran into. He searches the ground and finds a key card for the motel and suspects it came from Gabriella. He uses the card to go to the 15th floor.

Seconds later, he uses it to sneak into room 1503. He snoops around a bit before being overwhelmed by two Russian men. He tells them he is searching for raspberries before he is guarded in the living room. A woman enters and asks Daniel if he is working on the maid's case and he confirms he is. She wants to know how Gabriella died. When Daniel asks who they are, she threatens to call the police and report an intruder in their suite. He tells her about the Anaphylaxis, raspberries, and fruit platter delivered to this room before they chat in Russian. As Daniel is escorted out, he shows the woman a picture of Gabriella and pleads for information. She doesn't answer and only tells Daniel to not come back to her suite. Next, he uses his computer and learns that the woman was a part of the Russian activist group Radical Action.

Grace enters and learns that the woman's name is Yelena Grishenko and she is a Russian journalist and environmental activist. Yelena grew up in a Russian coal town and got childhood emphysema along with 30% of the rest of her town. She is in town for a public talk but nobody knows where and that includes the ticket holders. They'll only know an hour before she speaks before she has received a lot of death threats. Daniel wonders if someone from the fossil fuel industry wanted to shut her up or someone with the Russian government. He suspects the raspberries were poisoned with something intended for Yelena but Grace claims otherwise since the lab report confirms the raspberries were okay. Gabriella had no drugs, alcohol, or poison in her system either. She claims Carl lost his wife due to bad fortune.

Daniel returns to Carl moments later and lets him see his wife. He tells him about their discovery and how they believe she died. Carl thanks Daniel before he leaves. When Daniel returns to his office, he is bothered by a young boy named Louie. They talk about the dead things in Daniel's office and how Louie wanted to have his guinea pig stuffed when he died. They talk about Pythagoras which was the guinea pig's name. As for the real Pythagoras, he had a lot of useful life advice such as not sharing your roof with swallows. The boy says beans give him a tummy ache before Daniel argues that raspberries are worse. Daniel is surprised when Warrington enters and he learns she is the boy's mother. She quickly complains about Daniel letting her son in there and the five PMs he needs to complete before he leaves for the night.

When they leave, Daniel tries to contact Fern who is busy cleaning. She tells her dad that James isn't there and she doesn't know where he is. She tries to get her dad to help James. She says she knows what it is like to need help and that is why she is helping him. She claims he isn't a bad person and just needs someone who believes in him. Daniel asks if James told her about the $22 million he stole from the dead boy's mother. Daniel says he wants to help but James needs to start by telling both of them the same story before she abruptly ends the call. Daniel finishes the autopsies and learns that Lyle has a garrotting. Another body is brought in and it appears that the man was choked with a piano wire. There is no ID but Daniel believes the man's tattoo is a Spetsnaz tattoo. He explains it is a tattoo for the Russian special forces.

It also looks like the man has a bite mark on his hand. The autopsy begins on the man and they confirm that the bruising on his neck matches the internal bruising around the larynx. Grace tells Lyle about the man's mucus so strangulation is unlikely. Daniel looks at a scan of Gabriella's teeth before saying he thinks her teeth will match the man's bite mark. Daniel and Grace wonder if Gabriella was force-fed the raspberries by the man on their autopsy table. Daniel believes Gabriella got between the man in Yelena who is likely in serious danger. Daniel and Grace rush to the hotel while Daniel calls Edwina and asks her to run more toxicology tests on the man and Gabriella. Daniel approaches Derek and tells him they need to talk to Yelena but he claims there is nobody there by that name.

Grace finds out that Yelena's talk is being held at the hotel, but Derek won't let them in without a ticket. Daniel is allowed to talk to Yelena after threatening to call the feds. She is deadset on going on the stage unless Daniel can show her a face. When she leaves, Daniel asks Derek about Fiona sneaking off to the doctor's office early yesterday. She likely got Gabriella to cover for her on the VIP floor so they need to see the footage to find out who came into this room. They check the footage and watch as Gabriella enters the room and rushes off. Two men exit the room and go after her. One of the men is the dead man but the other one is still out there. Daniel calls Bryan and tells him about the Russian agents so he can tell the feds. Bryan wants Harrow to wait, but he spots the man and it is clear he is going to do something crazy.

Daniel decides to go after the man after telling Grace to tell Yelena and her security. Daniel chases the man through the motel and outside. The man stops and Daniel asks him if the maid saw him poisoning the fruit platter. They couldn't have a witness so they stuffed the raspberries down her mouth. The assassin couldn't let his friend go to the hospital so he had to die another way. The Russian assassin attacks Daniel until the motel staff comes outside and he decides to leave. Daniel tells him he has failed, but the man suggests otherwise. Harrow wonders what he has done before we see Yelena walking down the hallway. Grace tries to stop her from going out while Daniel rushes back inside. Daniel calls Grace to tell her that the Russian planted and poisoned something. Daniel watches as Yelena prepares to use an inhaler and believes it could have been poisoned.

He tells Grace it is the inhaler. They run toward Yelena to stop her from using the inhaler and Grace gets it. As Daniel is led outside by police, Fiona approaches and admits it was her fault and Gabriella died because of her. Daniel says it was terribly bad luck and terribly bad people. Daniel and Grace are taken away by police. Yelena gives her speech while Derek looks at the picture of Gabriella and removes it from the wall. Before long, Daniel is released and he sees a news report about the Russian activist being saved by Federal police. Grace joins him and realizes there is no mention of them. Grace wants to take credit for saving her, but Daniel believes he reached her first. They soon learn that Ben and Sage bailed them out. When they leave, Grace says she doesn't care about the new fiancé and she wants to go for ice cream.

Daniel says they need to go to work. Moments later, Bryan meets with the Deputy Coroner who says he had lunch with Merilee Cotter from prosecutions who wanted to know how Max's case was going. They don't want him removed from the case, but Mila Zoric might. Her legal team is calling constantly asking for Max's body, the vehicle, and the items found in the vehicle. Bryan admits he doesn't see a reason to stop them from burying Max if Lyle and Bramson have finished their PMs. He can't release the phone found in the car though because he thinks it could connect James Reed to Max's death. He says Harrow would be wise to share what he knows before the trial. Bryan goes to the coroner's office to sign off so the Feds can get the Russian's body. As for the other one, he was killed in a similar fashion. Bryan tries to drop some hints for Daniel about crims getting caught eventually.

Daniel tells Carl the truth about Gabriella's death. Bryan's computer is fixed after some sort of malware is removed and he tells the woman about the IT kid, but she says she is the only one assigned to the job. She agrees to check for deleted emails and quickly finds the picture of James's visa. Meanwhile, Mila Zoric follows Fern while she tries to work. She stops Fern and asks her about cleaning. It only takes seconds for Mila to get Fern's name and phone number. Callan finds it odd that James is now locking his room. They get into a spat over Callan cooking all of the time and James wondering if Fern wants a Mr. Domestic. Callan believes James is only using Fern and says Harrow is a better man than he'll ever be. Bryan consults with his partner and both believe James was trying to snoop around in hopes of getting the phone back. Fern meets up with James a bit later and asks him about the 22 million.

He doesn't look happy about that. Daniel spends time on his boat looking through old photos. He calls Grace who asks if everything is okay. He asks her to go out for ice cream since it was her idea and she agrees. When Daniel turns around, he finds Tanya Reed standing near his boat.

Summary: After two men die in a duel, Harrow uncovers a web of Machiavellian intrigue within a suburban historical society. Meanwhile, the return of Tanya forces Harrow to reassess the last twenty years of his life.

As the episode begins, we see two men dressed in old clothes participate in a duel. Both men are shot before they drop to the ground. After the intro, Dr. Daniel Harrow spends the night with Tanya Reed who says the cancer is in remission. Tanya admits she thought Daniel would be angry about something like this and Daniel thought the same. Daniel learns that Tanya changed her name to her grandmother's surname Hain and she exhibits under that name. She apologizes to Daniel because she knows how hard he tried to find them. She didn't let Daniel find her because he would've talked her back. Then, their conversation turns to James and whether he is in trouble. James sits down with Fern and promises he didn't steal anything from Mila.

He believes Max was responsible for the theft and that is why he needed a fake passport from James. He theorizes that Max had access to his mother's banking system. Fern wonders if Mila is after James for the money or her son but James says he doesn't know about either of them. When asked what Mila would do, James admits he thinks she would kill him. Daniel tells Tanya about the DNA test and waiting to see if the victim was his son. He admits he isn't sure he can believe a word James tells him and that he isn't involved in Max's death. Steve tells Bryan that Surveillance 2 has just uploaded some photos regarding Daniel's boat. Bryan checks the pictures and finds out about Tanya being on Daniel's boat.

He learns about her changing her name before he tells Detective Brookes that he wants to wait and see where they take this. Daniel and Tanya go for a ride in the morning and remember the items he stole from the Mexican restaurant they went to. Daniel realizes they're being watched by police so they can't go visit James. When Daniel returns to the office, Dr. Grace listens as he talks to Bryan about his followers and Daniel's visitor. Daniel tells him that he and Tanya don't know where James is so they should be left alone. Then, Grace tells Daniel about her two scoops of ice cream and Daniel didn't show up so he quickly apologizes. Then, they learn about the victims, Martin Peek and George Vaughn Ilic.

Bryan explains they were duelists and members of the historical society. Allegedly, Ilic said something that Mr. Peek took offense too so they had to duel. Daniel asks about the seconds since they would've accompanied the men during the duel. Bryan confirms they're interviewing two people at CIB now. As for the referee, he has gone to ground and they're searching for him. Just before the autopsies, Grace continues belittling Daniel for not showing up for the ice cream. Dr. Lyle Fairley joins them and says the duel was romantic. Daniel offers to shoot him before Fairley reminds him he was called Crack Shot Fairley in the Air Rifle Brigade. Daniel claims it was because of the pellet that wound up in his gluteal cleft.

Grace interrupts and asks Edwina about the men's health. She explains Mr. Ilic was as fit as a fiddle and Peek was too except he had minor heartburn and restless leg syndrome. They were both good shots and long-term members of the Brisbane Faro Society. Daniel knows about faro which is a card game from Basset and a precursor to poker. As for other wounds, Mr. Peek has something faint on his cheek and it looks like lipstick. They believe someone kissed him good luck or goodbye. The witnesses thought the guns weren't loaded. They check the guns which belonged to Peek since he had a license. Then, they look at the CT scans and Grace says the two men were aiming at each other's hearts. They really wanted to kill each other or really didn't they think would.

They go in deeper to check out the lead shots and find out that they're fishing sinkers. One of the back of one, Ruffian is imprinted on it. Daniel wonders what was worth killing for. After that, Daniel visits the Brisbane Faro Society and finds the motto "Valour withers without an opponent". He goes in and finds Bryan talking to Emeline Mellis who is the club's new marketing manager. She admits she was only doing it for her CV but found out that it is a great game of skill and wit. She says it is a shame they lost Martin and George because they were experts. Daniel asks her what the duel was about before she says what every duel is about pride. Bryan talks to the club's treasurer Karen Yancy.

She claims they were arguing about the 50-year anniversary championship game. The winner gets the time capsule. They're not sure what is in it because they only have one out of focus photo, but she claims it is nothing valuable and many about prestige. She says the unearthing will be a big deal and there will be local papers. When pressed more, she says Martin and George were playing when George said he was growing too old waiting for Martin to place his bet and he was starting to find Martin's wife attractive. Martin took offense to that comment and decided to challenge George to a duel. Daniel asks and learns that there were duels before but they were normally settled by a card game or fencing bout. Other times, they were settled by paintballs but never lead bullets. Daniel asks about Dugald Hogarth being the winner by default, but Bryan says he is their missing referee.

As for Mellis, her name is missing. She admits she thought she was too new to the club to play. Daniel asks about the place where Peek kept his pistols before they visit his house and give their condolences to his wife. Mrs. Peek confirms she was her husband's second during the duel, but she didn't load the pistol and only handed it to him. She says Martin was going through a mid-life crisis since he bought a lot of stuff. He was a tax accountant and a very responsible man but had changed in the last few months and became secretive and deceptive. Daniel asks if Martin had restless leg syndrome and she confirms he did and it was spreading to other parts of his body and life. He had gotten into gambling and was involved in online poker and online sports betting.

She admits she wanted it to end before showing them the safe where he kept his guns. Bryan finds paintballs, but no lead shot. Only Martin had a key to it. Mick brings Bryan a tackle box with two missing sinkers. The others have Ruffian on the back of them. When asked, she thinks she kissed her husband good luck. They finally track down Dugald and asks him why he ran from the duel. He claims he was upset after seeing two club mates die in front of him. He had no key so he has a solid alibi. He also had an allergy to seafood so Bryan doesn't think he would've touched the tackle box without having a seizure. Bryan believes Martin is the most likely suspect and is ready to move on since he has another murder investigation to focus on. Edwina finds Daniel checking on the bodies and asks if they died for something, but Daniel isn't sure.

She tells him he had a phone call earlier before leaving. He checks it and is surprised by what he finds. He goes to the police station and finds Tanya talking to Bryan about James being in Australia. She tells Bryan that James claimed he was attending a university but hadn't attended a single class. She came out to search for her son and started with his father. She tells Bryan everything Daniel said, but flips at the end and says James was nowhere to be found after the DNA confirmed it was Max. Bryan isn't sure about that though since he has a voicemail from Daniel telling Fern he needs to speak to her brother. Daniel says Bryan convinced him that James was there so he left the message for Fern but he doesn't know if she has had contact with James. Tanya leaves her number so they can call when and if they find James.

Daniel follows her outside and she believes that'll get them out of their backs now. Meanwhile, Fern helps James access her father's work account. They look at bodies being released to their next of kin since their possessions are sometimes released as well. James intends to swap the case code with the one for his phone so he can get it. James is surprised when his mother and Daniel arrive at the door. She wants to know why he told Daniel she was dead. They discuss all of their recent lies including James claiming he has been going to the University of Adelaide. He wanted to find his dad and now he needs to find his phone to prove he didn't kill Max. His mother wants to know if he'll stay if he manages to clear his name. He doesn't answer and encourages her to get some sleep so Tanya agrees to sleep on Daniel's boat. Later, she tells Daniel she didn't want her baby being raised around the dead. Daniel returns to QIFM and works before Renae enters and checks on him. He asks about Louie who is with his father this week. She says she works instead of sitting at home missing him and Daniel says he sits at home missing work.

They discuss why the duelists were killed before Daniel tells her about Peek's restless leg syndrome. Daniel says he was prescribed a medication called Pramipexole which heightens sex drive, increases recklessness, and encourages the desire to gamble. Renae asks about the Phenidone which is found alongside the traces of gunpowder on his hand. Daniel says it is a darkroom chemical so he must've been a photographic developer, but he didn't have a darkroom at home. He returns to the club and finds Karen Yancy there preparing for the big day. Daniel learns that there is going to be a final because Mellis is now playing. A clause says the treasurer can nominate a stand-in when there aren't enough players. Mellis asks to be nominated and Yancy admits it would be a change to have a woman in the final.

She tells Daniel about Mellis's work spreading news about the club and the final before he asks about someone developing photographs. Sure enough, the club has a darkroom which has been with the club for 50 years. Daniel learns that Emeline uses it. Daniel looks at the pictures and finds that they're from the laying of the time capsule and a frame has gone missing. Mellis interrupts and joins them. She threatens to call the police on Daniel for trespassing before Daniel asks her what she told Peek. She says she takes it Peek can't kiss and tell after Daniel asks if he was in there the night before the duel. She claims she knows nothing about the missing frame. He tries to leave but Mellis asks for a kiss for luck before saying she finds it sad about what happened to Martin and George.

She tells Daniel that there is nothing to find there before kissing him on the cheek. Grace finds him at QIFM taking a sample of her lipstick from his cheek. Then, Daniel goes to Bryan and tells him that the lipstick might've belonged to Mellis. He also tells Bryan about the darkroom chemicals. Daniel believes she did it to join the game and win the capsule's contents because she knows something valuable is inside. Bryan agrees to cooperate so they dress up in old clothes and head to the club to play faro. Mellis isn't happy to see them before Daniel says they joined the club online thanks to her. Yancy confirms that Daniel is right and they can play. Before the game begins, Bryan tells Daniel he's got it. Mellis wins the first game so Daniel consults with Bryan who says it is a matter of counting cards.

Bryan wins the second hand. Nichols wins the third as well so Mellis goes for a drink. Bryan accepts one but Daniel turns one down. During the break, Daniel tells Bryan he thinks Mellis eliminate Peek and Ilic because she thought she could beat Hogarth. He believes Bryan is unsettling her. Daniel warns Bryan not to drink what she brought him, but it is too late. Nichols begins feeling the effects immediately and Hogarth does too. Bryan tells Daniel to win the game before stepping away. Daniel refuses to call the game and continues playing. Mellis wins and Hogarth steps out. Yancy lets them know they're down to the last three cards before Daniel asks Mellis what she found in the photograph of the time capsule. She denies it and says she is going to win.

He tells her she is good at hunches. She places her bet before he says he believes he can bet on the order the last three cards appear. If he is right, he wins four times the bet. He knows because he read the rule book. Daniel says the last card is the valet de trefle or the jack of clubs and he is right. As a result, he wins the game and the time capsule. Mellis storms out. Daniel tracks her down but she continues denying all of his allegations. She admits she thought she'd be on TV if she won and in the papers. She shows him the picture and says it is just a bunch of old crap but she wants the cards because they're collector's items. Yancy found the loophole to let her play and they agreed she could keep the cards. She denies kissing Martin before leaving. Daniel looks at the picture and goes back inside to confront Yancy. He claims she recognized the deck of cards and old envelope in the picture. She admits it is worth over half a million and the dusty old fools had no idea. She pulls out a sword and we quickly learn what Yancy did to get Mellis into the game.

She knew about Peek being on Pramipexole and its side effects because her late father had Parkinson's. He only needed a nudge after George insulted Martin. She grabbed his keys when they were in the darkroom together and put the sinkers in the pistols. Daniel is forced to defend himself before he is cut across the arm. He tries to convince her that the money isn't worth it before she pins him to the ground but Bryan arrives and saves him. He wants more of the beer. Brookes arrives and Daniel gives her permission to open the time capsule only to find everything has been utterly destroyed. Daniel finds a Marshall Sam Colt cereal toy though and says he always wanted one of them. Before Bryan is hauled away, he tells Daniel he is glad he wasn't lying about his son.

He says he didn't want to see Daniel taken away in cuffs, but they will be taking away his son though. Moments later, Callan finds James reading a request for release of evidence. He wants to know what James is doing in Daniel's emails but James claims it isn't any of his business. He tells him to piss off. Later, Callan breaks into James's room and looks through his belongings. He finds an SWM card with the name John Rann on it. Daniel goes to his boat and tells Tanya about the cereal toy. They talk about what she said about the dead and she admits it wasn't a good reason to keep James from him. Daniel admits he had done terrible things too before they kiss. Callan goes to SWM and tries to enter with the key card. He uses the card and slips inside before the door shuts behind him.

Callan looks around and finds a makeshift call center for the Z-Stock help desk. They're remotely accessing the callers' computers and possibly downloading information. Mila gets a call and is told she has a problem before she watches a surveillance video of Callan in the call center.

Summary: While Harrow investigates a baffling crime involving siblings, James brings danger closer to his half-sister Fern than ever before — and pays a high price.

As the episode begins, Naomi Sharpe and Pat Vale search for Aaron and Jade. They search a house and find Jade dead inside. It appears she has bruises on her neck. After the intro, Bryan Nichols calls Grace Molyneux because he can't get in touch with Daniel. Bryan wants both of them to check out the latest crime scene so he asks Grace to visit Daniel's boat. She visits the boat and finds the door open. When she steps inside, she finds a bra on the floor and clothes strewn across the boat. Daniel calls her name and Tanya asks him for a towel. He quickly tries to explain himself, but Grace rushes out and promises to text him the address.

Callan tells Fern about the operation he found, but she is upset that Callan stole from her brother. She reminds him how scared they were when they were on the road, and claims James is just as scared. She doesn't let him forget about the shady stuff they did too. She says she is going to help James no matter what. Daniel catches up with Grace but she tells him it is none of her business who he invites between his sheets. Bryan approaches and makes sure everything is fine before they check out the crime scene. They go inside and Bryan tells them about Jade Freeman. The 35-year-old was found this morning by her neighbor and the boyfriend's sister. It looks like she has been strangled and there is no rigor mortis. They believe she was killed around 4 AM.

There are no signs of forced entry and nothing seems to have been stolen. The neighbors said it was unusual quiet since Jade often fought with her boyfriend who they haven't been able to find. At that moment, he arrives outside. Bryan decides to bring him into the house with the body. Mr. Sharpe seems stoic and he complains about his girlfriend smashing his boat. After that, Bryan tells Grace and Daniel that Aaron hasn't said anything else and won't look him in the eye. They're taking the boyfriend in for further questioning. Daniel wonders if it is shock due to the circumstances. When he is led away, Daniel and Grace discuss people reacting differently to death. They return to the morgue to perform the autopsy. We learn that Jade was last employed at a salon in Spring Hill, but hasn't worked in nearly a year.

She has been living with Aaron for almost two years. They just bought a house and they're now engaged. They check Jade's scans and find that her thyroid cartilage and larynx are fractured. The hyoid bone suggests death by manual compression. They believe she fought with her attacker so they agree to check her fingernails for DNA and other evidence. They find dirt under her fingernails but no skin or flesh. Daniel wonders if she was sedated and didn't fight back. Grace finds bruising across her palm as if she was trying to grab something while struggling. When they remove her clothes, they more bruising which Daniel believes would've been caused by a knee. There are no signs of sexual trauma, but she did have unprotected sex within the last 24 hours.

Then, Daniel reveals that Mr. Sharpe did not have a criminal record. Grace isn't convinced he is a saint though. Daniel explains the abuse is usually ongoing, but Jade didn't have any healed bones or broken teeth. Grace reminds him that she might've been psychologically or emotionally abused. Daniel checks with Bryan who admits Aaron hasn't said anything and hasn't even touched his sandwich. Bryan spoke to his employer and found that Mr. Sharpe completed some of his deliveries but not all of them. No one knows where Sharpe was between 2 and 6 AM and they couldn't track his phone because it was left in his locker at work. Plus, some of the female staff had recently complained about him because they were creeped out by his quietness. His boss put him on the night shift but that wasn't his only job. He was often working 18 hours straight.

Daniel tells Bryan that his partner hadn't worked in 12 months and Bryan says she quit after a minor car accident. She claimed she hurt her neck and couldn't work. He goes on to say that she was chasing a compensation payout that is not forthcoming. Daniel is allowed to talk to him and he goes on about the French fleet carrying 40 guns. Aaron knows what Daniel is talking about because it was the boat he had in his living room and Daniel's father had one too. When asked about the ship, Aaron admits that Jade didn't think he had time to work on them. He says he worked by choice and Jade couldn't. When he is asked if he hurt Jade, he says he loved her. Back at QIFM, Renae gets a call from Doug who reminds her why she was given the job. Seconds later, she scares Dr. Lyle Fairley. She tells him she needs the reports he made on Dr. Harrow. She wants them on her desk this afternoon.

Daniel goes through the police report before Grace arrives and gives him the scans he was after. He admits he has been wondering if Mr. Sharpe was diagnosed with autism. Daniel explains his reasoning before Edwina interrupts to confirm that the lab found contact DNA in the neck wounds and that DNA matches the semen found on the victim. They've run it through the national database and it doesn't match Aaron. Daniel meets with Bryan on his way to apprehend the new suspect Tony Palladino who has multiple convictions for GBH and assault. Detective Brookes interrupts to tell Bryan there is something he needs to see. They check the garage and find that Tony's jack failed and his vehicle crushed him to death.

Daniel gets closer and says he believes the body has been there for 19 hours or so. According to Daniel's theory, Tony would've been dead before Jade was strangled. They return to Aaron and confront him with pictures of himself with Jade and Tony. Aaron is asked if he knew Tony and Jade were sleeping together since they found messages on their phone confirming it. Aaron wonders why it matters before Bryan tells him about Tony's death. Daniel tries to get Aaron to open up before the suspect admits he knew about the affair. Bryan asks Sharpe if he found out about the affair and killed both of them, but he doesn't answer. Once they leave, Daniel admits he doesn't understand how Tony's DNA ended up on Jade's throat when he was dead hours before she was strangled.

Daniel is convinced that the killer used their bare hands so Bryan suggests checking with the lab again. Bryan isn't sure that there is more to the story. He suggests that Mr. Sharpe refusing to deny it means he did it. He says they're going to book him. Grace runs into Sage who gives her some of Ben's stuff and asks her to give it back to him. She goes out with Ben later that night, returns his items, and tries to find out what happened. Ben claims she must've figured it out that he hasn't been able to move on past Grace. He confesses he has never stopped loving her. Next, James tells Fern that the evidence box is available to be collected tomorrow afternoon.

He admits that Schumann's granddaughter is supposed to pick it up but Fern will pick it up using the name Catherine Schumann. She asks him what is going to happen after they get his phone back and whether he'll leave. James promises he isn't going anywhere before Fern leaves for work. After she is gone, James gets a call from his mother and meets with her. Tanya wants to know why her son is there and what he is doing because she doesn't want to lose him again. He isn't happy that his mother lied to him. James says he likes having a dad and a half-sister because it feels right. He apologizes for not telling her where he was going but says he likely learned that from somewhere. Daniel arrives at QIFM and learns that they're releasing Max.

Lyle doesn't understand why it matters so much until Daniel admits his actual son might've had something to do with his death. Daniel explains he wanted to hold onto Max's body to prove his son didn't do it. Lyle isn't sure Daniel should be telling him this, but Daniel admits Lyle is his friend and should know. Despite that, Lyle says his hands are tied because of Mila's request. After Lyle apologizes, Daniel has to watch as they take Max's body away. Then, he meets with Callan and talks to him about James and Fern. Daniel wants to pass along the news about Max's body being taken before the conversation turns to Mila and the dodgy stuff she is involved in.

Callan says James is playing them and he is worried he is going to be bringing a ton of stuff down on Daniel and Fern. He encourages Daniel to cut him off and says Fern should do the same thing. Callan admits he can't sit around, do nothing, and let Fern go to prison. When Daniel leaves, he is watched by James's stalkers. When Daniel returns to the office, he is approached by Aaron's sister Naomi. She encourages Daniel to check the body again because her brother isn't a killer. They sit down before Naomi claims that Jade was always yelling at Aaron because she wanted him to work so she wouldn't have to. She goes on to suggest that Naomi could've worked but liked it when her brother did everything. She pleads with Daniel to check again.

Daniel checks with Lyle who says he was right about the size of the larvae collected and Tony denying at least 19 hours before his body was discovered. Daniel is shocked to learn that Aaron's prints were found on the vehicle jack as well. They discuss the evidence and Daniel wanting to get justice. Then, Daniel decides to return to the crime scene to look around. He finds Pat returning things she borrowed from a barbecue that they had. Daniel doesn't believe her though. He asks her about the yelling she heard coming from the house and she admits it was mostly Jade yelling. She goes on to say that Aaron would lend anyone to anybody. He checks his vehicle and finds that the jack is missing so he likely let Tony borrow it. Bryan doesn't think it is enough so Daniel returns to Tony's death scene.

He checks Tony's house and becomes suspicious about the toothbrush from Tony's bathroom. Nobody has logged toothbrushes. Grace finds Daniel working on Jade's neck once again. He tells her he is looking for toothpaste because he believes someone used Tony's toothbrush to plant his DNA on her neck. The person responsible didn't understand that Tony was already dead. Daniel decides to go back through the evidence before receiving information about Aaron's medical history. He returns to the crime scene again and looks at Aaron's boat. He finds a small bead on the floor and believes he has the key to solving the puzzle. It is the same bead found on the necklace Naomi was wearing in the picture with her friends. Daniel approaches her and we see that she has a bruise on the back of her neck.

He sits down with her and accuses her of strangling Jade to death. Daniel believes Jade grabbed her necklace and ripped it from her neck while Naomi choked her. He accuses her of killing both of them once she found out about the affair and because she was angry about how her brother was treated. She admits she approached Jade and threatened to tell her brother what she knew. Naomi says she lost it and strangled Jade to death. Daniel says she got busy in hopes of covering her tracks. He admits she almost got away with it but the man she set up was already dead. Naomi says he doesn't understand and that Jade didn't love her brother. Daniel believes Aaron encouraged the affair since she was treated for testicular cancer two years ago. He was left impotent by the treatment.

Naomi says she was only trying to protect him, but she took away the one thing he truly loved. The police arrive to arrest her seconds later. Bryan tells Daniel that they'll drop all charges against Aaron, but Bryan doesn't understand why he didn't tell them anything. Daniel meets with Aaron who wonders what the point was since Jade was already dead and he was going to jail. Daniel asks him about the arguments and he admits Jade was worried about him. She wanted him to stop working so much and spend more time on his boats. He goes on to say that his sister took care of him when he was a kid and he finally had someone he could care for in the same way. He says Jade deserved to be happy so he accepted the affair. Next, Lyle delivers his report on Harrow to Renae, but she is surprised that Lyle rated his performance as excellent in all of the charts.

He tells her he doesn't want to be the one to end his career. If she wants to get rid of Harrow, she'll have to be the one to do it. He sits down and goes on to say that Daniel is one of the finest pathologists in the state. He says Daniel breaks the rules but he gets results because he cares. He calls Daniel a friend and says he won't be involved in him being removed from the building. Renae thanks him. Fern arrives at the station in hopes of getting the evidence. She calls James and tells him she is nervous. Callan overhears the conversation. Callan gets upset with James and it nearly gets physical. Fern shows her Catherine ID in hopes of getting the evidence. The license is verified before Fern signs the paperwork and turns to leave with the package. She is given her ID back before leaving in a hurry.

When she tries to return home, she is approached by Matthias and several other men. He takes the evidence from her. Callan tracks down Grace and tells her there is something he needs her to do. He gives her a bag with hairbrush in it. Mila learns that Fern gave them her phone and not James's. She returns and tells James that they can't stay. She finds the place wrecked.

Summary: Harrow rides the storm when a deathly ill boy at QIFM needs his help at the very moment Mila Zoric summons him to negotiate his kidnapped son's release. But there's one lightning bolt shock he did not see coming.

As the episode begins, an Australian customs officer searches a shipping container due to its awful odor. He finds the body of a man on the floor. After the intro, Fern Harrow freaks out when Callan scares her. She begins telling him that James was taken by the dead boy's mother. He finds out that she took the phone from the police before Mila's men speed into the driveway and rush into the home. Fern and Callan manage to escape over a fence in the back. They argue about James being trouble and being unable to go to the police because of Fern and James. Callan wants to go to Daniel, but Fern says they can't since they used his email to get the phone.

Fern's phone calls, Callan answers, and he talks to Mila Zoric. She confirms she has James. She begins giving demands but Callan ends the call before he can hear them. Callan takes James's phone and jumps into a taxi as Fern is left alone on the street. Callan calls Daniel Harrow but he doesn't answer. He notices Tanya is gone before his phone rings once again. He answers the call from QIFM before going to the facility and telling Lyle Fairley about his son's mother. Grace and Bryan join them before they learn about the body from customs. Bryan explains the body was found in a shipping container from Conakry via Cape Town.

The man would've spent weeks at sea, but the shipping container was vented so he could breathe inside. He was alone besides three dozen exotic birds that were likely for sale on the black market. They discuss dehydration before Renae enters and asks to talk to Daniel for a moment. Renae gets rid of Louie before asking Daniel to shut the door. She presents Daniel his retirement package which outlines his severance and paperwork to finalize his access to the department's health benefit scheme. Daniel is upset and angry. He reminds Renae he is the best pathologist she has but she disagrees. He takes the paperwork, packs items from his office, and apologizes to Glen. Grace tries to find out what is going on before he leaves but he recommends asking Lizzie Borden.

She wants to ask about something else but Daniel blows her off and leaves. She confronts Renae who says she and Lyle will perform the PM on the shipping container body. Renae recommends getting back to work or she'll follow Daniel. Grace tells Lyle about it moments later. He suggests doing their job and talking to the deputy coroner at the end of the day. They confirm the man was badly dehydrated and he has puncture wounds on his left index finger. Grace asks about Lyle's final report on Harrow but he says he only told the truth. Louie entered as they cut the man open and he gets a drop of blood in his eye. Lyle helps him flush it out while Grace finds something disturbing. They hit the alarm and go into lockdown with no one else being able to enter.

Grace tells Renae through the intercom that the man appears to have died of a virulent hemorrhagic fever. Renae wants to take her son to the hospital, but Lyle believes they should follow emergency protocol. He says they can't let anyone in or out until they know what it is. Meanwhile, Daniel goes to the pub for drinks. Callan tracks him down and tells him about James, his phone, and Mila. Daniel learns how they used his ID to get the phone before he tells Callan he needs to do this alone. He tells Callan to look after his daughter. Daniel calls Fern's phone and talks to Mila who asks if anyone at HQ is listening to the call. He doesn't think so and asks for proof they have James. He gets it in the form of a video seconds later. They agree to meet in an hour.

Daniel calls Grace and learns that they have a case of Ebola or something like it. He is told about Louie before asking Grace to describe the smuggler's condition. Daniel says it doesn't make any sense and the incubation period must be extremely short. He doesn't think the man from the container was infected before he embarked. They agree that something in the container had to give the man the disease. Biosecurity won't be there for a few hours so Daniel agrees to help. Daniel calls Fern's phone again and tells Matthias he is going to need more time, but he is only given 58 minutes.

Bryan learns that the phone found in Mila's vehicle has disappeared and Daniel requested its release. He checks the security footage and learns that Fern picked up the phone. Daniel goes to the shipping container and tells the man in charge that it cannot be released because Biosecurity, Disease Control, and the police are on the way. He puts on a mask and steps inside in hopes of finding out what killed the man. Ben calls Grace and agrees to get there as soon as possible. Lyle tells a coworker what to do with the blood samples as soon as they get them so they can be tested for viruses. Renae threatens to fire Lyle if he doesn't let Louie out but he says he doesn't care. Daniel calls Grace and confirms that the dead man had bite marks.

Daniel believes the man was smuggling more than birds. He checks the CCTV footage and notices something rush out of the shipping container when the door was first opened. It is confirmed that a monkey ran from the container and Daniel asks about one of the men opening the container. He contacts Grace and tells her about the monkey. Since the monkey is still alive, it can't be Zaire, Ebola, or Marburg. Daniel asks Grace if Ben can access Cyanovirin-N but Lyle doesn't think they can give it to Louie because he is already too weak. Daniel knows but he believes it could slow down the virus and save Louie if he is right. He asks about Louie's head since a symptom is rapid swelling of the brain meninges.

He warns they might need to relieve the pressure by opening his skull. He wants to check the animal to see if it is showing symptoms but wants Ben to get the Cyanovirin just in case. When the call ends, Daniel learns about the dockworker Andy Spiro. They aren't giving any information without a warrant so Daniel is told to ring the Deputy Coroner. He doesn't have time for that so he tracks down the man's friend and interrogates him. After a little torture, the man admits that Andy knew the monkey could be valuable so he tried to get it. He gets the man's address and rushes there. Louie loses consciousness just before Ben arrives. Grace tells Renae that they'll need to perform a craniotomy. Louie and Ben don't like the idea, but Grace says they likely don't have a choice.

Daniel gets a call from Nichols who he has been trying to call. Bryan knows everything now and he offers to give Daniel one last chance to tell the truth about his son. Daniel gets a message from Fern's phone warning him he only has twenty minutes. As a result, he decides to tell Bryan about James. He apologizes for lying but says he was afraid of losing his son. He hangs up and arrives at Andy's home before breaking in. He finds the monkey's cage and some clumps of its fur. Andy runs out of the door and Harrow chases him. Renae gives Grace and Lyle permission to operate on her son. Daniel tries to convince Andy to stop and show him the monkey. Andy has been bitten as well so he has the disease too. Daniel pleads with Andy to tell him if the monkey died or he killed it.

Lyle tells Grace that Louie has stopped breathing. Renae freaks out and they begin CPR. Daniel calls and tells Grace to give Louie the shot. He says it is a macaque and it died of a broken neck. It was a carrier but it had no swollen glands or other symptoms. Grace administers the medication seconds later and Louie opens his eye. With that out of the way, Daniel turns his attention to the James situation. He sneaks inside and joins Mila and the others. Daniel believes James made Mila a passport because she is leaving too. She confirms it but wants what is her first. They hang James over the rail until Daniel admits he has the phone. James tells Daniel not to give it to her so he holds it over the rail. She threatens to toss James over the rail too. Daniel believes it isn't about revenge. If it was, James would already be dead.

Daniel says she wants the phone because that is where the 22 million is. At Mila's request, James is put down. Daniel says she can have her money in a minute but he wants to show her something first. James agrees to tell his father how to access the video so Mila can see what happened to her son. The video is sent to Mila and she watches it seconds later. It shows that Max tried to attack James but fell over the edge in the process. Bryan tells Superintendent Bec Crowley what he knows about Daniel, Fern, and James. She wants them brought in and charged with obstructing justice. Detective Brookes receives the CCTV footage of James and Max and shows it to them.

The message "MIKKS" was also sent along with it. Bryan believes it has something to do with Mila's place. James tells Mila it was her son's idea to steal her money. He offered to split it with James if he helped and got him out of the country. James thought he might get greedy so he set up some insurance. He diverted the camera feeds to his phone before meeting with Max. He put Daniel's name in Max's fake passport when he lost his phone. Then, he left the note for his father because he was leaving that night as well. Mila wants her money but James warns Daniel that she'll take the money and kill both of them. Daniel says he'll transfer it himself when James is safe, but James says he'll only have one chance and he'll be locked out forever.

Daniel remembers his meeting with James on his boat and the Sparklehorse It's A Wonderful Life record. Daniel puts in Sparklehorse and transfers the money as he struggles with Matthias. Mila grabs the phone and tells James to unlock it. James tries to unlock it but his access is denied. Daniel apologizes and says he thought he could guess it before Mila demands James be thrown over. She wants them both thrown over but Daniel warns her of the police sirens approaching. Mila and the others run away before Daniel tells his son he had to do it. He says he had to take away the one thing she wanted, but James says it was the one thing he wanted too. Mila is taken into custody with Matthias and the others. Daniel tells James he better go.

Louie is saved. Grace receives the results from the hairbrush test. Bryan tells Daniel that Fern gave him a card and it allowed Fraud Squad to enter an interesting warehouse owned by a shell company owned by Mila Zoric. Bryan asks for the phone but Daniel doesn't have it. He also says James is gone and he should let it go. Bryan asks if Grace has called him yet. Bryan explains Callan brought some of James's hair to test and James isn't Daniel's son. Later that night, Daniel listens to a voice message from Tanya who says he deserves the truth. She admits he isn't James's father. She apologizes but says Daniel was always gone. Louie is taken to ICU and Renae is told she can meet him there. Renae admits Harrow had a hand in saving her son's life.

Daniel shows up at QIFM and receives a thanks from Renae who promises to fix the firing thing. Daniel approaches Grace and tells her about his crazy day and the boy who wasn't his son. He knows he could've told her and says she is such a good person. He tells her she deserves more than someone as messed up as him, but she says what people deserve and want are two different things. He admits he might not be able to change, but she isn't sure she'd want that. He checks his phone and finds a message from Fern who wants to meet at the boat. Bryan runs into Fern and tells her they need to chat about Catherine Schumann. They join Daniel and find out that his boat is missing. He gives Fern the letter James left and she reads it aloud.

Bryan says James is a liar, sneak, and charmer, but not her brother. Daniel agrees to give him a head start before notifying coast guard. He says 22 years since his mother kept it secret from him too. When Bryan leaves, Fern thanks Daniel for the 22 million and he admits he wasn't sure he remembered her account number. They agree they should probably give it back, but Daniel suggests Bora Bora. He says they could go shopping for a new vessel. They discuss their potential trip with Callan.
